South Twisters Kill 82

From AP, UPI

Tornadoes which tore through dozens of towns in the Mississippi and Louisiana deltas killed 82 persons, left hundreds homeless and virtually destroyed the Mississippi community of Inverness, officials reported Monday.

The twisters — weather experts said there were between 50 and 100 of them in the deadliest onslaught in the U.S. south in 30 years — moved through the area late Sunday night, and late Monday volunteers were still uncovering victims beneath the widespread rubble.

Hardest hit was the Sunflower County town of Inverness, population 1,100, where 75 per cent of the residential area was destroyed and 13 persons died.

Civil Defence officials said 22 died in Leflore County, 24 in Sharkey County, 17 in Sunflower County, seven in Yazoo County, five in Humphreys and two in Warren. All are in Mississippi.

In addition five died in Delhi, La., in one of the first funnels to drop out of the band of violent weather which whistled through the area just before dark Sunday.

The American Insurance Association said insured property damage in the two states would exceed $7.5 million.

Estimates were that winds exceeded 100 miles an hour as the funnels skipped across the countryside.

At the University of Mississippi at Oxford, 40 students were taken to hospital after a tornado hit a trailer park on the edge of the campus. Fifty trailers were destroyed and 50 others damaged — some wrapped around pine trees like pieces of wire.

In North Fayetteville, N.C. a tornado ripped through a business and residential area at the rush hour Monday afternoon, killing at least one person and injuring 30 more.

Cape Fear Valley Hospital reported it treated 18 persons in the emergency room for injuries, admitting four of them. Another 18 were brought to Womack Army Hospital at nearby Ft. Bragg, where four were admitted.

Policeman Cops Out Too Quickly

(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

LOS ANGELES — Former police Sgt. Kenneth Caristed, 44, injured in a helicopter crash, accepted a $35,000 settlement Monday — just five minutes before a jury verdict, which would have given him $180,000.

When jurors returned with a verdict of $180,000 for Caristed they were told that there was no need to record it now because of his settlement.

U.S. Blizzard Kills, Cripples

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A full-blown blizzard powered northeastward across the plains and Midwest Monday, causing at least eight deaths, marooning motorists and slowing business, industry and government to a crawl.

Six men died of heart attacks in Omaha after shovelling snow or pushing stalled cars. Another man suffered a fatal heart attack in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Barrett Raises 1968 Pledge, Bennett Refers Him to Black

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

Premier Bennett told the Legislature Monday the instructions he gave in 1968 regarding public development of land along B.C. highways have never been countermanded.

But the premier also refused to answer a demand by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett that he state whether the policy had actually been put into effect. Bennett replied Highways Minister Wesley Black would be "glad" to answer when his estimates are debated in the House, in a few days time.

Opposition Wins Day On Policy Approval

Colonist headline April 7, 1968

Barrett read a newspaper report of April 8, 1968, in which Bennett, then acting highways minister in the wake of Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi's resignation from portfolio, announced it would be government policy to acquire lands along highways where development was likely to take place.

At the time, the premier said the government hadn't decided whether these lands would be disposed of later by a system of public bidding or whether the government would retain ownership and lease them to commercial developers.

Barrett told the House Monday the failure of the government to implement this policy has resulted in the loss of millions of dollars of new revenues for construction of schools and hospitals.

"I can dismiss other broken promises by the premier," the NDP leader said, "but not this one. There is a potential here for generating great new revenues from development created by publicly-financed highway projects. And the

Dental Care Plan Urged for Young

OTTAWA (CP)—Only about one-third of the population's dental service requirements are being filled and dental health as a consequence is poor, says a special report to the federal government.

It proposes a national dental program for children as a step toward eventual dental care of the scope now given for medical care under the national medical care insurance program.

Shortage of Dentists

The report was tabled in the Commons Monday by Health Minister John Munro who said the recommendations will be studied.

A variety of ways of correcting the current serious shortage of dentists is put forward in the report, particularly through better training of dental auxiliaries such as dental assistants, dental hygienists, dental technicians and dental technologists.

The report was written by a committee set up in 1968 as a result of recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services. The committee was headed by Chief Justice Dalton Wells of Ontario Supreme Court.

It says the dental profession estimates that only one-third of dental requirements are being met by existing dental manpower. This was a matter of concern since prepaid dental care through government-sponsored children's services "is being contemplated."

In addition, the level of demand by the general public is expected to increase.

To cope, the dentist-population ratio would have to be boosted to 1 for each 1,200 from 1 for each 3,000—"utopian in the short run since it would mean doubling or tripling" dental school output.

Present plans call for a ratio of 1 to 2,500 by 1986. Hence the emphasis on producing more and better dental auxiliaries and redistributing the duties performed by them under dental supervision.

The report says an estimated 55 per cent of Canadians live in regions where they cannot get more than 35 per cent of the required services due to manpower shortages.

Vietnam's Patton Shot Down

SAIGON (UPI) — Lt.-Gen. Do Cao Tri, one of South Vietnam's most powerful and flamboyant leaders, was killed today when his helicopter was shot down near the Cambodian border, allied command said.

Tri, en route to Cambodia, was commander of South Vietnamese forces in Cambodia and in the 11 provinces around Saigon. Due to his fearlessness, he was known as Saigon's Patton. (See also page 3.)

Grits' Regime Raked For 'Arrogant Pride'

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield unleashed a scathing attack on the Trudeau government here Monday night, accusing it of arrogance, incompetence and irresponsibility.

The government lacks a conscience, and is "playing games with the country," Stanfield told the annual meeting of the Central Nova Progressive Conservative Association.

The former Nova Scotia premier said the time had come to deliver sharp criticism because the government is "so puffed up with pride and arrogance that it is incapable of either admitting

School Bus Driver Breathed Out .25

PENTICTON (CP)—Bus driver Melville John Chappell had 26 children in his school bus at the time he was stopped by police Feb. 15 and charged with impaired driving, an RCMP constable testified in court Monday.

The witness said Chappel, who was remanded for sentence, was found to have a blood-alcohol content of .25 per cent. A reading of .08 per cent is considered sufficient to charge a motorist.

Judge Ross Collver said "this is the worst situation that has ever confronted me under this section of the Criminal Code."

Labor May Face House Test Today

By DON COLLINS

Today is the day Labor Minister Leslie Peterson could light the fuse under the B.C. labor movement. But if he intends to do so, he isn't tipping his hand in advance.

He declined comment Monday on whether he would move in the Legislature today to have the trucking industry strike-lockout ended under terms of the B.C. Mediation Act.

The 131,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor has served notice it will rally behind the Teamsters' union in such a case, if the Teamsters decide to take a stand against compulsory measures.

Peterson served notice of a motion Friday — the same day the strike-lockout began — which would order resumption of work.

Today is the first day the motion could be debated before the House. However, it can be brought up at any time during the session.

The contract dispute arose over a single point — the union's demand for a clause allowing its members to refuse to handle goods moved from behind a picket line by non-union personnel. It involves 3,500 workers and some 78 trucking and warehouse firms represented by the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association.

The union struck one company Friday and the association retaliated by ordering lockouts against the Teamsters by all its member firms.

The full impact isn't expected to be felt for 10 days to two weeks. The Teamsters have estimated that about 60

Eskimos Offended by Name

TORONTO (CP) — Eskimos are offended by their name, a spokesman for the minority group said Monday.

"From what we can understand, it (Eskimo) is an offensive word and we are seriously considering taking it out of our title," Alan Clarke, executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, said in an interview Monday.

Eskimo, according to Clarke and several books on Canadian history, means "one who eats raw flesh" and is derived from the Cree Indian.

"The word Eskimo was never used in the discussions we held with native people from the North at an association conference in Peterborough during the weekend," said Clarke.

Those people called Eskimos — about 13,000 in the northern fringes of Canada, especially the Northwest Territories — want to be called Innuit — their word for themselves.

But even that word raises doubt.

The Oxford Companion to Canadian History and Literature spells the word with one n but A Dictionary of Canadians on Historical Principles spells it Innuit.

At the weekend conference, several people from the North decided that the word Eskimo should be dropped from the association and also organized a new organization — Inuit or Inuit Taparisat of Canada.

its mistakes or accepting advice."

Stanfield said he struck one of the government's "raw nerves" in his recent criticism of its handling of the economy.

"I am happy to be under fire, because that means that I am getting to them."

Stanfield referred to Prime Minister Trudeau's "sneering" at his cross-Canada tour to underline unemployment, and invited the prime minister to take the same trip "to teach him some of the harsh realities that he has thus far managed to ignore."

The government's lack of imagination, economic competence and perhaps understanding of the effects of its policies, had slowed the economy and thrown hundreds of people out of work.

The government's economic and social policies are an "affront to the human dignity" of thousands of Canadians thrown out of work, he said.

Stanfield suggested Trudeau's vocabulary may be undergoing a "seasonal readjustment."

Referring to the controversy which resulted from Trudeau's alleged mouthing of obscenities in the Commons, Stanfield said "he may be working on his own unofficial languages act — in both official languages."

Throughout this session, as it did in 1968, the NDP has kept hammering away at the profits made by land speculators along highways in the Interior. Three session ago the speculators in question include Gaglardi's sons, Bob and Bill. This time the speculative real estate ventures of the premier's sons, Russell and William, are under attack.

Barrett also accused the premier of committing "a disastrous financial blunder" on the Columbia River Treaty and, having exhausted the $273.2 million payment received from the U.S. for downstream storage benefits, was now siphoning funds from general revenue to meet an estimated $400 million-plus deficit on the project.

The NDP leader said the government has been "stashing surpluses" in Hydro accounts to cover up its massive blunder and thus starving schools, hospitals, municipal public works projects, and social services of capital requirements.

He accused Bennett of establishing taxes that really weren't needed in the current budget in order to pour still more money into "the Columbia fiasco."

Hitting the lack of proper development in the north, Barrett went on to call this "a government of waste and welfare" charged it wasn't taking proper measures to counteract unemployment. He also said the government was trying to slough off its responsibilities for urban transit onto the regions.

"The singular failure of this premier," Barrett said, "is that he had failed to keep around him a group of men of his own measure. He makes the suggestion that not one of them is good enough to take over (when Bennett steps down) and that he may have to bring in one of his boys."

Both Barrett and Liberal leader Patrick McGeer complained that the government had failed to answer questions placed on the order paper dealing with Columbia River finance and investments in B.C. Hydro.

McGeer wanted to know why Hydro was more favored than the municipalities when it came to investment of the government's "captive pension funds" and he asked why the government had invested an additional $97 million in short-term parity bonds in Hydro in the past year.

The Liberal leader also attacked the government for spending thousands of dollars on advertising B.C.'s attractions, complaining at the same time about people coming here from all over Canada to worsen the unemployment crisis.

McGeer said he agreed with Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum that the province should at least consider building a nuclear power generation station before deciding that more money should be spent to develop alternate power sources.

Bennett, when he finally stood to answer some of the questions put to him, said the government's policies had been placed before the voters of B.C. in seven elections and each time the people had said "Social Credit go forward."

He blamed unemployment on federal anti-inflation policies and said despite Ottawa's seasonally-corrected figures, the number of unemployed for B.C. in January was .2 per cent down over the some month in 1970.

In other debate, Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) criticized the government for failing to ensure that the more than $90 million collected annually by private companies in the form of auto insurance premiums was invested in B.C. He said public auto insurance would ensure the money remained within the province.

He also called on the premier to take action which would ensure that the profits of the "American-owned" B.C. Tel and its supplier companies remained in B.C.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) received no answer from the premier on the point that the increase in the homeowner grant places an increased burden on the apartment-dweller and others who rent their homes. Capozzi has previously asked for a grant similar to the homeowner grant to be given to renters.

On the matter of a private company taking over transit operations in Vancouver and Victoria, the premier told Capozzi he was sure Hydro would co-operate with any group in a feasibility study, but added the government did not wish to share the costs of such a study.

Robert Wenman (SC—Delta) received no answers from Bennett on questions of removal of property taxes for senior citizens, special taxes to provide for agricultural parkland, and limiting the size of Roberts Bank superport to 10,000 acres.

per cent of the trucking in the province could be affected.

In Victoria, there was some confusion. A union official said workers at Johnston Terminals Ltd. had been told Friday not to report for work Monday.

As a result, the men didn't show up but a company spokesman said later the lockout had not been officially imposed at the Victoria terminals.

Pickets were posted anyway, as they were the day before at Capital Freightways Ltd. The action against Capital was taken, according to the union, because by Sunday it was considered to have "hot cargo" on its premises. So far, the dispute involves 58 Victoria employees at Johnston's and 19 at Capital.

The Teamsters say they share trucking in Victoria almost evenly with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway and Transport Workers.

However, the union says a continued strike and lockout would halt more than 50 per cent of the inflow of trucked goods.

PUEBLA, Mexico (UPI) — Police said faulty brakes on an overcrowded bus caused the head-on collision with a passenger train in which 20 persons aboard the bus were injured, many critically.

The local bus was carrying 70 passengers, double its capacity, when it slammed into the Mexico City-bound train Sunday at a grade crossing outside Puebla, 80 miles southeast of Mexico City.

Steam Eases Croup

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For two years my son has had one attack of croup after another. He has been hospitalized twice.

My doctor says watch him whenever he starts coming down with a cold to stop it from turning into croup, but the worst two times he had croup, he hadn't had a cold so far as I can tell. He goes to bed feeling fine, then wakes up in the middle of the night, choking and with a fever of 102 to 105.

I've asked the doctor if there is anything we can do to prevent these attacks, but he says no, he'll soon grow out of it. — Mrs. D. E. E.

Your description of sudden croup is not unusual. Rather, it is the classical case; no sign of a cold, or perhaps a wild one at night, and then — bingo! Wheezing and gasping for breath.

Croup, ancient affliction that it is, remains a scary condition and is not to be regarded lightly. It can, by shutting off breathing, be dangerous enough to require hospital care and sometimes a tracheotomy (opening of the windpipe to admit air.)

Small children are most susceptible to croup, the simple reason being that their airways are very small. Along comes some respiratory infection usually a virus. Swelling and spasm of the larynx constrict the naturally small airway to a very tiny passage. The child struggles for breath. That's croup!

As the child grows, and the laryngeal structures get larger, there is a tendency to outgrow croup. But while a child is still at the croup age, your doctor is quite right in warning you to start treatment early — as early as you can see a cold or respiratory infection coming on. But as you know, sometimes there's no warning.

There's no way of preventing such infections, but as soon as the croup is evident, start in.

Prompt use of steam is basic. If you have a steam generator, fine. Rig a tent over the bed. But you can give effective relief by taking the child into the bathroom, door closed, and running hot water into the washbowl or tub to get the room cloudy with steam.

One of the reported objectives of the South Vietnamese when the drive was launched Feb. 8 was to reach Sepone and to cut across the supply trail leading from North Vietnam to Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

In Washington, the White House said it had no information to suggest that the North Vietnamese had doubled their flow of supplies down the Ho Chi Minh Trail since the operation began.

Plane-Fearing Gunman Hijacks Chicago Bus

CHICAGO (UPI) — A gunman who said he was afraid of airplanes boarded a Chicago Transit Authority bus Sunday, held a pistol to the driver's head and ordered him to drive to Joliet, less than 40 miles away.

CTA officials said the gunman got off the hijacked bus at a truck stop on Interstate 55 and Illinois Route 53 in Zill County, where Joliet is located. There were no other passengers aboard.

Sale Will Go Ahead

Britain has ruled out possibility of any government intervention in public auction of Earl of Harewood's masterpiece The Death of Actaeon, by Titian. Painting goes on block June 25, and British art circles had asked government action to keep it in country. Sale price is expected to be about $4.8 million, probably from foreign buyer. —(AP)

Copters to South Africa

LONDON (UPI) — The British government announced Monday it will sell military helicopters to South Africa despite threats by several black African nations to withdraw from the Commonwealth if such sales are made to the racially segregated republic.

Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home made the announcement before Parliament, explaining that Britain had "legal obligations" to make the sale under terms of a 1955 agreement that gave the British navy permission to use the South African naval base at Simonstown.

"In response to an inquiry, the government has informed the South African government that if orders are placed for Wasp helicopters we will, according to our legal obligations, issue export licenses at the appropriate time," Douglas-Home said.

He told Parliament no orders for any new arms had been received from the South African government.

(In Capetown, South African Defence Minister Pieter Botha said the government will order seven helicopters.)

Because of their opposition to the South African government's policy of apartheid, or segregation of races, some black African nations said at a recent Commonwealth conference in Singapore they would withdraw from the alliance if the Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath resumed arms sales to South Africa.

Heath's government had indicated it was concerned by the increasing Soviet naval presence in the Indian Ocean off South Africa.

South Africa was expected by British officials to use the helicopters for antisubmarine reconnaissance work from three frigates Britain sold her earlier under the Simonstown agreement. This agreement gave Britain the right to use the South African naval base in exchange for arms sales.

'No Sale' Hope Of Canada

OTTAWA (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday Canada still hopes Britain will not proceed with planned sales of military hardware to South Africa.

"It continues to be our view that the supplying of arms to South Africa would not promote the strength and unity of the Commonwealth and we hope that the British government, notwithstanding the statement made today, would not proceed," Sharp told the House of Commons.

Canada is a member of the eight-nation committee established by the recent Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Singapore to examine Britain's claims that the arms were necessary for Indian Ocean security.

Card Images Called Clear

CHICAGO (UPI) — Olof Jonsson, astronaut Edgar Mitchell's partner in extrasensory perception experiments in space, says he received clear images of experimental cards from Mitchell and felt some of the emotions experienced by Apollo 14's moonwalkers.

Jonsson, a Swedish-born drafting engineer who said he became aware of his extraordinary psychic abilities when he was about 6, said during an interview Sunday he believes as a result of the experiments that reception of ESP from outer space is "very possible."

"We will have to study the results and of course there has never been a score before to compare it to," he said.

Jonsson described his experiment with Mitchell:

Mitchell carried five standon the Apollo 14 command dard ESP experimental cards on the Apollo 14 command module Kittyhawk. Each card, the size of a playing card, is white with one of five shapes outlined in black on one side. The shapes are a square, circle, cross, star and set of wavy lines.

Mitchell carried one of each card. At scheduled times during the flight — none on the moon's surface — Mitchell would choose a card at random, record it in a notebook and concentrate on it for 15 seconds. He repeated the routine 25 times during each of six scheduled sessions.

Jonsson, at his suburban Chicago home, meditated about half an hour prior to each scheduled reception session, trying to determine the card Mitchell had. He recorded his impressions in a notebook.

Wife Wins Release For Envoy

RIO DE JANIERO (UPI) — A tired Brazilian diplomat held captive in Uruguay for 206 days returned home Monday and entered a military hospital to rest up from his ordeal.

Consul Aloysio Dias Gomide flew to Rio aboard a Brazilian air force jet to receive hugs and kisses from his wife, Maria Aparecida, and their six children.

Mrs. Dias Gomide helped win her husband's release by defying the Brazilian government and going on a nationwide, fund-raising tour to collect a ransom of at least $250,000 demanded by his captors. The government eventually turned its back and let her leave the country with the money.

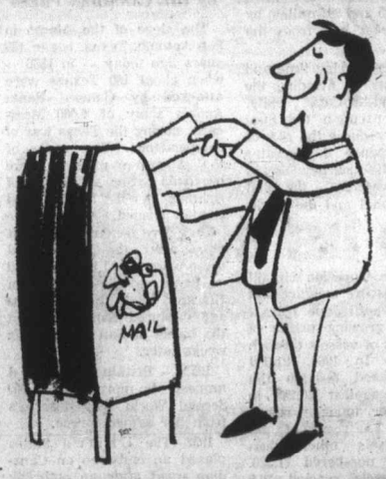
The Government has a law that says in effect "If you save now for your retirement, we'll let you pay as much as $2,500 into a registered retirement savings plan every year, and we'll let you knock it off your income."

So you merely lower taxable income by putting up to $2,500 in our registered retirement savings plan and don't pay the tax on it.

Say you're married, have two children, and earned fifteen thousand in 1970. Depending on the province you live in, your tax saving could amount to about $906, which is a bundle in any man's language.

To top it all off, the money you save can make more money. Incidentally there are four ways you can do this. You can have us invest it in stocks. You can have us invest it at a guaranteed rate of interest. You can have us invest it in income producing bonds and mortgages. Or you can divide your money up using any combination of these three alternatives.



The beauty of it is: You can actually control the combination as your needs change over the years.

For instance, you could invest in stocks for several years, for long term growth. And then as you get closer to retirement, you might want to switch to a guaranteed interest rate.

You can change your combination again and again. This means your plans are flexible at all times.

And you can get your money out when you want it.

When you eventually choose to withdraw it, you have to pay taxes on it at that time, of course. But this is what's most important.

You pay tax on your money when you decide to pay it. This means later, when you're likely in a lower tax bracket.

This has led some to call this plan a tax shelter.

One fellow we know plans to pay into it for several years, watch it grow, then take it out to replace normal income while he lazes in Majorca.

But let's face it, the real benefit comes from leaving it in till you retire.

It's especially valuable because we don't have a lot of salesmen out making calls, therefore you don't have to pay sales commissions.

All you have to do is call us.

So fight fire with fire.

Make the rules work for you.

Mr. Mackasey's Nonsense

WHEN FEDERAL Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey asserted in an address at the University of Calgary that the countries with the least labor disruptions were those with the most liberal labor legislation, The Calgary Herald promptly commented, "This is utter nonsense, as anyone who looks about the world can see for himself."

The Herald noted two extremes: "There is Russia, where there is a total absence of liberal labor legislation and a total absence of strikes. One could work all the way up through the spectrum of totalitarian government and near-totalitarian government in various countries to see the same principle at work. Going to the other extreme, there is Great Britain, where labor legislation, to the extent that it exists, is very liberal, indeed. It is so liberal, in fact, that Britain is being brought almost to its knees by a constant succession of strikes, many of them of a wildcat nature, stemming from the slightest of pretexts . . ."

Three weeks later, another good example presents itself—in Sweden, where labor relations are often pictured as ideal, and where even military officers have their own union and full strike rights. On Monday, 47,000 government employees were on strike, their unions demanding wage increases of around 20 per cent to offset the effects of inflation on living standards.

The Swedish walkouts have shut down the state railways, closed schools and universities for 700,000 students and also a number of government agencies, disrupted the social welfare system and—for lack of pilots—forced port authorities to turn away large ships including oil tankers.

What's that again, Mr. Mackasey?

Well might The Calgary Herald say, as it did, that it had "become clear to more and more people other than Mr. Mackasey lately that strikes in essential public services are totally unacceptable, and strikes in private areas, of the scope and nature such as to produce wide-ranging hardship, almost as much so."

Or the other Calgary daily, The Albertan, that the labor minister was "saying, in effect, that labor and management have the right to hold not just each other but the entire community to ransom—or at least, that there is no workable method of preventing them from doing so. If he were right, the outlook would be terrifying . . ."

Overhaul the Warning System

IT'S ENOUGH TO MAKE anyone wonder. Through an error by a teletype operation at the North American Air Defence Command's warning centre at Colorado Springs a mild international panic was touched off. "It was just a matter of grabbing the wrong tape," is the explanation given by NORAD, the joint United States-Canada defence organization.

This hardly seems good enough. How, in what the people have been given to understand is a highly efficient superior continental protection agency, can such a thing occur?

Apparently the operator had been instructed to transmit a test message over the broadcast circuits of United Press International and Associated Press. But instead of the test, he sent an official message that is the first step in warning North American civilians of a state of emergency. On recieving the message, television and radio station operators are supposed to check a list of code words supplied them every three months, one for each day of the period, which verify authenticity of the message. In this case the word was "hatefullness" and that was the word for the day in question.

Under the system there are several messages in tape form ready to be transmitted at a moment's notice. One is the test tape, another declares a state of emergency and a third says an attack is under way. They hang on hooks near the transmitter. The hooks are labelled and the tapes contain visible translation of the messages.

And the teletype operator picked off the wrong tape!

It is little comfort that this obvious invitation to human error was changed immediately to a sealed envelope system. This should lessen the chance of the wrong message being sent, but perhaps there should be several phases involving double or triple checking by personnel.

And the people employed at the warning centre should undergo the finest of screenings as to their ability to cope at panic stations.

Perhaps the whole warning system is wrong. There is cause to wonder when many of the 1,200 stations that received the "authentic" state of emergency warning, chose to ignore it because they were suspicious of its validity. Others apparently didn't notice it on their teletype machines. It is not known in which situation the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation found itself. It did not go off the air as others did and are supposed to in the event of a state of emergency being declared.

This should be investigated, but most important is a detailed examination of the entire system. Perhaps it is time the government of Canada pushed itself from out of the background of NORAD and called for an overhaul of the joint organization.

That "grabbing the wrong tape" has damaged NORAD's image badly. If it is to recover in the eyes of the continent some major fool-proof moves must be made.

Now, about This Post Office

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

EVER THOUGHT ABOUT how the federal administration — the cabinet, its deputies and lesser bureaucrats — plays the game of government by two sets of rules?

One book of regulations for you, another for them?

Well, think about it.

Ponder it in the context of that extra two cents per letter you're likely going to be paying soon — with first class mail rates raised from six to eight — to cover a deficit the government itself, with the help of the postal unions, mismanaged to produce.

But first, an initial thought to the prices and incomes commission which has the assignment from the consumer affairs department to police — by moral suasion — what essentially is the ever-rising cost-of-living.

This prices and incomes commission has been lecturing business, industry and labor on holding down costs. Business and industry listened for a year, going along with the commission.

But labor didn't.

And so now, squeezed by shrinking income and rising costs, industry and business have been compelled to adjust prices upwards in simple economic self-preservation.

The commission, which did nothing about labor's defiance of its guidelines, now has taken to marching into the offices of a wide variety of business and industry, demanding production of the books, and "justification" for cost increases.

So what, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford was asked the other day, was the commission going to do about cost increases by the post office and taxes — which are built-in cost increases — by the finance department?

You serious? he countered.

Yes, he was told, a two-cent increase in first class mail rates is a rise in costs for everyone, and so is the continuation of a supposedly "temporary" tax — the 3 per cent surtax on incomes that Finance Mininster Benson promised to lift but didn't — and costs are the concern of your commission, right?

Mr. Basford allowed as how "that makes sense," and said his commission was "free to look" at both the post office and the finance department.

So the commission was asked the same question and countered with the same "you serious?"

Assured the question wasn't being asked in jest, the commission, as if it had overheard Mr. Basford, said, well, it might "take a look."

If it "looks" at the finance department, Mr. Benson, having stood up under previous peeks by the commission, doesn't seem about to flinch now.

And anyway, the question of the prices and incomes commission trying to crack down on Finance Minister Benson for failing to reduce tax costs as promised may be a bit on the wildly improbable side.

But not so with the post office and those coming increases in rates.

Postmaster General Jean Pierre Cote has explained the increase is necessary to cover the department's $120 million deficit.

It was just a little more than two years ago that postal rates were raised, for the very purpose, the post office explained at the time, of the department at least making a beginning at paying its way.

Why, so suddenly and soon, then, with postal rates up, is the post office $120 million down?

Mr. Cote himself obligingly provides much of the required arithmetic.

Those "revolving strikes" — a continuation of a long series of "work stoppages," as the post office likes to call them, over recent years — cost the department $30 million in lost revenue.

Toss in another $10 million in lost revenue — and the heavy price of vandalism — that the striking Lapalme drivers cost the department in their months-long disruption and often paralysis of the mails in and through Montreal.

Add then — these are all Mr. Cote's own figures — another $24,000,000 in annual payroll costs, as the continuing price of the postal strike settlement last fall.

Into the total here must go something approaching another $2 million in the annual cost of postal staff fringe benefits.

Finally, calculate into that $120 million deficit, the 20 per cent loss of post office business.

It was budgeting on the basis of delivering five billion — that's billion, not million — pieces of mail this year. Instead, it finds itself servicing only four billion.

But you know how the service has been. Lousy, even when the postal staff has been collecting, sorting and delivering the mail.

And how postal rates have gone up — sharply on all classes of mail — to the point where some of the post office's big revenue-producing customers, such as mail order houses and retail chains, have discovered they can have their catalogues delivered door-to-door by commercial distributors more economically and perhaps more dependably than by the post office.

Let any other enterprise but government lose one of every five customers and it would be out of business.

And that's something — the question of competence — that the prices and incomes commission might "look at," as it says it might do, and consider what bearing it has on the cost increases it is supposed to be policing.

Egypt's Suez Engineers Plan for Giant Tankers

By IRENE BEESON

THE Egyptian administration and planners of the Suez Canal Authority are concentrating hopefully on the prospect of reopening the canal and are keeping their minds and talk rigidly averted from the political aspects.

At the temporary headquarters of the authority, north of Cairo, there is an atmosphere of "ready for immediate action" and talks with officials and engineers leave the strong impression that orders to go ahead and open the canal are imminent.

"We are waiting for the green light," one official said, "and work will begin immediately. The canal could take traffic at the 1967 rate about four months after clearing operations begin." It took 103 days to remove 54 obstacles in 1957, an engineer said. This time it should take less than that. There are fewer wrecks, and salvaging techniques have improved. He thought the job could be done in less than three months.

Clearing wrecks is the only problem, and the canal authority has already contacted those firms which did the job in 1957. Traffic was the main contributing factor in silting, and a survey of the southern section of the canal, in January, 1968, eight months after closure, showed that there was no silting of the canal, except about four inches of bottom soil around some wrecks.

Fifteen vessels have been abandoned by their companies but all, except the two American, are in good repair and ready to move at short notice.

The clearance operation will cost an estimated £6 million and reopening the canal to navigation between £10 million and £5 million. The 1957 clearance operation was financed by the United Nations.

The waterway will open on pre-June 1967 bases: that is to say for ships with a 38-foot draught (maximum tonnage 75,000), increasing to 40 feet draught within six months. During the 45 months the canal has been closed, the authority planners have been looking to the future, studying world oil production, consumption and transport, the growing trend towards building giant tankers, and then have been adapting plans for canal development projects to their findings.

The first step of the third stage of the "Nasser Project" for improving the canal was started in February 1967, but interrupted by the June war. It involved widening the waterway from 195 metres, permitting the transit of 125,000 tonners fully loaded and 200,000 tonners and over in ballast. Work on this step was to have been completed by 1972. The second step, to have been completed by 1975, was to increase the width to allow the transit of 200,000 and 250,000-tonners fully loaded.

There is now a revised plan to telescope the two steps and complete the full program in five or six years from the date of reopening the canal.

Canal officials pooh-pooh reports that the waterway is being forced out of business by the giant tankers and that the investment in these development projects is no longer worth while. They point out that in the five years from 1960 to 1965, European consumption of oil increased by 13.5 per cent to 378 million tons of which 206 million came from the gulf. Of this total 143.6 million was transported via the Suez Canal. Total European consumption is expected to reach about 772 million tons by 1975 and 984 million by 1980, at least half from the gulf states.

Apart from saving time and freight costs by avoiding the long round-the-Cape route, transit through the Suez Canal also reduces the risk of accidents, since the greater part of the journey is in "closed" waters — the Red Sea, the canal and the Mediterranean.

World preoccupation with oil tends to obscure the fact that there was, until June 1967, a constantly growing traffic of many kinds of vessels through the canal. In 1966, 21,250 vessels passed through the waterway, against 20,289 in 1965. Tanker tonnage represented 75 per cent of the total. Vessels other than tankers numbered 11,320. British vessels carried 16.5 per cent of the total net tonnage, coming second after Liberia. The Soviet flag came seventh and the American thirteenth.

Closure of the canal has cost Britain between £200 and £250 million a year in transport costs, and according to American sources, the loss to the world from the transport of gasoline alone amounts to about $1.000 million a year.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The siege of the Alamo in San Antonio, Texas, began 135 years ago today — in 1836 — when about 180 Texans were attacked by General Santa Anna's army of 4,000 Mexicans, during the Texas war of independence. The walls of the Alamo mission were breached after 13 days of fighting and hand-to-hand combat ensued.

Only five Texans were left alive after the battle, and these were killed in cold blood on Santa Anna's order. Sam Houston beat the Mexicans and captured Santa Anna at the battle of San Jacinto, six weeks later.

1953 — Britain granted amnesty to more than 14,000 Second World War deserters from her armed forces.

1952—The United States placed an embargo on Canadian meat after an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Western Canada.

1945—Turkey declared war on Germany and Japan.

1912—French aviator Maurice Tatubeau flew 141 miles in a record two hours.

To the Canadian Girl

Up with the Spirits

By FRANK LOWE
from Montreal

AT THIS MOMENT, with the thermometer at about 10 below, I think it appropriate that males pause for a moment and pay tribute to that bravest of all creatures, the all-Canadian girl.

As I said, most of Canada has been so frigid recently, except that rascal Victoria, that it was an over-simplification to say it was cold. Yet striding indominably through the icy air were all these lovely girls—most of them still sporting the mini.

I tell you, when I saw this I felt a lump in my throat.

Over the years I have seen and cheered some magnificent performances. Jean Beliveau's overtime goal against Boston in the playoffs a few years ago, for instance. Nancy Green's hell-for-leather drive down the side of a mountain to become the world's greatest skier, to pick another.

Yet for sheer guts, determination and refusal to admit the odds were seemingly unbeatable, I give you the all-Canadian girl in her mini in February.

First, her fashion mentors told her she wouldn't be allowed to wear the mini any longer. Yet she defied this edict—probably the first time a group of girls has defied the so-called fashion setters since Cleopatra substituted an asp for the de rigeur brooch.

But in addition to this admirable show of independence went this unbelievable courage. Even the weather could not force our all-Canadian girl to abandon her mini.

And that isn't the only good news our all-Canadian girl brings us this otherwise gloomy February. To convince us that legs are here to stay (hurrah, hurrah) she has now adopted a new and eye-filling fad.

Hot pants.

Now please, Mr. Censor, before you cut out those two words please believe me that that term is not mine. It is the official label given this new fashion fad.

★ ★ ★

Hot pants are short, short, short shorts. But they are not to be confined to the back-yard sun-bathing siesta or the recreation area.

They are to be worn confidently on the street and in the homes.

Let me tell you, if this kind of thing continues, this February may go down as the best in history. From a male point of view, at least.

I am bringing this up because just a few months ago, in the fall of 1970, my heart was full of woe. The mighty (in a fashion sense) had spoken. The mini was out.

Something known as the midi was in.

I ceremoniously burned my official Girl Watching Club card. I prepared for the worst.

But, like most males, I under-estimated our girls. I went along with Women's Wear Daily and Vogue and Harper's Bazaar, once the fashion moguls had spoken, our women — like sheep — would follow the call.

The leg and the thigh would disappear from human view. For how many years I didn't know, but I had that dreadful feeling that they might not reappear again until it would be too late.

From my point of view, that is.

I also must admit that when the miracle began I really didn't believe it. I mean, when the minis did not go away and the midis take over, I figured that maybe it was only a matter of time.

The fashion experts, with the help of our "bracing" Canadian winter, I figured, would do the trick. Who could stand up against the twin assault of Vogue and Paris and 10 below zero?

Well, now I am happy to admit that I under-estimated our girls. Their independence of thought, their immunity to frost-bite, their knowledge that a leg is a leg is a leg.

So at this most frigid and generally depressing time of the year I ask all true gentlemen to stand and drink a toast.

To our girls. To their minis. To their hot pants.

All Assistance to Hanoi in Indochina War–Short of Troops

China Won't Intervene Unless Threatened

By DENIS WARNER
From Canberra

That the Ho Chi Minh Trail is Hanoi's most sensitive nerve is no cause for surprise. Not since the Tonkin Gulf incident and the beginning of the American bombing of North Vietnam have Hanoi and Peking reacted so clamorously as they are reacting now to the South Vietnamese drive on Tchepone.

Le Thanh Nghi, the vice premier and member of the politburo in North Vietnam, arrived at Peking airport to be met by huge crowds beating drums and gongs and shouting (according to Peking Radio):

"We firmly support the Vietnamese people in the war against U.S. aggression and for national salvation. We firmly support the three countries of Indochina in the war against U.S. aggression and for national salvation." The shouting, and the gong beating, have been going on ever since.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who had been pushed out of the news in Peking, was quickly dusted off and sent to North Vietnam, and copious statements and joint statements, all of them broadcast in interminable length by Peking, have followed.

Of these the most important was the statement put put by the Chinese government on February 12. It declared that "U.S. imperialism's aggression against Laos is also a grave menace to China," and that "the Chinese people absolutely will not remain indifferent to it."

It promised that the Chinese people would take all effective measures to give all our support and assistance to the people of Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam "so as to thoroughly defeat the U.S. aggressors and their running dogs."

And it concluded by expressing the opinion that the "three peoples of Indochina are sure to win their war against U.S. aggression and for national salvation."

All of this seems threatening enough, but the key to China's intent lies in the words "the 700 million Chinese people provide a powerful backing for the three peoples of Indochina. The vast expanse of China's territory is their reliable rear area."

Rear area. Not front line.

Since the beginning of the war, China has provided military equipment and technical aid for the North Vietnamese forces. At the height of the American bombing it also maintained a large force of People's Liberation Army engineers in North Vietnam, with the task of keeping the supplies flowing along the much-bombed railway and roads.

For the past six years China's policy has been consistent. The North Vietnamese, it has made clear, will receive bountiful help, but the primary responsibility for winning the war rests with the Vietnamese people, and, in the case of Cambodia and Laos, the Cambodian and Laotian people, also.

This has always been accepted by Hanoi. Ideologically, it would be improper for Chinese troops to intervene in a Vietnamese, Cambodian or Laotian war of national liberation and to do for Hanoi what it cannot do itself.

This is not to suggest, of course, that the North Vietnamese do not intervene in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. But the reason for this is that after the formation of the Indochina Communist Party in 1930 Ho Chi Minh regarded the three countries as indivisible.

Nor is it to suggest that there are no circumstances in which China would not intervene.

They might if they thought the North Vietnamese were about to lose their war.

They would probably intervene if the war in Laos spread to the northwest and into the regiona where Chinese People's Liberation Army engineers have been building a road south through Laos towards the Mekong River.

They would certainly intervene if the South Vietnamese, with American backing, or without it, invaded North Vietnam and seized Hanoi.

They will react, as they reacted in Korea, if they believe that their vital national interests are threatened. as conceivably they would be by a hostile, anti-communist regime on their southern borders.

They are committed inexorably to the support of a victory for the North Vietnamese and their allies in Indochina, but their patience is exceeded only by that of the Hanoi regime.

After a quarter of a century of war, the North Vietnamese feel that they can afford to wait until the Americans have gone, just so long as they do not lose too much in the meantime.

Another Fit of Euphoria Could Spoil Jarring's Work in Near East

U.S. 'Push' May Wreck Peace Bid

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Washington

A couple of years ago a senior American official was sold on the idea of a Romanian peace initiative in Vietnam. He told the Romanian foreign minister: "If this succeeds, you'll get the Nobel prize and the Stalin prize, too." Another, more sagacious Romanian diplomat thereupon interjected: "And if it fails, you can write a book and get the Pulitzer prize."

That story bears importantly on the initiative for peace now going forward in the Near East. Over the past few months there has been an undoubtedly favorable evolution. But that evolution is in danger of being spoiled again by an American fit of euphoria — a disposition in Washington to shoot too far and too high and too rapidly.

The most impressive evolution has taken place in Egypt since the death of President Gamal Nasser. The new regime headed by President Anwar Sadat has tended to concentrate on Egyptian domestic affairs. It has extended the cease-fire and recently shown a willingness to open the Suez Canal in return for a partial Israeli withdrawal from lands occupied in the six-day war. Opening the canal, in effect, means an indefinite cease-fire.

An equivalent kind of evolution has taken place inside Israel. Prime Minister Golda Meir has rid her cabinet of the extreme hawks grouped in the Gahal party. She has indicated a willingness to talk about opening the canal. Though she has distinct reservations about even a partial withdrawal, some of the younger men in her cabinet — notably defence Minister Moshe Dayan and Foreign Minister Abba Eban — do not.

Lastly, there seems to have been a notable change in the Soviet Union. The Russians have not been sabotaging peace thrusts by the chief United Nations mediator, Gunnar Jarring, nor in the Big Four talks at the United Nations.

Recent visitors to Moscow come away from the talks with Prime Minister Aleksei Kosygin saying the Russians do not want another confrontation in the Near East and would like to work out a genuine solution.

This favorable constellation of circumstances lends itself to a careful managing of bits and pieces in a long, slow effort to achieve an easing of tension. Negotiations for reopening the canal might well be used to build a sense of confidence in Israel and in Egypt.

From there it might be possible to arrange a deal whereby the Israelis withdrew from occupied lands in exchange for some added legitimacy in Arab eyes. And in time the great powers, including the Soviet Union, might be brought to underwrite a new set of security arrangements for the Near East.

But the American officials chiefly involved have much more ambitious plans. They want to seize the moment for a hurryup settlement of the issues between Israel and Egypt.

To that end Jarring was gingered up to present to both Cairo and Jerusalem a detailed plan that calls on Israeli withdrawal in return for Arab agreement to peace.

As Joseph Sisco, the assistant U.S. secretary of state for the Near East, put in it in a CBS television interivew, "Ambaassador Jarring is now getting at the very crucial questions that have long divided the Arabs and the Israelis."

Not only do American officials want to move rapidly, but they have the notion they can put across an American-made peace in the Near East. They think the U.S. can deliver an arrangement which will finally cause the Arab states to say, "Goodbye, Ivan," to the Soviet Union.

Thus Sisco in his interview referred over and over again to the "American peace initiative." Some state department officials keep saying that the Russians have missed the boat in the Near East, that they are passive or even through.

Maybe these ambitious plans will work. Cairo has supposedly responded to the Jarring initiative in a positive way. Now the heat is on the Israelis to come along.

But my feeling is that the problems of the Near East are too deeply rooted to be bulldozed away by an instant solution. I doubt that political evolution has yet proceeded far enough in any of the affected states to yield a quick outcome.

On the contrary, the probability is that the Israelis — not just Mrs. Meir but the whole Labor party and a good section of the country — will dig their heels in against pressure for hasty withdrawal. At that point the Egyptians will turn to the United States and ask it to make the Israelis stand and deliver.

The Russians would then inevitably join the chorus for more American pressure on Israel — the more so as they can hardly be pleased with the well-advertised American effort to do a deal without them. If the settlement then did ensure, it would be obtained not minus the Russians, but thanks to the Soviet pressure.

That is only one of the possible ways the present effort could misfire. The point is that the time is not yet — that the Russians are very much alive in the Near East, that the Egyptians are not yet sure to make peace with Israel, that the Israelis are not yet ready to withdraw. To believe otherwise is an illusion.

Our Trade with U.S. in Jeopardy

Japan Can Rescue Canada

By ROD CURRIE
From Washington

Devious though the connection may seem, one of the best things that could happen in United States-Canada trade relations in the approaching Capitol Hill battle would be for Japan to knuckle under to American pressure on textile imports.

For it is textiles, and to a lesser extent Japanese steel, that is the cork in the bottle, behind which is building up a head of congressional steam for the renewed debate over trade legislation.

On the table will be a virtual carbon copy of the sweeping trade legislation talked to death in the last congress.

Again it is being presented by Chairman Wilbur Mills (Dem. Ark.) of the House ways and means committee, author of the bill that passed the last House of Representatives but was stalled in the Senate until time ran out on it.

Critics charge it is the most protectionist trade measure ever offered since the disastrous Smoot-Hawley Act of 1920, a restrictionist bill that many blame as the forerunner to the great depression.

But one reason opponents are not as emotional about the bill this time is that Mills, and President Nixon, seem less enthusiastic about the legislation than they were a year ago.

Still, among the things that could change the country's mood is the Japanese situation. Continued unemployment, particularly in the already hard-hit shoe-making, cotton-growing, steel-processing areas, could revive public support for harsh import restrictions.

If so, and the Japanese continue stubborn, the result could eventually be broad support to protectionist legislation in general and new hope for Mills' bill, which includes a number of specifics distasteful to Ottawa.

But the White House sees the bill as a useful bargaining weapon in its so-far-unsuccessful effort to get the Japanese to accept "voluntary" textile quotas.

If the Japanese don't soften their stance, it may be that the administration will consider the bill as a weapon to be fired, not simply brandished.

From Canada's point of view, the bill is severely critical of the operation of the Canada-U.S. auto pact and urges that Nixon either renegotiate better terms for the U.S. or exercise his authority to quit the pact. Either country may terminate with one year's notice.

Also, the bill included provision for an animal known as DISC—domestic (international sales corporations.) Any firm qualifying as a DISC, by virtue of the fact most of its business is for the export trade, would get substantial tax benefits.

The idea is that U.S. firms would be encouraged to stay at home and manufacture for the export market rather than open subsidiaries in Canada and other countries.

Another dangerous element from the point of view of Canada and other trading partners is a sort of triggering mechanism that would slap import quotas on a whole list of goods once they reach a certain level.

In essence, the argument is that if the U.S. can persuade the Japanese to hold off on textiles, all well and good. If not, and the government is forced to resort to quotas, it will open a whole Pandora's Box of demands from other industries seeking similar protection.

Management Responsible to Society

Polluters Must Think Again

By DR. JAMES GILLIES
Dean of administrative studies, York University, Toronto.

One of the by-products of the increase in interest about pollution and the environment is that senior management is going to have to re-think its responsibilities for social problems.

There is a rising tide of opinion that management is responsible not only for an effective product but for the impact of the product on society.

The leading example of this type of thinking is probably in the automobile industry, for many groups contend that when a manufacturer also sells a car he also sells some pollution. And since he sells pollution, it is argued, he has a responsibility beyond that of the ordinary member of society for clearing it up.

Similarly, it is suggested that makers of bottled and canned products are responsible for getting rid of the bottles and cans so that they do not pollute public areas such as beaches and parks.

In short, there is a movement to give producers many of the tasks formerly assumed to be those of society as a whole.

If this trend continues, it is clear that management will have to view its total activities in a much broader framework than it did a decade ago.

Not everyone agrees that this trend is good for society. Prof. Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, for example, argues that the job of business managers is to operate their firms as efficiently as possible and nothing more.

If managers do their job well, output and profits will be maximized, and out of these profits taxes will be paid that then can be used by the government to eliminate social problems. It is not appropriate or efficient, he would argue, to ask entrepreneurs to solve social problems.

Compelling as this argument may be, the times are against Prof. Friedman. In the present climate of opinion, major corporations cannot say that they have no responsibility for problems that they create through the manufacture of their products.

For example, it is very unlikely that the pulp and paper processors can ignore pressure on them to stop polluting waterways.

What is missing, however, in most of the arguments by those who insist that business does have the responsibility for solving problems it helps create, is recognition of the cost involved.

If insecticides are banned, the price of agricultural products will rise. If waste material is not placed in rivers, costs will be involved in putting it somewhere else. These costs have to be recovered. The elimination of pollution is expensive. It is, however, an expense that many people now feel is worth paying.

A question for management and for government, therefore, is this: Who should pay the cost of eliminating pollution?

If it is to be borne by business, prices will rise and the user of the final product will pay all the cost.

If the cost is borne by government, all society will pay through higher taxes.

Obviously, a combination of these two situations could be worked out.

Perhaps an even more important problem than allocating costs if finding a way to minimize the bill for clearing up pollution.

Management operating with the incentive of maximizing profits in most cases leads to the most efficient use of resources. Consequently, the pollution problem can most efficiently be solved if it becomes attractive to industry to solve it.

If incentives for management to eliminate pollution can be developed, the probability is it will be eliminated most rapidly with least cost.

The problem therefore becomes one of finding ways of making it profitable for companies to end the pollution they cause.

This might best be achieved if the government allows all expenditures for elimination of pollution to be tax-deductible and useable as tax credits against the normal taxable profits of the firm.

The government could then legitimately demand that activities causing pollution be eliminated as rapidly as possible. The cost of the clean-up would be reflected in a reduction of tax revenues.

This scheme would encourage management to do the thing it does best — maximize profits — because the more any particular management does to clear up pollution, the greater its profit potential.

In reality, the scheme does not result in a real loss to the government because presumably it would not have to spend funds for pollution elimination.

This plan could well be the most efficient, rapid and cheapest means of eliminating pollution.

Mine Near Glacier Produces After 15 Years

After more than 15 years of exploration and developing work, the Granduc copper mine beside the Leduc Glacier in northwestern B.C. now is a revenue producer.

The annual report of Granduc Mines Ltd. says the shipment of 6,092 tons was consigned to Japanese smelters.

Mill production is running at 3,000 tons of ore a day and Granduc hopes this will be increased to the full-rate capacity of 7,500 tons later this year.

Bidding among underwriting syndicates was said to be fairly keen for the new debenture issues by Saanich and Oak Bay municipalities.

Best price for $829,000 Saanich 8-per-cent debentures was tendered by Midland-Osler Securities who bid 96.345 per cent for the issue, and this was accepted. The cost to Saanich will work out at a little under 8.5 per cent.

At Oak Bay, with $278,000 debentures paying 7½ per cent, the winning syndicate was Pemberton Securities and the Bank of Nova Scotia. Their tender was 95.32 per cent, and this was accepted.

ALCAN MARKET FADES

Second half of 1970 was not so good for Alcan Aluminium Ltd. as the first half and as a result an uncertain climate for earnings was created, according to Nathaneal Davis, president.

Prices of aluminum started to decline in line with a falling demand during the second half, and this was accompanied by a progressive upward revaluation of the Canadian dollar, which also had an adverse impact on Alcan's cost structure and operating results.

Consolidated net profit for 1970 was $79,800,000 against $82,000,000 in 1969, but the 1970 total included a $9,000,000 gain on exchange revaluation of the company's Canadian dollar working capital. Excluding this item the Alcan earnings per share were $2.08 (U.S.) compared with $2.42 a year earlier.

IMASCO FINANCES

A new issue of $35,000,000 8½-per-cent sinking fund debentures due March 15, 1991, is announced by Imasco Ltd. (formerly Imperial Tobacco of Canada).

The offering is at par, and the company says it will place no further bonds senior to the new issue.

PAID BY DECEMBER

The issue of a $350,000 convertible debenture to its president, E. C. Warner, is reported in the 1970 annual report of E. C. Warner Investments Ltd.

The debenture, which is for five years, is convertible into units of one A and one B share of Warner Investments at $8.50 per unit. Interest will be paid at 2 per cent above the prime rate of the company's bankers.

The debenture is in payment of the outstanding shares of Melograin Milling Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, which were bought by the president last August, and later transferred at cost to the investment company.

E. L. Potter, the new president of Melograin has received 2,500 A shares and 2,500 B shares valued at $25,000 for his services in connection with the acquisition. The report says he is a brother-in-law of Warner.

NO COMPLAINTS

Net profit in 1970 for Burns Foods Ltd. rose to $2,401,435 (95 cents a share) from $1,976,819 (80 cents) a year earlier, an increase of 25.9 per cent.

In the same period sales rose 14 per cent to $313,102,-732.

A. J. E. Child, president, struck an unusual note by declaring 1970 had been a year of no extraordinary problems, and pleased the shareholders by announcing the company would increase its annual dividend rate from 28 cents to 32 cents a share, with the quarterly payout due March 15.

MORE BEER SOLD

Consolidated net earnings of Molson Industries Ltd. for the nine months ended Dec. 31, 1970, were little changed from a year ago, mainly because of increased sales and profits from its brewing operations.

D. G. Willmot, president, said the net earnings were $12,060,000 ($1.06 a share) compared with $12,161,000 ($1.07) in the corresponding period of 1969, but he expected the operating results for the fourth quarter of the fiscal year should be as good if not better than a year ago, despite the uncertaintly of the economic outlook.

Wholesale Gas Price Up in U.K.

LONDON (AP) — Three subsidiaries of American oil companies announced Monday across-the-board increases in wholesale gasoline and oil prices to make up for higher costs of supplies from the Middle East.

Esso, Continental Oil Co. and Texaco all said they would raise prices by half a new penny (1.2 cents) a gallon at midnight.

These increases follow similar higher prices announced during the weekend by Shell-Mex, British Petroleum and Petrofina. Mobil also is expected to follow suit.

The price increases, the fourth in the last eight months, are asked for from the distributors. How much of this they will pass on or absorb in their overheads is still a guessing game to be solved by the householder when he buys his fuel oil and the motorist when he tanks up at the gasoline station.

The increases are aimed at providing the oil companies with another £85 million ($204 million) from the British market, about one-sixth of the total increase a year the Mide East terms are estimated to cost the oil companies.

U.S. Firm Plans Help for Rolls

LONDON (UPI) — A San Francisco car dealer began efforts Monday to keep the Rolls Royce car in production and in Britain.

Kjell Qvale, who arrived from California Sunday, said he hopes to arrange a deal whereby a reorganized Rolls Royce firm would supply engines for the Jensen, the expensive sports car produced by a British firm of which he is president.

Rolls Royce cars are a profitable segment of the Rolls Royce firm which went into bankruptcy earlier this month. The British government nationalized the engine-producing branches of Rolls Royce and said the car division would be sold.

"If I had arrived with a bag of gold simply to buy Rolls and run it from America I would be destroying the very thing I had bought," Qvale said. "Rolls Royce must remain independent, with British finance and with a British board of directors if it is to keep its individuality and identity.

"I am the biggest importer of Rolls cars in the United States and I want to maintain that flow of cars at the present level as well as fit Rolls engines to the Jensen car. At present Jensen makes about 800 cars a year.

"I would like to treble that with a Rolls engine model," he told newsmen. "In the next three weeks I will be organizing British capital — backed by my firm orders — to take over the company. For myself I will happily accept a minority shareholding to save the company from being absorbed by one of the giant car makers," he said.

Alaska-Washington Shipments

Oil Protest Peaceful

VANCOUVER (UPI) — A crowd of about 4,000 demonstrators, mostly young and mostly Canadian gathered at the United States-Canada border Sunday afternoon to protest oil companies' plans to ship Alaskan oil in supertankers to refineries just south of the border in Washington state.

The crowd, some of whom arrived in chartered buses, listened and cheered as a handful of speakers attacked the plan and government inaction. About 100 policemen, half of them Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the rest deputies of the Whatcom County (Wash.) Sheriff's office, were on hand.

The demonstration was peaceful, unlike a protest against the Indochina war and deaths at Kent State University last May. During that protest Canadian youths "invaded" nearby Blaine, Washington, touching off running fistfights.

Some 40 members of the University of Victoria chapter of the Sierra Club, organized here last week, and other Victoria sympathizers, made the trip to Blaine.

Vice-president of the Sierra Club of B.C., Jim Bohlen of Vancouver, said Monday that the demonstration was highly successful. The equivalent of nearly a busload came from Victoria, he said.

Bohlen said none of the Sierra Club people took part in any demonstration at the rally.

"We are serious conservationists, not demonstrators," he said.

Rose Identified

MONTREAL (UPI) — Two key witnesses at the Paul Rose murder-kidnap trial were declared in contempt of court Monday for refusing to testify.

But three other witnesses identified Rose as the person who with a young woman rented the suburban house in which, the prosecution contends, Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte was held captive for a week by his Quebec Liberation Front kidnappers before being murdered last October.

Mr. Justice Marcel Nichols issued contempt citations against 19-year-old Bernard Lortie, one of three men charged with Rose in the Laporte slaying, and Lise Balcer, 21-year-old niece of a former Conservative federal cabinet minister, after both refused to testify.

Lortie was cited for contempt after he retained his declared refusal at his first appearance in the Rose trial last Friday.

The protesters Sunday opposed plans to bring oil from the Alaska pipeline to Washington refineries in giant supertankers. One of the refineries included in the plan was just completed at Cherry Point, Wash, 12 miles south of the border.

Several speakers Sunday referred to a computer-simulation study done in the United States which they said indicated that from two to four ship collisions could be expected in Juan de Fuca Strait in the next ten years.

The protesters said they fear that an oil spill in the Juan de Fuca strait would ruin both shores for decades to come.

A petition-telegram was circulated, addressed to Prime Minister Trudeau and calling for a 200-mile Canadian waters pollution control zone and an International Joint Commission emergency meeting on the potential danger of supertankers in the strait.

New Element Super-Heavy

LONDON (AP) — Six scientists working in Britain believe that they have artificially produced a superheavy element by bombarding tungsten targets with high-energy sub-nuclear particles.

It would be the heaviest chemical element yet known on earth. — Element 112 in the periodic table and a relative of mercury.

Calley Blames My Lai On Army's Training

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — Lt. William Calley took the stand in his own defence Monday and threw blame for the slaughter at My Lai back on the army, contending he had been drilled to follow orders and taught to suspect even women and children.

"There was never any word as to who the enemy was," he said.

"Women and children were used along with men very, very effectively in some sort of operation against American forces."

Stanfield Asks Why Raises Higher for B.C. Dockyard

HALIFAX (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Monday he wants to find out from Ottawa officials why they offered British Columbia naval dockyard employees a bigger pay boost than those in Nova Scotia.

Stanfield met Monday with members of Halifax dockyard union groups, who are threatening strike action over the wage disparity issue.

He said afterward he will confer "with responsible people in government on why the majority report of a conciliation board was offered one section and the minority report the other."

Les Brown, president of the Dockyard Trades and Labor Council, told the Conservative leader: "One thing that bugs the council is — are we second-class citizens?"

Michael Forrestall, Conservative member of the Commons for Dartmouth-Halifax East, said a dockyard strike would cripple the Maritime Defence Command and the coast guard air-sea rescue service.

The federal treasury board is reported to have offered the West Coast workers a basic wage increase of 42 cents an hour to $4.58 while Halifax workers were to get only a 27-cent boost, to $3.58.

Draft Coming For Doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department asked the selective service system Monday to draft 2,100 doctors this year in the first callup of physicians since 1969.

Teachers Stay Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite a call on school boards to take legal action forcing teachers to stay in classrooms, more than 100,000 students were affected Monday by teacher walkouts as a province-wide dispute over teacher reclassification entered its fifth week.

The Quebec Federation of Catholic School Boards earlier had decided to recommend that boards seek court action.

Provincial COURT

Every time 52-year-old Frank Ellis has appeared in Victoria Provincial Court in the past few years, he has answered charges of vagrancy or causing a disturbance by asking Judge William Ostler for a break until the fishboats go out.

Monday, he did it again after pleading guilty to a vagrancy charge and Ostler asked how long it had been since Ellis last went fishing. The reply: "Quite a while ago . . . 6½ years ago, your honor."

The judge said he regarded Ellis "with profound sorrow," especially since Ellis had only been in Victoria a few hours between the end of his last sentence and his arrest early Monday.

"I don't want to send him to prison," Ostler said, asking the court's Salvation Army representative, Brig. Marsland Rankin, for help. Rankin said his group would be glad to "start all over again."

But Ellis said he would rather go his own way and be sentenced at once. The judge's decision: one month in jail.

Bail was set by Ostler at $3,500 surety or $5,000 cash for James Jospeh Frulich, 26, of Tijunga, Calif., charged with possession of marijuana last Saturday in Victoria for the purpose of trafficking.

The bail order was issued after prosecutor Rodney Taylor said "substantial quantities" were involved and added Frulich was a recent arrival in Canada from the U.S. The case was set over to next Monday for further hearing.

Murray Glenn Coulter, 21, of Errington, also was remanded to next Monday for further hearing after four charges all dated last Saturday in Saanich were read against him.

The first was one of theft involving less than $50 at Woolco and the others were one charge of possession of marijuana, a two-count charge of possession of LSD and MDA and one charge of possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking. Bail was set at $1,000 on the narcotics matters and $350 in his own recognizance on the theft charge.

In traffic court, Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ordered a $300 fine and a partial four-month driving ban for Sandor Reiti, 40, of 878 Swan, who pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving Sunday in Victoria.

Joseph Melvin Shepherd, 20, CFB Esquimalt, was fined $200 and given a three-month driving ban after he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving Feb. 5 in Victoria with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

After Heart Surgery

Ex-Victorian Dies

Former Victoria lawyer Ted Whitley, who was active in community affairs until he left the area in the mid-1960s, died Saturday in Ottawa after major heart surgery Wednesday. He was 46.

He was a member of the Victoria law firm of Straith, McIntosh and Co. and took part in the activities of such groups as the Boy Scouts, First United Church choir and Ss. Beaver Kiwanis club.

Weekend Malahat Fatality

Coroner's Inquiry Likely

Greater Victoria Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre is expected to hold an inquiry later this week into a fatal traffic accident during the noon-hour Saturday on the Bamberton Hill section of the Malahat.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP said Monday that Donald Howse, 21, of CFB Naden, died at about 6:50 p.m. Saturday in Naden Hospital from multiple injuries suffered in the crash.

Police said Howse was driving a car north on the highway, pulled out to pass another car and then cut in sharply to avoid oncoming traffic. The Howse car then went out of control and hit a guardrail.

That impact, said police, caused the doors to open. Howse fell out of the car and into a deep, waterless ditch between the guardrail and the bank below the road.

Passenger William Wilkinson, HMCS McKenzie, was reported in good condition in Naden Hospital with multiple injuries.

In a Victoria traffic accident early Sunday, five persons were taken to hospital after a collision involving three cars. Most seriously hurt was Anthony Roberts, 24, of 477 Superior, who was in satisfactory condition Monday with head injuries.

Police said a car driven by Jean Parent, 20, CFB Naden, collided at Cook and Pembroke with a car driven by Ellen Viola Neyedley, 2723 Scarfe. They said the Parent car then hit a car driven by Roberts and mounted a boulevard, smashing a stop sign.

Others in the accident were Carol Roberts, also 24 and of 477 Superior, the only passenger in the Roberts car; and in the Parent car, June Marshall, 20, of 920 Collinson, and Lorraine Medler, 16, of 1637 Pembroke.

Recreation Plan Petition Swells

About 4,000 property owners in Oak Bay have already signed a petition supporting construction of a major recreation complex in the municipality.

The Recreation Action Group which circulated the petition, said in a press release Monday that it had more than 3,800 signatures on the petition and that the figure should pass the 4,000 mark by the time follow-up work was completed.

The RAG group will now seek an opportunity to meet with the council to present the petition.

Persons still wishing to sign the petition should contact Jack Sanbrooke at 598-1697, or Bert Bertoia at 592-3810.

UBCM Balks at Sharing

The Union of B.C. Municipalities says it will not share the cost of the provincial government's efforts to oppose an increase in telephone rates proposed by B.C. Tel.

In a letter to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, Richmond Mayor Henry Anderson, UBCM president, said Monday the cost of preparing a brief to oppose the rate increase should be paid "wholly from provincial revenue, from taxation monies received from all sectors of the provincial economy."

The letter stated there is no justification for payment of such cost from municipal revenue.

B.C. Tel has applied to increase its rates by about 15 per cent; deadline for filing opposition briefs is March 5.

Anderson wasn't available for comment Monday, but he told the Colonist last week the UBCM would not prepare a separate brief protesting the proposed rate increase.

Meanwhile, Victoria has decided to support the provincial government's efforts to oppose the increase, but at no cost to the taxpayers.

North Saanich has written a letter to Victoria informing the city of its opposition to the rate increase.

Jobless Outlay Up Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance benefit payments totalled $60.2 million in December, showing a sharp increse from $37.6 million in November because of seasonal benefits that became effective Dec. 1, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

The average benefit payment was $35.74 a week in December, compared with $35 a week in November and $33.86 a week in December, 1969.

Architect Urges Updated Pollution Control

Oil Protests 'Hysterical, Futile'

By DON GAIN

A prominent Victoria naval architect Monday dubbed efforts to eliminate oil tanker traffic on the Pacific Coast as "hysterical and futile" and, at the same time, called on the federal transport department to update its facilities for oil pollution control and prevention.

Robert McHaffie of the firm of Robert C. McHaffie Ltd said in an interview that oil tankers operating along the coast are not only inevitable but highly desirable.

He called for the construction of Coast Guard ships to escort giant oil tankers and proposed that Canada welcome the U.S. oil companies' venture of water shipment of Alaska oil as a shot in the arm for B.C. shipyards.

McHaffie said he believes that the great concern for the environmental safety of our coastal waters by local residents and federal officials is a "commendable desire" to preserve for all time the great natural beauty of our coast.

But to try to obtain this end by eliminating commerce is wrong, he added.

It would be possible to safeguard our beaches and allow tankers commerce at the same time, McHaffie said, by introducing mandatory escort services for tankers using our national and adjacent waters.

The federal government should provide specialized escort vessels, he urged, which would serve the double purpose of guiding mammoth tankers safely to and from the proposed refineries through waters extending reasonable distances from Canadian shores.

He saw this escort job as a role for the Canadian Coast Guard in the course of performing other duties.

Several vessels — equipped with the latest communication and navigational aids, with booms, boomboats, oil-skimming equipment and large tanks full of emulsifying chemicals — are all that would be required, he said, to take immediate action should there be an oil spill, "as there most certainly will be."

Present transport department facilities for oil pollution control or prevention are "laughably inadequate," the naval architect said.

And now is the time, he continued, to obtain assistance from oil companies concerned in building and placing these vessels in operation.

"If the oil companies were not interested in supporting such services, then surely their underwriters would be," he said.

The construction and servicing of such escort vessels, McHaffie said, would be a shot in the arm to B.C. shipyards.

He also disputed a recent letter to Oak Bay council from J. C. Rutledge, general director of the aerospace, marine and rail branch of the federal industry, trade and commerce department, who said that U.S. ships could be serviced only in U.S. shipyards.

"Certainly the oil would of necessity be carried in U.S. vessels, but these ships can be serviced and repaired anywhere in the world, and B.C. yards would be in a foremost position to bid for this work," he said.

His statement was backed up by a spokesman of Yarrows Ltd. shipyard, who called Rutledge's letter "a politician's reply.

"U.S. ships are repaired and serviced in Canadian yards," the spokesman told the Colonist. "It's as simple as that. They have to pay duty on repair work when they sail back to the States, but some still feel there is an advantage in having work done in Canadian yards."

"And this is in addition to emergency maintenance and repairs," McHaffie said.

"So let us welcome our neighbors' great commercial venture, insisting only on the right to escort him past our doorstep and, if necessary, render immediate and effective help when spillages occur."

McHaffie has been for years a proponent of the use large sea-going barges.

Arctic Corridor Call

'Pipelines No Curb To Damage'

Use of pipelines is not an acceptable alternative to transportation of crude oil by tankers, a spokesman for a B.C. conservation group said Monday.

Instead, a "transportation corridor" through the Arctic should be established, Jim Bohlen, vice-president of the Sierra Club of B.C. told the Colonist from Vancouver.

"It won't do to build a pipeline just anywhere; if oil and other resources must be transported south from the Arctic, it should be done in an area where any type of transport causes the least possible damage to the ecology," Bohlen said.

"The Canadian government is working on a survey of what effects pipelines will have on the ecology; the results of that survey won't be known for at least two years and until then the use of pipelines remains an unacceptable alternative to oil tankers," he said.

A transportation corridor should run from wherever the resources originate to a point were "special Arctic conditions" end, he said.

"Generally, that area is the tree line, but in some cases, it goes south of the tree line," Bohlen said.

If an area could be found where no lasting damage would be inflicted on the tundra, he said, installation of oil and gas pipelines and construction of roads should be restricted to that corridor.

Bohlen said the Sierra Club also urges B.C. residents to voice their protest against the proposed use of tankers to transport oil along the west coast and into Puget Sound, by tearing up their gasoline credit cards.

"We are encouraging people to destroy their credit cards, and send them to the oil companies in some suitable container — like a can of dirty oil," he said.

Meanwhile, members of Saanich and the Island New Democratic Party have protested "in the strongest terms" the shipping of oil from Alaska to Washington by tanker.

In a message to Roger Morton, U.S. Secretary of the Interior, the association said: "We feel that the ecological disaster which would be caused by the sinking of a tanker far exceeds any benefit the oil could bring to the people of the United States."

Restored Bus Pass Welcomed

The director of the Greater Victoria Silver Threads Service said Monday that restoration of Sunday and holiday transit passes — announced Monday — is a good move but senior citizens will have anxious moments until a decision is made on a general bus fare increase.

The director, Mrs. Catherine Horne, said Monday she hoped the pass restoration was not just a temporary measure.

Service Cut

The use of the all-day 50-cent bus pass on Sundays and holidays was discontinued Feb. 13 when B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Chairman Gordon Shrum announced a cut-back on route service to take place in Victoria March 12.

Since then there have been several protests about the bus-pass elimination, some of them made in the provincial Legislature.

On Monday Shrum announced that passes will be restored effective Feb. 28 in Vancouver and Victoria.

Decision Held

He told reporters after a Hydro director's meeting in Vancouver that although the passes apply to all persons, the directors' decision was influenced particularly by representations from old-age pensioners and low-income groups.

He said the directors also decided there will be no increase in transit fares pending a study of the effects of recent service reductions in computing Hydro's transit operating deficit.

Ratepayers Versus Saanich Council

Win, Loss and Draw In Group's First Fight

It was win, lose and draw for the newly-formed Gordon Head and District Ratepayers' Association, when its members filled Saanich council chamber to overflowing for a public hearing Monday night.

- The association opposed the rezoning of property at 3987 Gordon Head for an 84-unit row housing development. Council turned it down.
- The association opposed the rezoning of property at 2246 McCoy for use as a day care centre. Council approved the application.
- The association opposed the rezoning of the northeast corner of McKenzie and Gordon Head for service station use. Council tabled the application.

A non-controversial application, the first on the list, was passed by council. It will allow the building of a 15-suite condominium for senior citizens at 3236 Seaton by Danish Designers and Builders Ltd.

The 15 suites will be "more like homes," the developer, Kaj Pedersen, told council. Each will have its own fireplace, washer and dryer. Two-bedroom suites will sell for $14,900 and one-bedroom suites for $13,900, he said.

The day care centre at 2246 McCoy will care for the children of students attending the University of Victoria.

Speaking for the applicant, the Alma Mater Society, student Gus Agostinis said a suitable location had been sought since September. There was no place available on the university campus, he said.

The centre would care for up to 33 children, aged from under three to pre-school age.

Seventeen persons spoke in opposition to the centre, claiming among them that there would be too much traffic, the house was too dilapidated, there wouldn't be sufficient toilet facilities and "all those children would be squalling around on a half-acre of land."

UVic student Derek Thompson, who is working on the project, told the hearing that the premises had been inspected by building, fire and health authorities who had indicated what had to be done to bring the property up to suitable standards for day care use.

Council passed the application with Ald. Frank Waring, Foster Isherwood and William Noel opposing.

Municipal Clerk Gordon Hayward read three letters opposing the rezoning application of seven acres at 3987 Gordon Head for row housing and said there was a petition with 171 signatures, but some had later written to have their names deleted.

Hayward read 15 letters in favor of the application.

He said he planned to enter the design, by Victoria architect Donovan Marshall, in the Canadian Housing Design awards for this year.

A total of 35 persons stood up, one by one, to oppose the scheme. Objections ranged from criticism of "spot zoning," desire to keep Gordon Head an area of single-family dwellings, to increased traffic and, crowding of schools.

Four persons in the chamber spoke in favor of the development.

A motion to turn down the application passed, with Ald. Edith Gunning, Ald. Ed Lum and Ald. Leslie Passmore opposed.

In opposition to the service station rezoning at McKenzie and Gordon Head were three letters and 19 persons in the chamber.

Objectors pointed out that the lot was too small for the type of service station currently being built, that there were too many service stations already, and that the intersection was an awkward one now.

The application was tabled on the motion of Lum.

Three Fires in Boarding Section

Incendiarism Shuts Down Part of St. Ann's School

Victoria police and fire department officials remained silent Monday about an intensive investigation into suspected incendiarism which Sunday caused temporary closure of the boarding school section of St. Ann's Academy.

But some idea of the scope of the inquiry was given by Sister Frieda Marie, supervisor of the academy at 835 Humboldt, in a statement praising firemen and policemen for their "absolutely and utterly understanding effort."

It was learned the probe of three fires last week in the boarding school section is involving interviews with all 42 girls in that section plus others in the academy.

There was no indication when the investigation might end and Sister Freida said some of the 42 girls might go to their homes while others "will be given the utmost consideration." The 42 include girls from Hong Kong, Peru and Mexico as well as Canada and the U.S.

The first two fires occurred about 24 hours apart Monday and Tuesday mornings last week. The first saw a mattress and bedding catch fire in a third-floor dormitory section, the second involved a curtain in a doorway next to the room where the initial fire occurred.

Fire department officials praised Gertrude Eichberger, 18, in charge of that part of the dormitory, for quick action in throwing both sets of burning materials out of a window.

In the third fire, shortly after noon Friday, about $100 damage was caused when backdrop curtains were ignited in an auditorium attached to the boarding school section. Firemen put out that blaze and a teacher who found the fire required hospital treatment after suffering a minor heart seizure.

Sister Freida, in praising the investigators, named Fire Chief Eric Simmons, Deputy Chief Carl Coates and Sgt. Peter Voth and constables Dale Melin and Barrie English of the police force for their "devotion" to the job.

She said these men worked much of the weekend at the academy and added: "I think the public should know that this is the kind of men who are in the public service."

An indication of the tension in the area came at about 8:40 a.m. Monday when another fire alarm was sent in from the academy. It turned out that someone mistook smoke from an incinerator for the real thing.

Breakwater Bid Altered By Sailors

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club advised Oak Bay council Monday night it was withdrawing its application to construct a 600-foot long timber pile breakwater in Cadboro Bay.

In making the announcement, Ian Stewart, the lawyer who has been representing the club, said plans were instead being developed to construct a rock breakwater at reduced height.

Stewart, whose comments were affirmed by Ald. Brian Smith, said that immediately after a Feb. 18 council meeting at which council decided by a narrow margin not to oppose the plan, yacht club executives met and decided to withdraw the application.

Although Stewart met with Mayor Frances Elford about the breakwater last Thursday, she said in an interview Monday afternoon she was unaware of a revised plan.

Ald. Shirley Dowell, who has been accused of a conflict of interest because her husband is a member of the yacht club and because she was herself president of the club's women's auxiliary at least 12 years ago, rose on a point of privilege at the meeting to make her position clear.

She observed it had been suggested she should not vote on the issue because of her connection and said: "I would take this step unhesitantly if I thought I was influenced by past association with the club."

by this former link and that although it would be easiest to abstain from voting, such a step "would be bending to pressure and not accepting my responsibility."

Ald. John Goult, who had voted against the breakwater while Mrs. Dowell had supported it, said he had found her to be "a most forthright and honest individual" and that while he disagreed with her he had "the greatest confidence in her integrity."

Of 117 letters received by council this week concerning the breakwater, 96 were opposed to it. Some of the letters were from persons

She said, however, she did not believe she was influenced requesting their names be removed from a RVYC petition supporting the breakwater.

One of these observed she had signed the petition only after being told "that the breakwater would be under the surface at all times and would not be visible even at low tide."

Several council members also expressed disapproval of Mayor Elford's announced intention to use her powers under the Municipal Act and request council to reconsider the breakwater.

"Regardless of the decision, no one was going to win and everyone was going to lose," said Ald. Alan Hoey. "By bringing this back, Oak Bay council is the loser."

The mayor said she thought she would have been remiss in her duty if she had not asked for reconsideration.

Stewart did not indicate when the club's new proposal would be brought forward.

College Word Soon

A final decision on the site of a proposed Pacific College, an international school designed to serve Pacific Rim countries, is expected to be made by the end of March.

Bertram Butler, of 513 Transit, chairman of the college site selection committee, said there has been no major progress since options were taken last month on two pieces of property on southern Vancouver Island.

Lightfingers Repents

It's a little late for returning Christmas gifts but when Albert Reynolds opened his front door Friday night, there on the doorstep were the three strings of Christmas lights he gave away, involuntarily, more than two months ago.

And with them was a note. It said:

"Dear Concerned: Sorry we had to borrow your lights but we needed some for Christmas. Next year we might need to use them again and I know you will be pleased to let us have them. Thank You, Yours truly."

The note was signed with a question mark.

"My husband put the lights up on Dec. 18 last year," Mrs. Reynolds said Monday, "and they were stolen the same night. I doubt if he will string them again this year. It's a lot of work. Perhaps, if the person will just come to the door we will loan them to him."

The Reynolds live at 736 Transit, Oak Bay.

Stolen Goods Recovered

Victoria police, who reported Feb. 3 a woman had returned to her home at 2616 Blackwood to find $4,735 worth of furniture and other items missing, said Monday items worth a total of about $3,556 had been recovered.

There were indications the initial evaluation had been high. However, police did not say all items had been found and there was no word on possible charges.

Canadiens Forced to Rally To Gain Tie with Canucks

Vancouver Canucks have not been having too much success since their unexpectedly-good National Hockey League start but they are at least proving tough for established clubs in recent games.

Canucks are only 3-9-2 in their last 14 games, but two of the victories and both ties have come against the original six.

Since last January, they have tied Chicago Black Hawks, scored their first win over Detroit Red Wings, astounded by defeating Boston Bruins and, Monday night, got their first point in the five games they have played against Montreal Canadiens.

Canadiens came into Pacific Coliseum as the hottest team in the league, having won five in a row in a streak in which they scored 25 goals and gave up but six.

They were 7-1 in their last eight games, playing like the team they were a few seasons back and eyeing second place in the East Division. But they had to overcome 0-2 and 1-3 deficits to get a point from the scrappy West Coasters.

Andre Boudrias, 165 pounds of hustling ex-Canadien, scored the 2-0 and 3-2 goals, making it 22 scoring shots for the season.

EARLY GOAL

Ted Taylor got the other Vancouver goal, opening the scoring in the first minute of play to start Canucks off to a first-period domination. And it was Taylor who was involved in an incident which seemed to get Canadiens started.

The Easterners were being roundly outplayed and were 0-2 trailers when Taylor tangled with John Ferguson and got the worst of it in a scrap which soon took in Canucks' Mike Corrigan and Terry Harper of Canadiens.

CAME TO LIFE

After things had quietened down and penalties assessed, Canadiens came to life and J. C. Tremblay and Jacques Lemaire scored less than two minutes apart to tie the score.

Marc Tardiff got the 3-3 goal on a power play in the ninth minute of the third period.

Leafs, who blasted their way from 4-13-0 to 20-19-3 and then went into a 2-5 slump, have won nine and tied one of their last 11 games and a playoff spot is all but a matchematical certainty.

One of their Sunday goals was scored by Dave Keon, giving him a career high of 33 goals in one season. He has 18 games left in which to add to it.

Meanwhile, Bobby Hull, who looked ordinary in a Saturday defeat in Montreal, set a league record when he led Chicago Black Hawks to a 6-5 win over Los Angeles Kings by scoring three goals and making two scoring passes.

AHEAD OF RICHARD

Hull now has a career total of 27 three-goal games, one more than produced by Maurice Richard. It was Hull's sixth three-goal game against expansion teams and his third of the season.

In other Sunday games, New York Rangers outclassed the Wings, 4-1, and St. Louis Blues got two power-play goals from Frank St. Marseille and a scoring thrust from penalty-killer Craig Cameron to beat back Buffalo Sabres, 3-1.

Child, Moilanen Pace Labatt Win

Labatts scrambled back from a nine-point deficit at halftime to down Drake Hotel, 62-54, in a Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League sudden-death semi-final game at Central Junior high school Monday night.

Labatts, second-place finishers in the regular schedule, and league-champion Hotel Douglas begin a two-game, total-point final tonight at Oak Bay high school starting at 8 p.m. Second game of the series will be played Thursday at Victoria high school.

Labatts, who won five of six games against Drakes during the season, fell behind, 24-33, at the half before Tom Child and Ollie Moilanen caught fire.

Child scored 15 of his 23 points in the final half and Moilanen scored 12 in the second half to end up with 14 points for the night.

Jim Cunningham had 14 points for Drakes, all in the opening half.

Oak Bay ended Claremont's hopes of a perfect season in the High School Senior Girls' Basketball League by defeating the B.C. champions, 30-27, Monday at Claremont.

The win snapped Claremont's 14-game winning streak and gave Oak Bay a second-place tie with Victoria, both teams having finished their 16-game schedule.

The battle for fourth place, the final berth in the Island tournament, will go right down to the last games Wednesday. Mount View moved into a tie for the position with Belmont by edging Esquimalt, 32-30, at Esquimalt while visiting Victoria defeated Belmont, 40-34. St. Ann's Academy, two points away from fourth, kept its hopes alive with a 34-31 victory at Reynolds.

Jo-Anne Van Shaik led Oak Bay with 14 points. Lorna McHattie had 17 for Claremont.

Mount View's win came despite a 17-point output by Esquimalt's Delma Corby. Kathie Lovelace was high with 10 points for Mount View.

Victoria came from behind a 16-19 halftime deficit and were led by Sue Holland's 14 points.

Plucky Veteran Tops Ladies Golf

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (AP) — Ruth Jessen, fighting back from cancer and five major operations, won the $60,000 Sears Women's World Classic Sunday.

"I'm happy to be alive," said Miss Jessen, "Much less playing championship golf. It's my first event in 18 months — and what a way to come back."

The veteran from Seattle shot a one-under-par 72 on the windy Port St. Lucie course for a 54-hole, two-stroke victory total of 220, one over par for the 6394-yard layout.

Miss Jessen had rounds of 76-72-72 and roared past second-round leader Sandra Palmer to claim the $10,000 winner's purse, highest women's tour payoff in history.

Miss Jessen, a pro since 1956, said she was "weak and nervous trying to return to competition." She underwent surgery last year for tendonitis in her left elbow and had not won on this circuit since 1964.

Her series of operations began in 1963 with a disc fusion. Miss Jessen had a neck tumor removed in 1965, a rib removed in 1967 and major cancer surgery in 1968.

BASKETBALL

Penny May Establishes Canadian Hurdle Mark

VANCOUVER — Penny May of Victoria set one of five Canadian open records at the two-day Achilles Indoor and Western Canada Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association track and field meets completed Sunday at Pacific Coliseum.

Miss May won the 50-metre women's dash in the WCIAA final in a time of 7.1 seconds for the Canadian open and junior, B.C. open and native and WCIAA marks.

Three records fell in the Achilles meet Snezanna Hrepevnik of Yugoslavia and Debbie Brill of Maple Ridge both cleared the high jump bar at six feet, one inch. Miss Hrepevnik was declared the winner because she took only one try to make it to two tries for Miss Brill.

Australian Kerry O'Brien, who set a world two-mile record earlier in the week at San Diego, broke the Canadian mark in the 3000-metre run with a time of 7.58.0 minutes.

Californian Bob Seagren missed on three tries for the world pole vault record at 17 feet, seven inches and settled for a Canadian open mark of 17 feet, two and one-quarter inches.

The other record was set by University of Alberta's Brenda Walsh in the WCIAA competition. Miss Walsh ran the 300-yard dash in 39.6 seconds.

Hosts Dominate Alberni Spiel

PORT ALBERNI — Port Alberni curlers ran off with most of the honors at the 1971 men's bonspiel at the Alberni Valley Curling Club.

A rink skipped by Connie Magnusson took the Grand Aggregate by compiling a 10-1 record and also won the primary Colonist event as well as finishing as runner-up in the other primary, the Alberni Hardware event.

Ron Dunn's Nanaimo entry, skipped by Winston Allen, was the only rink to defeat Magnusson. And an AVCC curler, Henry Reider, had a part of that action as lead for Dunn's quartet.

Port Alberni-veteran Bob Cummings lost his first game in both primary events, then went unbeaten from there to take both secondary events. And Harry Stirzaker and Warren Paul made it five out of six events for host curlers by winning the Western Motors and Port Home Builders events, respectively.

Stirzaker also finished third in the Colonist event while Paul was runner-up in the secondary Woodward event.

Victoria Juniors On Shuttle Team

Five Victoria players, four from the Racquet Club and one from the Esquimalt Badminton Club, were named to the B.C. team which will compete in the Canadian junior championships in Montreal March 27 to 29.

Sue Gower, Dave Howells, Dan Lyle and Bill MacPherson of the Racquet Club and Liz-Anne Ogden of Esquimalt will join Mainland players Mike Epstein, Sue Kolb, Kathy Henry, Janice Holloway, Rex Moore, Alan Smith and Lyn Polson. Miss Polson was a member of the Esquimalt Club, recently moving to the Mainland.

A 13-member Victoria team competed in the B.C junior championships in Richmond over the weekend. The event was used to choose the provincial team.

Miss Kolb deafeated Miss Polson, 8-11, 11-6, 11-3, in the final of the women's singles while Epstein, gold medalist in the badminton competition of the Canada Winter Games in Saskatoon last week, downed Smith, 15-12, 15-2, in the men's single final.

Other results:

Boys Doubles—Epstein and Moore def. Howells and Lyle 15-6, 13-18, 15-9.
Girls Doubles—Kolb and Henry def. Polson and Ogden 8-15, 15-8, 15-10.
Mixed Doubles—Epstein and Henry def. Polson and Howells 18-3, 15-1.

All four members of the Alberta rink in the Canadian Senior Curling championships bend brooms to nurse a rock into the house on the way to an 8-7 win over Manitoba. Bob Robertson, left, Bert Palmer, Sam Stevenson and skip Stu Pearce gained a share of a four-rink tie for the lead with two wins Monday.—(CP)

HALIFAX — Gordie Moore of the Victoria Curling Club ended the first day of play in the Canadian senior men's curling championship sharing a four-way tie for the lead with Alberta, Saskatchewan and Quebec.

The B.C. champion, who lost the 1969 title in a playoff, was off to a big start with victories over New Brunswick and Newfoundland.

Stu Pearce of Alberta, Burley Townsend of Saskatchewan and Harry Coles of Quebec, oldest player in the championship at 67, also won their first two starts.

Dr. Wendell MacDonald of Prince Edward Island, making his seventh consecutive appearance in the event, was also unbeaten. However, he drew the bye on the first draw and is a victory in arrears.

Moore, who has Gordon Hooey, Jack Smith and Dick Pick, the only returning member of his 1969 rink, in support, had a bit of trouble before getting by Maurice MacDonald of New Brunswick, 8-4, but steamed by John Pike's Newfoundlers, 15-1.

New Brunswick led by 2-1 after three ends and was 4-4 after six ends. Moore managed to blank the seventh, scored one on the eighth end and stole one on the ninth end and two on the 10th end.

Newfoundland, beaten, 15-6 by Saskatchewan in the morning, was 0-8 before it scored against Moore.

Third Game Today

Comox Quartet Misses Sweep

VANCOUVER — Chuck Perry and his Comox lineup of Mary Davie, Bob Carscadden and Barbara Gustafson just failed Monday in a bid to represent B.C. in the Canadian mixed-rinks curling championship.

Champion of the Pacific Coast Curling Association, Perry took the first game of the best-of-three provincial final, 8-4, but Kelly Carin of Kamloops, carrying the colors of the B.C. Curling Association came back to take an 8-7, extra-end victory in the night game.

Decider is scheduled this morning at the North Shore Winter Club. The winner goes to Saint John for the Canadian final, scheduled March 8-12.

Perry, who represented Quebec in the Canadian men's final in 1966, made a great recovery after losing his first game in the eight-rink, double-knockout PCCA playoff.

The 36-year-old air force communications expert started his "B" side comback by sidelining favored Barry Naimark of Vancouver. Then it was a win over Wayne Saxbee of Abbotsford to reach the "B" semis.

Waiting there was Dr. Ken Neuman of Vancouver, winner of the "A" side, and Perry made it three in a row to reach the "B" final.

On Sunday morning, Perry clobbered Cliff Christianson of Vancouver, 11-1, and then romped to an easy win over Dr. Neuman.

A three on the third end gave the Comox rink a 5-2 lead. It was 8-2 after seven ends, Dr. Neuman got two back on the eighth end but conceded on the ninth end with Perry counting two and about to try a draw for three.

ST. JOHN'S — Only Kay Baldwin's Alberta champions made it unscathed through the first day of play in the Canadian women's curling championship.

The Albertans had to go to an extra end to nip Manitoba's Mabel Mitchell, 10-9, in the first round but breezed by Nova Scotia's Clare Purdy, 14-3, in the evening.

It was the second defeat for Nova Scotia. All other rinks broke even in their first two games to indicate that quite a scramble is in the making.

Ina Hansen of Kimberley, a two-time Canadian champion who made a successful comeback by winning the right to represent B.C., was beaten, 9-7, by Prince Edward Island, then came back for an extra-end, 9-8 win over New Brunswick.

Manitoba evened its record by sneaking past Quebec, 8-7, while defending-champion Saskatchewan and Newfoundland also engaged in two close battles.

Saskatchewan, skipped by Vera Pezer, just made it, 11-9, against Sue Anne Bartlett of Newfoundland but then lost a 5-4 knockout struggle with Helen Sillman of Ontario.

A five on the eighth end beat the pesky Newfoundlanders, who had a 7-6 lead at the time.

But Newfoundland made a lead hold up in following with a 9-7 decision over Prince Edward Island.

Miss Pezer, who was vice-skip for Joyce McKee when Saskatchewan won the Canadian championship in 1969, has Miss McKee playing second rocks and experienced Sheila Rowan as vice-skip.

Prairie Rinks Share Lead

KAMLOOPS — Rinks from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta won two games each Monday to share the lead after the first day of the Canadian schoolboy curling championships.

Manitoba eased by Nova Scotia, 5-4, in the second round after needing an extra end for a 9-7 win over Prince Edward Island. Alberta trimmed New Brunswick, 12-5, and followed with a 6-5 squeaker over Ontario. Saskatchewan topped Ontario, 9-6, and then nudged British Columbia, 9-8.

In other first round games, Northern Ontario scored a 10-6 extra-end win over Quebec and B.C. trimmed Newfoundland, 8-5. In second round games, Quebec topped Newfoundland, 11-5, and New Brunswick scored a 9-4 win over P.E.I.

J. C. Snead Tops Golf With Chip for Eagle

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A 60-yard chip shot for an eagle three propelled J. C. Snead to a one-stroke victory Monday in the weather-plagued windup of the $110,000 Tucson open golf tournament.

Snead, a 29-year-old nephew of golfing great Sam Snead, had a final-round 66 for 273 and won by a single stroke over lanky veteran Dale Douglass.

Douglass, in a neck-and-neck fight with the hulking Snead most of the way in the 36-hole finale, closed with a 67 for 274.

Snead, a former professional baseball player who didn't take to golf until the age of 25, broke out of a tie for the top when he holed out the clutch chip shot on the 580-yard 15th hole on the 7305-yard par-72 Tucson National Golf Club course.

It was his first victory in 3½ years on the professional circuit and, in addition to the $22,000 first-place prize, it assured him of spots in the PGA National Championship and the Tournament of Champions.

Douglass, who had missed the cut in three previous starts this year was alone in second and took the $12,500 prize.

Hale Irwin, who had sparkling rounds of 66-67 in the marathon finish, was at 279 and tied for third at that figure with George Archer and Al Mengert. Mengert had a final 68, Archer a 70.

Ken Fulton of Montreal had a 71 Monday and a 290 total, good for $253. Gary Bowerman of Toronto shot a 72 for 292 and $220.

NEXT GAME: Tuesday—All-Stars vs. Vancouver at Kerrisdale.

Time is running out for Vancouver Centennials, now almost certainly doomed to a second-place finish in the Coastal Division of the B.C. Junior Hockey League.

Centennials, who picked up two points Saturday night when they won in Kelowna while Victoria Cougars were being beaten on home ice by Kamloops Rockets, took an 8-2 thumping in Vernon on Sunday.

Essos, pushing hard for second place and still with a chance of winning the Okanagan Division, had a 49-29 shooting edge as they dominated play.

John Price and Ed Johnstone each scored twice and Price assisted on four goals for a six-point performance. Tom Reilly scored both Vancouver goals.

In Sunday's other game, Rockets stayed two points in front of Essos and moved within eight points of the leading Penticton Broncos by dumping Chilliwack Bruins, 3-1, to complete a road trip to the coast.

Kelly Pratt handled all the Kamloops scoring after Norm Poole had given Bruins the lead early in the second period. Bruins were at 1-1 with three minutes and six seconds left.

Barb Berthiaume Sparks Pin Win

Flower power was in evidence at Mayfair Lanes Sunday as the Mayfair Flower Shop team took the team title in the 30th annual Victoria Women's Bowling Association tournament.

Led by Barb Berthiaume, who rolled a 619 series, the winners totalled 2606 scratch and had 335 pins in handicap for a total of 2941, both totals setting records. Red's Motel held the previous records of 2579 scratch and 2819 with handicap in 1968.

Second-place Roto-Rooter Service were 155 pins behind.

It was the first 600 series in Mrs. Berthiaume's bowling career and was the best in the two-day team event. Dot Bennett was second with a 575 series.

Hilda Spearman had the high single game of 237 followed by Helen Young's 221.

Singles and doubles will be bowled Saturday and Sunday, completing the tournament.

Tom Lippa's try, on the last play of the match, gave Victoria Titans a 10-6 win over the Hornets at Mount View Monday and a share of the lead in the High School Senior Boys' Rugby League with Claremont.

Titans were awarded a penalty kick from 28 yards out and Lippa nudged the ball a few inches ahead, picked it up and raced in to give Victoria a 8-6 lead with the try. Rudy Bianco added his second convert of the match to close out the scoring. Dave Craven scored Victoria's other points on a try and Norm Baker scored Hornets' six points on a pair of penalty goals.

Columbus stayed within striking distance of the Pacific Coast Soccer League lead on Sunday but the Vancouver club had its title hopes jolted by a league ruling.

Lost to the club for the balance of the schedule and the first game of the playoffs is playing-coach John Milner, a former English professional.

Milner was suspended for 12 games for the use of foul language followed by the striking of referee Walter Collie. The incidents occurred in a league game against Croatia on Feb. 14.

Even without Milner, Columbus was too much for Westminster Blues, who went down, 0-2, in New Westminster action.

Bruce Wilson opened the scoring 28 minutes into the first half and Gino Vazzoler finished at 10 minutes of the second half.

Result moved Columbus, which has a game in hand, within three points of Victoria United and four points ahead of Eintracht.

Eintracht was upset in Sunday's other game, losing, 0-2, to Paul's Canadians. Metro Gerela got the goals nine minutes apart in the second half.

Gorge Molsons vaulted from third-place tie in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division into a first-place deadlock by blanking Village Green, 4-0, Sunday in Duncan.

Molsons and Cosmopolitan Royals are on top of the league with 21 points, one more than Victoria West but Gorge holds a game in hand over the other two clubs.

Peter Brett scored two goals and Dan Henry and Rick Lamoureux had one goal each in Molson's victory.

In second-division play, London Boxing Club retained its four-point lead, battling to a 3-3 deadlock with second-place Victoria West at Beacon Hill Park.

Third-place Cement Man edged to within two points of Wests with a 3-1 victory over Labatts at Reynolds Road Park and Cowichan Saints shut out University of Victoria Norsmen, 3-0, at Beacon Hill Park.

In third-division matches, Songhees upset second-place Prospect Lake, 2-1, and Oak Bay trounced East Saanich, 8-2.

Driver Killed

Softball Group Re-elects Hall

Other officers elected were Jim Scullion, first vice-president; George Wetherell, second vice-president; Ken Squire, treasurer; and Pat Hall, secretary.

City Wrestler Wins Gold As Winter Games Conclude

SASKATOON — The second Canada Winter Games ended Sunday, leaving a mountain on the flat prairie as a lasting legacy and showing that western hospitality includes near-perfect weather.

Long-underwear weather of a normal Saskatchewan winter never materialized during the 10-day spectacle — average temperature was 21.4 degrees — which brought together more than 2100 athletes from 10 provinces and two territories to compete in 16 sports.

Officials were still counting tickets but they confidently predicted that attendance would top 150,000 at the Games which cost $1,600,000 to stage. Of the total, $400,000 went to building Mount Blackstrap, 25 miles south of the city.

Besides the 300-foot mountain, which became a Games symbol, a three-storey department store filled with tents and trailers to house athletes was another unique feature.

While older competitors found it difficult to sleep in the village because of the noise, the kids had a ball.

ONTARIO DOMINATES

Ontario athletes, with their blazing red and white uniforms, dominated competition as they did at the first Winter Games in Quebec City in 1967.

But tiny Prince Edward Island got a share of the glory, being named winner of the Centennial Trophy, awarded for the first time to the province which shows the greatest overall improvement from the previous Games.

Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener closed the Games Sunday before a packed house at the 3500-seat Saskatoon Arena. The Games had been opened by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Burnaby-New Westminster, B.C., will be the site of the next national sports competition, the Canada Summer Games in 1973.

HRYB WINS

B.C. athletes won five events on closing day, finished second in two and third in three others to bring the province's second-place total to 24 golds, 15 silver and 25 bronze medals.

Four of the five wins were in wrestling with Taras Hryb of Victoria winning the 178-pound class, Terrence Sharp of New Westminster the heavyweight, and Steve Adams and Stephen Martin, both of Burnaby, the 14 pound and 154-pound class, respectively.

B.C. representatives also won the women's duael slalom ompetition.

B.C. teams finished third in men's and women's volleyball and table tennis.

SHE'S TOP INDIVIDUAL

Top individual gold medal winner was Wendy Nicholson, 14-year-old gymnast from Toronto. Wendy got three golds by winning on the balance beam, the uneven parallel bars and as best all-round performer.

However, the big winner outside of athletic competition was Tom Evershen of Oakville, Ont., who won the $60,000 first prize in the Lucky Dog Lottery, first legal lottery in Saskatchewan.

In hockey, Ontario's powerful Peterborough Lions won seven straight by lopsided scores to take the gold medal. Alberta took second place, Quebec third and a surprising Nova Scotia crew finished fourth after winning their division.

DUNCAN RINK FOURTH

The Duncan rink skipped by Brenda Harper lost a heart-breaking, 6-4 decision to Saskatchewan in a bid to win a bronze medal in curling for B.C. The Duncan girls finished fourth when their last game was decided by a measurement on the final end.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Cohoes Keep Swim Trophy

Juan de Fuca Cohoes successfully defended the City of Victoria Trophy, winning the two-day Victoria and District swimming championship which concluded at Colwood's Centennial Pool Sunday.

Cohoes finished with 894 points and second-place Victoria Olympians had 622. Royal Roads's four-man team finished with 15 points.

Olympians' Gail Williams and Cohoes' John Geyssen won the Jack Todd trophies for girls' and boys' open individual medley relays.

Judy Thompson, Stanley Davis and Jay Ranson of Olympians and Doug Portelance of Cohoes won four out of five events.

Because nothing less will serve British Columbia

B.C. Tel has a billion-dollar plan

By 1980, nearly three million British Columbians with almost two million telephones will be making twelve million phone calls a day. A projection — which, in view of British Columbia's great potential, may well require frequent upward revision.

The figures today are nearer two million population, one million phones and six million daily calls through a telephone network which cost about $750 million to create.

During the current decade, that cost figure must be more than doubled if customer demands for increasingly sophisticated and expanded phone services are to be met. The B.C. Telephone Company is obliged to meet these customer demands.

That's why, for the 1970s, our expansion program is a Billion-Dollar Plan — a plan to build new and improved switching, transmission and distribution facilities costing an average of more than $100 million in each year of the decade.

Nothing less will serve the phone service demands of British Columbians!

Our plan is expressed here in dollars — but it's really a people plan; a program evolved by the people of B.C. Tel to meet the demands of the people of British Columbia for communications services.

It includes development of new skills and talents among the growing number of B.C. Tel men and women; the training and retraining of telephone people to assure they're able to design, build and maintain communications installations incorporating the newest technology.

And it's a plan which includes provision of this new technology — and the customer services that go with it — not just to the metropolitan areas, but to the whole of this vast and rugged province.

It's a Billion-Dollar Plan demanded by the people we serve — the people of British Columbia.

Scott Refuses Nomination

From UPI, Reuter

George C. Scott, proposed for a best actor award when the Oscar nominations were announced in Hollywood Monday, said in Torremolinos, Spain on Monday he refused to accept the nomination, adding: "I'll have nothing to do with the Academy."

When nominated a decade ago for best supporting actor in The Hustler, Scott said then he wouldn't accept the award. He lost to George Chakiris.

This year, voicing his opposition to the Oscars once again, Scott was nominated for playing Gen. George Patton in the biographical movie.

Patton captured 10 nominations in all, the same number as Airport. Other pictures nominated for best movie of the year were Five Easy Pieces, Love Story and M-A-S-H.

Competing for best actor are Melvyn Douglas (I Never Sang For My Father), James Earl Jones (The Great White Hope), Jack Nicholson (Five Easy Pieces) and Ryan O'Neal (Love Story).

Actresses nominated for best performance of the year were Jane Alexander (The Great White Hope), Glenda Jackson (Women in Love), Ali MacGraw (Love Story), Sarah Miles (Ryan's Daughter) and Carrie Snodgress (Diary of a Mad Housewife).

Actors nominated for best supporting roles were Richard Castellano (Lovers and Other Strangers), Chief Dan George (Little Big Man), Gene Hackman (I Never Sang for My Father), John Marley (Love Story), and John Mills (Ryan's Daughter).

Best supporting actress: Karen Black (Five Easy Pieces), Lee Grant (The Landlord), Helen Hayes (Airport), Sally Kellerman (M-A-S-H) and Maureen Stapleton (Airport).

Of the 20 performers nominated for the 43rd annual Oscar derby, only Miss Hayes and Douglas had won previously, Miss Hayes for best actress in 1931 in The Sin of Madelon Claudet and Douglas as best supporting actor in 1963 for Hud.

Nominated for best achievement in directing were Federico Fellini (Fellini Satyricon), Arthur Hiller (Love Story), Robert Altman (M-A-S-H), Franklin Schaffner (Patton) and Ken Russell (Women in Love).

490 Convicts On Strike

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — An estimated 490 convicts at nearby McNeil Island federal penitentiary failed to report to work Monday in what appeared to be a work strike, Warden Jacob Parker said.

He said the convicts about half of the prison's prisoner population, remained in their cells. Parker said no action was contemplated immediately against the prisoners.

Oscar for Chief George?

His Heart Soars 'Like a Hawk'

NORTH VANCOUVER (UPI) — In his role as the Cheyenne Indian Old Lodge Skins in the movie Little Big Man, chief Dan George greeted good news with a deeply-felt "My heart soars like a hawk."

"I don't want Indians called second-class people any more," he stated.

The 71-year-old honorary chief of the Tse-Lal-Watt Salish band of North Vancouver has always treated his fame as an achievement for his people rather than as a personal triumph. It was the same Monday.

"I feel I have achieved what I wanted to do — to try to give the native people a lift," he said.

"Eight years ago I dedicated myself to try to do something that would give a name to the Indian people. Even if I'm not selected, I feel I've attained my goal," he added.

In the movie, Chief George plays a wise Indian leader who adopts Dustin Hoffman, gives him the name Little Big Man, and greets him with the "soaring heart" line whenever he returns to Old Lodge Skins' nomadic band.

In real life, Chief Dan George is the same dignified, calm, intelligent sort of man. He worked with his back and hands for most of his life, and only entered acting when in his 60s.

Band Concert, Recital Both Enjoy Success

By BERT BINNY

There was plenty to see and hear at the McPherson Playhouse Sunday — a students' recital in the afternoon and a band concert in the evening.

Sponsored by the Victoria Musical Art Society, 19 young artists contributed with varying degrees of success to the afternoon performance.

These included four solo pianists, two trios and two accompaniment artists.

Amond the soloists Linn Hendry was quite outstanding: her La Chasse (Paganini-Liszt) was a joy to hear.

Kwok May-Ling, with the first movement of Bach's Italiam Concerto, went at it, hammer and tongs, like a virtuoso with decades of experience; occasionally to the point where one wondered if her enthusiasm and concentration had not carried her away. Heather Pidcock encountered difficulities with her Schubert Impromptu.

The all-girl trio of Nancy Meredith (violin), Jane Pearce (flute) and Jocelyn Abbott (piano) were very well balanced and provided a satisfactory sense of unity.

The younger all-boy trio of Marc Destrube (violin), Gary Russell (cello) and Roger Scobie (piano) did not quite achieve this. Individually, they did fine, but as a unit they need more experience together.

Ken Millar gave a suitably dignified and unruffled performance with his cello solo and James Kennedy was always acceptable with his recorder as was Sandra Pumfrey with a clarinet solo. And violinist Stephen Calder is always both facile and reliable.

Blake Carter and Tony Carter provided performances in mime; the former with the Motorist; the latter with Finale. This was all new, different and entertaining — the Motorist drew lots of laughter — but probably the performers should give some more thought to the fact that, while they are thoroughly familiar with every last gesture they make, the audience is not and should be afforded a little more time to catch up.

There were three singers. Andrea Mellis, accompanied by Jim Furmeston, displayed a strong, clear voice in Che Faro from Gluck's Orpheus. Miss Mellis gave the item a lot of feeling without harm to the musical content.

Jennifer Angus and Roger Beavan, both accompanied by Mrs. Bulman-Fleming, seemed to be saddled with unsuitable songs. Jennifer had a delightfully clear voice and good presence and it seems a pity that such assets should be expended on a ditty written 200 or more years ago.

Roger was not heard to the best advantage either. His Road to the Isles was better than When Sweet Anne Sings but neither seemed to constitute his particular vocal cup of tea.

The annual spring concert by the Victoria City Police Youth band went on at 7:30 p.m. with John Baker conducting and band manager Const. Gerald Cox as emcee. This affair drew a larger audience than the afternoon recital.

The band has a really potent brass section but, when the score allowed the woodwinds to get a note or two in edgewise, they proved very efficient. Percussionists enjoyed a gala night with the Jamaica Suite, one of the most entertaining items on the program.

Playing Sousa's Thunderer march, the band took the name of the deed and threatened the very plaster on the walls. Likewise, Bobby Gimbey's centennial contribution, Go B.C., received robust treatment.

Holst's first suite in E flat was quite well done while Scottish Rhapsody — a sequence of Scottish airs arranged by Howard Cable — was rescued from threatening disaster by trombonist Bob Cadwallader and trumpeter Doug Pigot.

Clarinettist Stuart Hemmings was heard in a Weber concerto and his accompanist was Elaine Archibald, herself an accomplished clarinettist, who doubled on the 88 for the occasion.

Proceeds from the concert are to assist in sending the band to Saskatoon for the Saskatchewan Centennial Music Festival in the Summer. Another concert is planned for June.

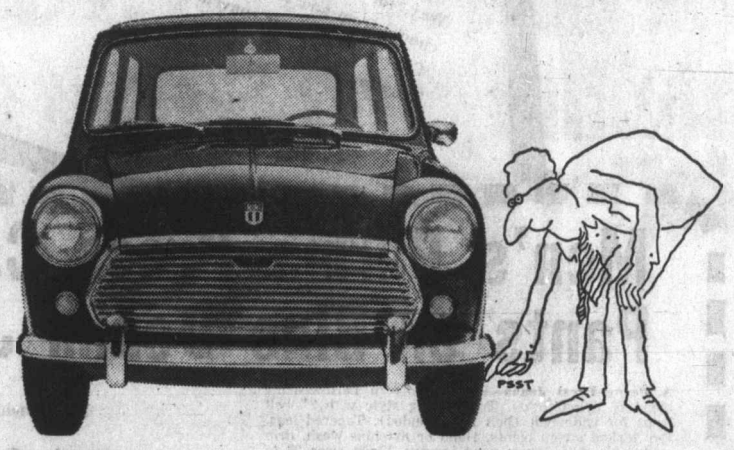
The Austin Mini: only $1745*



To make it any lower we'd have to let the air out of the tires.

$1745 never went so far. Because that's all it costs* to own a new Austin Mini. And although the Mini is a small car, it's all car. It's a great little performer —one that really hangs in there on the corners, parks on a dime, pulls through anything with front-wheel drive traction. The Mini gets up to 40 miles to the gallon, too. So you'll save a lot on gas. In fact, "save" is what Mini is all about; over 2,000,000 owners will testify to that! See it.

And while you're visiting your dealer kick the tires of Mini's big brother, Austin America. Another great value!

Police Car Theft Fatal

ELYRIA, Ohio — A motorist rescued from a wrecked car on the Ohio Turnpike by Highway Patrolman J. S. Johnson stole the patrolman's cruiser. He then plunged it into the flood-swollen Vermilion River and drowned.

Johnson said he came upon the crash near here Saturday, pulled Marshall Mason, 46, Indianapolis, Ind., from the wreckage and put the man in the cruiser. He was starting back for the wreck when he saw his car disappear down the turnpike.

Johnson joined another officer in a second squad car and they pursued Mason, who crashed through a bridge spanning the Vermilion and sank in the water. His body was recovered Saturday night.

Johnson said Mason appeared to be drunk.

GENEVA, Switzerland — Swiss authorities are still puzzled over the disappearance last week of Soviet engineer-physicist Victor Vaghin and his family from their Geneva apartment. The nuclear project on which Vaghin was working was not secret, they said, and Vaghin had not sought political asylum.

□

FREDERICTON — After nearly 12½ years as New Brunswick Liberal leader, more than 10 of them as provincial premier, Louis Joseph Robichaud has announced he will step down in the spring. Robichaud, 45, said in a statement he would remain until the end of the legislature session which opens March 2.

□

VENICE, Italy — Police have announced the recovery of 15 paintings stolen from the canal-side palace of American hieress and patron of the arts Peggy Guggenheim. The paintings, all by modern artists, were valued at about $640,000.

□

WASHINGTON — Former astronaut Michael Collins has resigned as an assistant secretary of state for public affairs, the White House has announced. Collins said that he had accepted "a new and challenging" position as director of the National Air and Space Museum at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

□

LONDON — The British are making it up with Benjamin Franklin. A group of aristocrats said, on the anniversary of George Washington's birthday — they will restore the house where Franklin lived, off and on, in London from 1757 to 1775. In 1775, due to "some unpleasantness" in the North American colonies, Franklin moved to Paris where he became ambassador for the revolutionary Americans.

Art Barratt, artist, Nanaimo, B.C.

At 390 Canada Manpower Centres across Canada, we're in the business of bringing together workers and jobs. We depend on employers to list job opportunities with us. With our telecommunications network, we put employers in touch with available workers from coast to coast, and often we train workers and move them to new job locations. □ Take the case of 29-year-old Art Barratt of Nanaimo, B.C. Married with four children, he found it difficult to support a family from his earnings at part-time and seasonal work. He went to his Canada Manpower Centre and, because of his interest and talent in drawing, was put on a training course at the Kootenay School of Art. At the end of the course he found employment as an artist with the Vancouver Island Regional Library. □ Like thousands of others trained under the Canada Manpower Training Program, Art was able to put his new skills to work at a full-time job. And another Canadian employer found a skilled worker he needed.

Oak Bay Council

Firm No-Deal On Hill Overtures

Oak Bay council made it clear Monday it wants no part of a deal to link the acquisition of Blueberry Hill with the development of the Municipally-owned Riding Academy property.

In a letter to council, architect Helen Johnson Murphy, who has an option to purchase the Island Road property known as Blueberry Hill, said: "We wish to purchase and develop the 9.3-acre tract of land known as the Riding Academy . . .

"Partial payment toward the purchase of the Riding Academy property would be made with the 6.3-acre portion of (Blueberry Hill) . . . This property would become a park as appears to be the desire of council and area residents.

Should council not wish to pursue the matters listed, I shall have no alternative but to proceed with the subdivision of the Island Road property."

"I don't want any part of linking the Blueberry Hill property with the Riding Academy," said Ald. Douglas Watts. "If we sell the Riding Academy, we will do it by a competition with any application considered on the same basis and not by these various people with trade-ins."

Watts said he doubted that council could legally trade property around anyway.

"We have had nothing," said Ald. John Goult. "A suggestion from a so-called development team of what they might like to do . . . at a price they declined to name.

"This is no way to conduct negotiations."

He said "if they have a substantial proposal, they can submit it and it will be considered as any other application."

"We must have concrete facts before we consider this or any other proposal."

Council also observed that Blueberry Hill is privately owned and that council has had nothing to do with its being fenced off to prevent public access.

Mrs. Johnson had met privately with council following its last meeting.

In other business, council decided:

- Children would use sleighs during periods of snow whether or not a specific area were set aside for them, so that for the sake of safety, Eastdowne Road would be closed for this purpose despite objections from the area residents.
- Council would oppose B.C. Telephone Co.'s proposed rate increase.
- A request from the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health that its inspector be used to help cover areas in southern Saanich will be tabled until the areas concerned could be clearly delineated so that "an interim arrangement" might be made until Health Minister Ralph Loffmark announces a new cost-sharing formula.

Road Cleanup Bid Favored

With about 50 colored slides, the chamber was shown dilapidated buildings, abandoned cars, run-down shops, overturned garbage cans and broken sidewalks.

In a brief to the municipality, the chamber made the following recommendations:

- The municipality should take the lead in a general facelift program for Esquimalt Road.
- Broken gutters, sidewalks, curbs and flowerbeds should be repaired immediately.
- Municipal parking lots should be screened with trees and flowers.
- "A good percentage of concrete on boulevards" should be torn up and replaced with grass, shrubs or flowers.

If the municipality does its share to beautify Esquimalt Road, Bishop told the committee, the chamber will enlist the help of businessmen and residents to do their share.

"We seem to have failed in the past, especially businessmen. They failed to renovate their premises, to reinvest some money into their property. The result is an ugly mess along Esquimalt Road," Bishop said.

He told committee that 80 per cent of all people wanting to get to Esquimalt are using Esquimalt Road.

"You gentlemen, must take the lead. There is no group in this community that has more influence and power. When you discuss this year's budget, take a part of the parks funds, take a part of the public works funds, add a good deal, and get a start on the project," Bishop said.

He also told committee that the city of Victoria is equally guilty of neglecting its part of the thoroughfare.

"That makes it even more urgent to beautify our part; the moment you drive into Esquimalt, you should notice the difference," he said.

(The Victoria-Esquimalt boundary at Esquimalt Road is Rothwell Street.)

Mayor Art Young said the chamber's presentation was "impressive and informative." Many improvements could be made for a small amount of money.

"We'll certainly have more than a good look at the whole situation and I believe that we could get a good start on this project this year.

All Jobs Nearly Filled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nearly all the 1,000 civil service jobs Premier Bennett said were available last month have been filled.

A spokesman for the Civil Service Commission said Monday that 882 of the jobs have been filled since Bennett rescinded a no-hiring policy last month.

About 2,500 vacancies are filled in an average year in the 27,000-member civil service, the spokesman said. There are only 100 jobs to go before the vacancies created by the government holdback policy are filled.

Sidney's Bylaw Tackled

Sidney's building bylaw is being completely redrafted, the municipal council was told Monday night.

Mayor Stanley Dear explained that under the present bylaw the municipal building inspector cannot refuse to issue a building permit, but can refuse a permit for occupancy.

"I don't think it is good enough to say go ahead and build and then not allow a person to occupy the building," he said.

Ald. Norma Sealey emphasized new houses cannot be continually hooked into Sidney's already "overloaded sewer system."

"I also question the whole principle of placing the onus on one person (building inspector)," she said, and suggested council check into building permits.

ERMA BOMBECK and Trash

Do We Have a Choice?

I take pollution seriously. It's just that I don't know what to do about it. We're a five-garbage can family and no one feels more rotten about that than I do. But where does the individual begin?

I guess that's what intrigued me about a story I read recently in the New York magazine of Adele Auchincloss, wife of novelist Louis Auchincloss, who declared a one-woman war against trash. She deplored the over-packaging of consumer goods, especially toys and hardware.

In the grocery, she slipped the vacuum-packed, see-through sealer of bacon into her cart and returned the extra box to the manager. She did the same with French bread, returning the long bag saying, "I'll carry it myself, the French do." She also rejected the plastic bag and cardboard in laundered shirts, saying, "I'll carry them home on hangers myself." She bought only reusable bottles and whenever possible recycled her refuse (using coffee grounds for mulch).

Her 11½ pounds of newsprint each week she conceded were essential. However, the seven pounds of unsolicited mail was a big contribution to her trash heap that she was helpless to control.

When you think about it, this country has been hell-bent on a disaster course of cleanliness for the past decade. Our fish has mercury. Yet, it is wrapped in a clear, airtight bag, rewrapped in a pound and half of leak-proof paper and then stuffed into a brown bag at the check-out counter to ensure its freshness.

Our drinking water is recycled from sewers. Yet, we drink it from a disposable paper cup packaged in a protective box to fight germs.

And the remedy for this big national headach is contained in a glass bottle, plus a neck of cotton and a box to protect the glass.

Mrs. Auchincloss isn't some nut picketing sesame seeds because they get stuck in your teeth, she's one woman who is genuinely concerned.

On some days when I hallucinate, I visualize a "Hanger Government" where all the oversexed coat hangers of the world have over-populated until I am holding up the shirts in the closet and they are running things.

I see families with 38 bottles of mouthwash on a shelf wearing a gas mask to breathe. I see children standing around in trash up to their shoulders in clothes that have been pre-soaked, bleached, whitened, brightened, spot cleaned and guaranteed to make other mothers turn in their aprons.

I suspect we as consumers hold the key to part of the answer. How much convenience are we willing to sacrifice? Do we even have a choice?

Founders' Day

Guide-Scout world flag was raised at Victoria's Causeway Sunday in honor of Monday's birthday of founders, late Lord Baden Powell and his wife who lives in England. More than 50 Greater Victoria Guides, Rangers and Brownies turned out for the event. Detergent Firms Say

Housewives Concerned With White

That is the view of a group of University of Toronto scientists and, true or false, detergent companies apparently do see the housewife as a woman concerned only with whether her wash is as white or whiter than her neighbor's.

There are three elements in detergents which have scientists worried:

● Phosphates which speed the growth of algae in lakes and streams, cutting off oxygen for marine life and turning lakes into swamps.

● Enzymes which doctors say have caused allergic reactions — skin and lung diseases — in workers in detergent plants, and whose effect on housewives has never been tested.

● Nitrilotiacetic Acid which some companies began using as a substitute for phosphates and which scientists fear may be even more of a pollutant.

In December, detergent companies voluntarily agreed to suspend the use of NTA pending further testing and at the beginning of February, Lever Brothers said it was discontinuing the use of enzymes. Union officials at a plant owned by Procter and Gamble, makers of Tide, the largest selling detergent in the U.S., also said enzymes were being taken out. Procter and Gamble, however, refused to comment.

With NTA banned at least temporarily and enzymes apparently on their way out as the darling of the detergent industry, that leaves phosphates. And American housewives are pouring phosphate-laden detergents into the nation's waters at the rate of five billion pounds a year.

Phosphates soften water and disperse dirt in clothes and were regarded as a major breakthrough when they were put on the market in the 1940s. The detergent industry, through its spokesman, the soap and detergent association, maintains there is no proof that phosphates are killing lakes and streams and has vowed to fight any attempt to ban them.

The industry's second line of defence — offered in testimony before the House committee on government operations last April — is that instead of banning detergents, communities ought to build more sophisticated sewage treatment plants to take phosphates out before wash water is discharged.

Comitas Clubs Plan Weekend Convention

A big weekend is coming up for the combined Vancouver and Victoria Comitas Clubs. About 40 members will gather here for the second annual convention. Registration will start Friday morning at a wine and cheese party to be held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Murphy on Barkley Terrace.

After the annual president's council meeting at the Cordova Bay Road home of retiring president, Mrs. Kenneth Wiper, Saturday morning, there will be a luncheon for all members.

A meeting and installation of officers will follow. Mrs. Thomas Dalziel, is the new president; Mrs. A. C. Dimock, vice-president; Mrs. Don Taylor and Mrs. W. Pendray, corresponding and recording secretaries; Mrs. R. Gale, treasurer; Mrs. G. Ferguson and Mrs. P. Weston, social conveners and Mrs. Leo Bawlf, literary.

Later a tour of the George Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children on Haro will be taken, as both clubs have been devoting a larger portion of their charitable drives to cerebal palsy and allied causes.

The Sisters of Queenswood House of Studies have invited members to use their heated pool after the tour Saturday.

A banquet at Lougheeds Hall will wind up the day's activities. Jim Nesbitt will be the speaker and has chosen a centennial theme. At the banquet an initiate, Mrs. E. Domke will be inducted into the Victoria club.

Sunday there will be a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Vincent Smith on King George Terrace. At this time there will be a "remember when" display of memorabilia covering the various activities dating back to the 30s.

Verna Beek, chairman of the convention, says, "everyone is looking forward to a wonderful time."

Members expected from Vancouver include Mrs. G. J. Cooke, Mrs. R. Dewar, Mrs. P. L. Dill, Mrs. H. V. Edwards, Mrs. B. L. Ellison, Mrs. R. H Heywood, Mrs. R. McBain, Mrs. H. Taylor, Mrs. K. Raj Pagely was elected president of the Victoria Cultural Association of India and Canada at the annual meeting held recently at the YM-YWCA.

Prime Minister Trudeau, Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson, Premier Bennett and Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock were among those who sent telegrams of congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. James Clayton on their recent golden wedding anniversary.

The Claytons were married in Liverpool, England. To celebrate their anniversary they had an open house at their home at 463 Chester.

They have one son, Maurice, who, with his wife Ann and their three children, Christopher, Stephen and Lucy, lives in Ottawa.

The Lieutenant Governor John Nicholson will travel to Vancouver today to attend the annual Brotherhood Inter-Faith dinner at the Schara Tzedeck auditorium on Oak Street. Capt. R. Cheng will be aide-de-camp.

Nicholson will also attend the B.C. Regiment (Duke of Connaught's Own) Sergeants' Mess dinner Friday at the Beatty Street Drill Hall. Col. J. W. Toogood will be in attendance.

Nicholson, Public Works Minister William and Mrs. Chant, Victoria Ald. Clyde and Mrs. Savage attended the 50th anniversary dinner of the former Kumtuks Club at the Empress Hotel Saturday night. The name of the club was changed to the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club in 1930.

Other special guests were Mrs. Elizabeth Aulin of Kamloops, first vice-president of the Canadian federation; Mrs. Lois Haggen of Grand Forks, provincial president; Miss Ruth MacMahon, Washington state representative and Mrs. Nell Laws, past vice-president of the Seattle club. Altogether 180 members and guests from Washington, Oregon and British Columbia were at the anniversary dinner.

Miss Hilda Cryderman, a federal civil servant appointed by the prime minister to the public service staff relations board at Ottawa, and charter president of the Vernon, B.C., BPW club spoke on Opportunity and Responsibility in the 70's.

There were golden centrepieces for the tables. Entertainment was provided by the Pepsicords of the Sweet Adelines chapter.

MR. AND MRS. Harold Cattle, 2925 Milgrove, are pictured at their golden wedding anniversary party. They were married in North Battleford, Sask. and homesteaded in the northern part of that province until moving to B.C. in 1949. They have lived in Victoria neearly nine years. (Ellis Shipman)

Those Soldiers Are No Ladies

CAMBERLEY, England (UPI) — Pub manager George Duncan has complained to the nearby women's army college about lady soldiers using bad language in his pub and having bad manners. "Their behavior keeps my regulars away," he said. College officials said new recruits were possibly the cause and that an investigation would be made.

Four-Inch Crappie Proves Lot of Fish

TORONTO, Kan. (AP) — Eldiva Sturman has won the state's first fishing contest of 1971 — with a 2½-ounce catch.

Mrs. Sturman entered the annual Toronto reservoir fishing contest Thursday and fished from 7 a.m. until 9:57 p.m., three minutes before the contest closed. When she hauled in her fish the crowd of 50 anglers let out a cheer.

Mrs. Sturman's catch, a crappie, weighed 2½ ounces and was four inches long, just double the length of the minnow she caught it on.

No other fish was taken in the contest.

First Big Step In Legislature

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dorothy Mae Taylor has become the first Negro woman ever elected to the Louisiana legislature. Mrs. Taylor, a Democrat employed in the civil district court clerk's office, polled 2,276 votes to 231 for her Republican opponent, James Dixon, also black, a radio and television technician.

Kennedy Portrait Brought Anguish

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Aristotle (Jackie) Onassis agonized over the official White House portrait of her late husband, President John Kennedy, because she felt "she could not conceive of any portrait of him there without his brother (Senator Robert Kennedy) in it too," portrait artist Aaron Shikler reported Sunday.

Shikler, who painted the recently-unveiled executive mansion portraits of both Kennedy and the former first lady, said Mrs. Onassis gave him little advice on what she wanted in the late president's portrait except, "I don't want him done the way everybody does him with the puffiness under his eyes and every shadow and crease magnified." He wrote of these experiences in the current issue of McCall's

She gave the artist many photographs to study, then came up with one she said had "haunted her for days." It was a photograph from the New York Times showing Kennedy and his brother turned away from the camera with a glimpse of the profile and bathed in a half light.

Shikler said it was "painfully evocative of the burden of the presidency, the closeness of their brotherhood, and the premonition of tragedy."

"She could not conceive of any portrait of him there without his brother in it . . . the next time we talked about the portrait, we made little mention of the photograph. She knew that it was not possible. And yet she had given me a clue of the kind of feeling that she hoped a portrait of the president would be."

Move Backfires For Prostitutes

ROME (UPI) — The morals squad found a new weapon against streetwalkers this week. Twenty-eight prostitutes who lighted bonfires on suburban sidewalks on chilly Roman nights were fined $12.80 each under a 1930 law banning use of "firearms, fireworks, rockets, aerostats with flames or other dangerous fires or explosives" in public places.

Women's Lib Among Students

Summer Jobs Bias Charged to Province

By NANCY BROWN

The provincial government discriminates against women university students by not offering them summer employment, says one of the members of the recently-formed Victoria Women's Liberation Group.

"I could work as hard physically as most men for the kind of pay they get, but I haven't a hope of a summer job on the survey or road crews, simply because I'm female — no one will try to find out if I'm capable of hard work," said Mrs. Sharron Gray, a first-year education student at the University of Victoria, during an interview.

She said women have to be content with jobs as waitresses or store clerks at minimum wages.

And through that kind of experience, according to Mrs. Gray and psychology student Rion Basile, a women's liberationist is born.

"Society has determined rules for women as stereotypes, and has denied them opportunities," said Miss Basile.

"I don't want to be told that I should or should not do something because I am female — it sounds trite, but women are people, too, you know."

Victoria, she said, is unlikely to see any large-scale women's liberation demonstration, unless reason fails along the line somewhere.

"Demonstrations alienate people, and so we'll try to explain and persuade first," she said.

Basile

She listed immediate objectives of the group, apart from the general weeding out of discriminatory attitudes and events:

- Get Victoria newspapers to drop the separate categories for male and female help wanted.
- A Mother's Day write-in campaign to Ottawa asking for implementation of the women's status report.
- A June interview with Prime Minister Trudeau when he attends the constitutional conference in Victoria, to ascertain his stand on women's rights and the royal commission report.

The Victoria group meets Fridays and Sundays in the lounge in the Student Union Building at the university, although it is hoped to meet in members, homes eventually.

Friday meetings deal with complaints, gathering information and sharing it, while the Sunday meetings are "rap" sessions to talk about general issue of womanhood.

Both women feel it is unfortunate that the phrase "abortion on demand" has become synonomous with the liberation movement.

"The need for abortion to be removed from the Criminal Code and become a medical matter is one facet of the work that needs to be done," said Miss Basile, "but it should still be a medical decision to be taken as seriously as any other form of surgery."

Mrs. Gray said one project for the Victoria group will be to try to get into the junior high schools with birth control information.

"Parents like to hide their heads in the sand and pretend their children don't experiment with sex, but this is the age group that does experiment because they don't know how to call a halt," she said.

The junior high is also the place where a good deal of damage is done through lack of opportunity for girls to develop as individuals, she said.

"In some schools girls are able to take some woodwork or auto mechanic courses, but they are so few we point them out as wonders, when it should be an automatic thing.

"Why can't girls be carpenters? Why can't boys be cooks?" she asked.

Mrs. Gray said that another thing men fail to realize is that by discriminating against women, they also hurt themselves.

By keeping some jobs, such as bank tellers or nursery work for women only, they keep wages down and close off jobs for themselves, she said.

She felt there is a great need for child care centres to be open day and night.

"There are many people, men and women, with a great talent for child care — it should be regarded as a vocation and paid accordingly, not demeaned as a thing any woman should do by staying at home whether she wants to or not," said Mrs. Gray.

Brief 'Frightens' Trudeau

Housewives Pay Call

OTTAWA (UPI) — Housewives should receive security for keeping house and raising children, the federal government was told Monday.

In a brief to Prime Minister Trudeau and 10 members of the cabinet, the National Council of Women of Canada (NCWC) recommended that a housewife should have the right to participate in the Canada Pension Plan, the government operated pension scheme.

"In assuming the role of an unpaid service worker, the woman in the home is popularily assumed to be building up two equities," the brief said, one within society and one withing her marriage.

"In point of fact she is building up neither because both depend on the continuation of her marriage."

Trudeau reacted unfavorably to the suggestion that women in the home are performing a service to society and thus deserve some income security.

"It frightens me to think you are going towards a society where everyone gets paid for everything," the bachelor prime minister said.

Mrs. W. W. Menzies, of Winnipeg, said the unpaid work women performed in the home represented 11 per cent of the gross national product, or $8 billion.

Menzies said it was not right to keep the housewife in this position.

"By viritue of the economic contribution made by the mother and the housewife to the economy, we must offer her security that devolves on her and that will survive the marriage," she said.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the women it would be hard to calculate the imputed income of housewives and thus their share of the Canada Pension Plan.

He said for the moment the government was not considering making the pension plan voluntary, enabling housewives to join if they desired.

At present, all those employed on the "legitimate" labor market must contribute to the pension plan.

The women also recommended in their brief the appointment of a woman as senior officer responsible for the treatment of women offenders, who would work on developing appropriate programs relating to women in penal institutions.

Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer told the women he thought they were asking for too little.

"I would like to attract numerous women at various levels of the department not totally in correction but in prevention," said Goyer, who holds responsibility for penal institutes.

Goyer said women should be involved in the "whole process" but he did not suggest how women could be appointed to his department.

Trudeau told the members of the council that the whole cabinet was considering the report of the royal commission on the status of women in Canada in much the same way as the women were studying the report through a nation-wide survey they had undertaken.

The brief mentioned an item in the royal commission report which criticized the federal government for not appointing women to a special committee studying the safety and efficacy of oral contraceptives marketed in Canada.

Health Minister John Munro said "The fact had occurred to us rather late" during the study, when it was too late to change things.

ANNE LANDERS on Odd Couples

Flatmate Ad Brings Surprising Replies

Dear Ann Landers: I lost both parents recently and am now living alone in a three-bedroom flat. I want to remain here but it is too expensive unless I get someone to help with the rent. A few days ago I ran an ad for one or two parties to share this apartment. The responses were unbelievable. My phone rang like crazy. Nearly all the calls were from homosexuals. The few normal people who called were elderly folks who said they were looking for companionship. That's the last thing I want. I am not lonesome, I just want someone to help out with the rent.

Please tell me, Ann, how can I advertise for a roomer or two without attracting homosexuals?—No Odd Couple Wanted

Dear No O.C.W.: Some newspapers will co-operate by printing the line "only straight males need respond." The gay world understands this vernacular and will respect it. Most homosexuals have no desire to go where they are not welcome.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl with a problem I don't know how to think about. I was looking through some family pictures and found a snapshot of my mother in her wedding dress. She had her hands folded over her stomach and she looks sure enough pregnant. Should I tell my mother I know I was born a little early and ask her how come? Please hurry your answer. This is bugging me. — Saskatoon Doubts

Dear Sass: You weren't born a little early, honey — your folks may have been married a little late.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have been married three years. We have a beautiful baby boy who is 11 months old. My wife is a nervous person and I am afraid she will make our boy nervous. She never lets me play with him or feed or diaper him. She says I don't know how to do these things and I should not try to interfere with her. If I pick up the baby, my wife takes him away from me and says she is afraid I will drop him.

Doesn't a child need the attention of both parents? I want to be a father but my wife won't let me. We both read your column every day. Maybe if you print this letter and give her some advice she will listen to you. She sure won't listen to me. — Left Out Dad

Dear Dad: Let's hope she will listen to the pediatrician. Call and ask him to speak to your wife. It sounds as if she needs professional help to overcome her anxiety. A nervous mother can indeed make a child nervous. Your uptight wife is being grossly unfair to you and your son.

A Lovelier You

Knit Fashions Still Growing

By MARY SUE MILLER

Knit fashions continue to grow — and grow. The newsiest are fine gauge single knits, cotton knits with silky surfaces, knit denims and polyesters with jacquard and tapestry patterns knitted in. Colors come clear, with black the important exception.

Desiging is soft, sometimes even slinky. In the separates group, shrinks have really shrunk. Other tops come close, only sleeves balloon out. Skirts widen to dirndl and ruffly proportions. Below-knee to above-ankle lengths get the nod. Pants, knickers and short-shorts are right in there.

In the dress department, possibly the first target of spring shoppers, a totally fresh look prevails. Just by way of example, there are smashing giant plaid coat dresses, long "tunics" rippling with pleats, rows of fringe circling a late-day dress. All body-touching.

Therein is the key to wearing ... the undertouches. Bras, panti-girdles, the new again all-in-one, slips and petticoats must shape languidly to the figure without show of seam or wrinkle.

Princess Given Job as Clerk

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Princess Christina, the 27-year-old sister of Crown Prince Carl Gustaf, has joined the Swedish foreign ministry as a clerk, ministry officials said. The princess has worked as a trainee in the press section of the foreign ministry since the beginning of the month — without a salary.

Adrian Mitchum says:

Fade ugly age spots and make your hands look years younger.

What would you give to have your hands youthfully smooth-looking . . . free of those ugly weathered brown spots*? How about just $2.25? That's all it costs for a jar of scientifically medicated cream that has worked for thousands of women. Its name is ESOTERICA. It's medicated to break up the masses of pigment under the skin. Just massage it in. You'll see a noticeable improvement in less than six weeks with this product developed by a reliable 57-year old laboratory. ESOTERICA goes on smoothly, vanishes instantly, leaves no oily trace. If you'd like to make your skin look whiter, smoother, youthful-looking, try ESOTERICA, only $2.25. At the fine stores you would expect.

New Place 'n Press Excelon floor tile from Armstrong

Place 'n Press

We've eliminated the thing people hate most about tiling a floor. Spreading the messy "guck". Simply peel off the paper. Place tile in position. Press down. It sticks by itself. The adhesive is already on the back.

And Place 'n Press Excelon goes anywhere as long as the floor is flat. On top of old linoleum or tile. Even directly on most basement concrete. You can do a 9 x 12 foot floor in 1½ hours.

Remember the name is what you do.

Builders Return In Port Hardy

PORT HARDY — The walkout of 350 construction workers that began here Friday ended Monday with reported company agreement to a number of basic demands.

The men, who have been working on the Utah Mine project at this northern Vancouver Island centre, left the job over numerous issues. Most involved safety and medical facilities.

Union officials said complaints had been building up for some time and came to a head with the injury of worker Larry Makurta, who fell 40 feet from the roof of a building under construction Thursday.

Makurta was reported in good condition Monday in Vancouver General Hospital.

The return to work began with the afternoon shift and followed a flight to Port Hardy by 12 union official from Victoria and Vancouver. The officials met with Utah Mine representatives and the tradesmen.

John Schibli of Victoria, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building Trades Council, said as he prepared to leave Port Hardy that the company had agreed to these basic demands:

- Some changes to be made in the first aid staff;
- Improvement of the ambulance service;
- Construction of facilities for a sea plane base;
- Withholding of an order that had been given for the firing of a union shop steward.

Schibli said remaining issues would be the subject of talks Wednesday in Vancouver between officers of the B.C.-Yukon Building Trades Council and Los Angeles-based officials of the Utah mining organization.

A union spokesman said an upshot of the walkout was that numerous tradesmen visiting their families in Victoria and Vancouver didn't return to the job here Monday because of the uncertainty of the situation. They were expected to return today.

The workmen were reported to have been particularly disturbed because of the difficulties that arose when Makurta was injured.

A union official said the man was driven many miles over exceptionally rough road and flown to hospital at Alert Bay before being transferred to Vancouver.

There were also complaints that men hired by the company to administer first aid did not have the experience necessary to deal with accidents that occur on construction projects.

Workers developing the mining site here represent about a dozen trades. They took a strong stand recently in an attempt to prevent pollution of the waters by the mining operation.

Other Victoria union officials who made the trip here with Schibli were John Gallow of the laborers, Frank Peters of the teamsters and William Isbister of the electricians. All three are business agents.

Tourism Prompts Shouting Match

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — A former federal travel bureau official criticized Ald. Ted Jenkinson for his "hostile" attitude to tourism at a council committee meeting Monday night which at times developed into a shouting match between the two.

"I have never encountered anybody as hostile to the tourist industry as you," Alan Field, member of the Chamber of Commerce tourist committee and former director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, told Jenkinson.

He made the offer after hearing from the chamber's tourist committee that mall merchants have offered $10,000 towards the operation of the satellite for five months on the basis that the chamber puts up $2,500.

Jenkinson had complained that Field criticized council in a speech to the Lions Club the previous week.

At that meeting Field had said the council was not spending one dollar per capita allotted by the provincial government for use in tourist promotion.

Except for One

Later in the council meeting which at times developed into a shouting match Field said that he had met with "a reasonable degree of objectivity except for one."

Field told Jenkinson that in an argument "if its a matter of volume I think you'll win, if it's a matter of logic I think not."

The tourist committee had gone to council to request that it comply with the terms of the Municipalities Aid Act which directs that one dollar per capita of the provincial grant be spent on tourist promotion.

Council currently spends more than $8,000 on grants to the Chamber of Commerce and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau.

The full amount would be $15,000 if council were to comply with the act.

Aldermen suggested that the committee should go to the business community and Field told them that city council was the first stop on a round of requests for funds from various civic bodies.

Tourist committee chairman Jack Armstrong said the industry is the second largest in B.C. "and we are not treating it this way in Nanaimo — it's at the bottom of the list."

He said that if it weren't for the tourists last summer during a strike at Harmac pulp mill "the town would have folded."

Ald. Gordon MacKay noted there are many other committees in Nanaimo after money from city council and that $100,000 had been spent on promenades and more money on other beautification schemes around the city to attract tourists.

Both chamber president David Hart and Field said the suggestion was good but nothing on which to base the future operation of the tourist bureau.

Tribes Will March

The Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation will organize a walk from Qualicum Beach to Victoria May 16 to raise funds for the North American Indian Brotherhood, the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation, the Indian Homemakers Association and the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians. A Moccasin Miles Walk will also be held in Vancouver and walks in Prince George, Kamloops, Dawson Creek, Williams Lake and Prince Rupert are being contemplated.

Comox Tops Saanich

Comox defeated Saanich Braves, 6-3, Sunday to win the Vancouver Island midget Hockey championship.

It was the third win in two days for the undefeated champions, who downed Port Alberni, 4-1, and Esquimalt, 5-2, Saturday at G. E. Pearkes Arena.

Lari Mitchell had two goals for Comox Sunday. Ted Cronmiller, Wayne Calberry, Al Carruthers and John Carswell scored one goal each. Braves' goals were scored by Barry McLauchlan, Dave Archibald and Kim Bowles.

In the lower Island bantam semi-final series, Victoria took the two-game, total-goal series, 17-6, beating Fuller Lake, 13-3, Saturday at Memorial Arena and dropping a 43 decision at Fuller Lake Sunday.

Victoria meets the winner of the other semi-final series, between Saanich and Esquimalt, for the south Island title.

Sterilization Bill Introduced

A bill which would give a court medical committee the power to recommend sterilization of persons found guilty of "gross misconduct" in abusing or neglecting children was introduced in the Legislature by a government backbencher Monday.

The bill, introduced by Robert Wenman (SC—Delta), would also amend the Protection of Children Act to give the court power to recommend that someone found guilty of gross misconduct be committed to psychiatric care.

Outside the House, Wenman emphasized that sterilization would not be mandatory in all cases of gross misconduct, but could be recommended in particularly severe cases.

Elks Champ

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Chuck Kennedy of White Rock beat John Rutherford of Mica Creek, 8-7, in an extra end Sunday to win the British Columbia Elks curling championship. He will go to the national finals at Moncton in March.

Fight Win

Never a Dull Moment

Meet Mr. Centennial

By BILL THOMAS

Thousands of medals and honors have been handed out to dignitaries and pioneers since British Columbia started in 1958 celebrating centennials of one kind or another. If it were necessary to make one such award to Mr. Centennial it would have to go to deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace.

He has been organizing provincial centennial celebrations since 1955, when he began preliminary plans for the 1958 centennial to celebrate the founding of the mainland colony.

After that, in 1966, it was the 100th birthday of the union of the colonies of Vancouver Island and mainland British Columbia: in 1967 it was the Canadian centenary for Confederation; and now in 1971, Wallace is still hard at work, planning the celebration of the centenary of British Columbia's entry into Confederation.

Wallace treats massive organization problems with a great deal of calm, which he may have retained from his wartime days as commander of a submarine chaser in the Atlantic.

—Jim Ryan

Most Routine

He calmly dismisses most of the problems as routine. This may be due to his having worked as a teacher at Victoria high school, where, until 1953, he taught mathematics.

His office in the legislative buildings is jammed with gifts, momentos and souvenirs from the hundreds of foreign dignitaries who have visited British Columbia.

"In 1967, there were 18 visits by kings, queens, emperors and princes," said Wallace, "and we have been very lucky. Nothing has gone wrong so far."

Wallace explained there are 390 local Centennial 71 committees scattered around the province and he estimates that 20,000 British Columbians are involved in organizing centennial projects.

More Aware

There is more to centennial celebrations than just the celebration itself," said Wallace. "Centennial celebrations have made all British Columbians more aware of this history, and this year, for example, 350 centennial projects are planned which will be of benefit to British Columbians in the years ahead. It is one of those happy occasions where we can look backwards at the same time.

"Centennial projects will also benefit the economy by the spending of $10 million in 1971."

In 1958, the old gold town of Barkerville was restored. For the 1967 centennial, Fort Steele, the first outpost of the Northwest Mounted Police in British Columbia was restored.

This year, the federal and provincial governments will co-operate in the restoration of Fort St. James, north of Vanderhoof. This community was the fur-trading capital of New Caledonia.

In addition to his usual planning tasks, Wallace is also responsible for the organization of the visit of the Queen and Prince Philip in May.

By Regions

"The visits will be on a regional basis, and of course, they take a great deal of planning. In co-operation with federal authorities we have tried to make time available for local communities to show their own particular areas to the royal couple."

Wallace's ability to exercise tact and diplomacy are not confined to royal visits. When the community of Harrison wanted to spend its 1958 centennial grant to hunt for a Sasquatch — the legendary wild hairy man who lives in the mountains near Harrison Lake — it taxed Wallace's calm. After thinking about it, he came up with a solution which is typical of his ability to veto a plan but still leave the community happy.

Wallace suggested instead a $5,000 reward for the first live Sasquatch captured.

Wallace was community programs director in the education department when he was given the job of general chairman of the B.C. 1958 centennial committee. He has been chairman of B.C. centennial committees ever since.

The reasoning was that in his work with the education department he had established contacts in almost every community in the province.

"Someone suggested then," he recalls, "all we needed to do was to clean up the Pacific National Exhibition a bit, and that would do it."

It didn't do it, of course. Wallace's personal brand of enthusiasm, and that of his 14-member staff, succeeded in helping 300 communities organize their own projects.

Looking Back

Looking back on the royal visits, Wallace smiled and remembered one amusing incident in Victoria during the visit of Haile Selassie I, Emperor of Ethiopia — somebody lost the Emperor's dog in the Union Club, and the emperor was very upset.

Wallace is enthusiastic about centennial projects in a way that is in sharp contrast to the enthusiasm shown by United States' visitors who come here to boost their communities. He projects a very low-key enthusiasm which suggests to anyone who is discussing a project with him that its value is automatically assumed.

He expects good organization and he expects his centennial plans to be a success, because after 15 years of working at it he has learned all the tricks.

He knows things are going to work out all right.

Contract Resolution

Second Chance at UVic

The Representative Assembly of the University of Victoria will get a second chance to adopt a resolution asking for a one-year extension for 12 faculty members whose contracts are not being renewed by the university, a spokesman for the Student Action Committee told the Colonist Monday.

The resolution, intended to provide a respite during which the current contract disputes could be settled, was previously defeated by the assembly executive at a meeting Feb. 14. The meeting was attended by only five of the 18 executive members.

As a result of the defeat, the Student Action Committee was formed to act independently of the assembly, which one committee member said had become "irrelevant."

The new committee replaced the assembly-elected steering committee which had previously co-ordinated student actions concerning the contract non-renewals.

The resolution will be presented to the assembly again, at its meeting Sunday.

If the resolution is passed, it will go to the university's board of governors.

Raspberries

During the last four or five weeks I must have had at least 40 letters asking about raspberries — when to plant them, how to plant them, and what kinds to plant. I am delighted to see so much interest developing in this fruit, for the raspberry is a high-dividend fruit crop for the home garden, and store-bought berries can't compare in flavor with fruit which has been allowed to ripen naturally on your own backyard canes.

In our favored climate, you can plant raspberries any time through the dormant season from October to April, whenever the soil is dry enough to be workable. In choosing a site, it is well to remember that the greatest enemy of this plant is the wind.

Raspberries will get along in almost any kind of soil as long as there is plenty of moisture-retaining humus in it, and the canes are not at all fussy as to how much sunshine they get — in fact, I have seen excellent berries grown in light shade. But strong and persistent wind they cannot abide, so in exposed gardens it is wise to select a site on the leeward side of some kind of shelterbelt or windbreak.

Careful preparation of the soil is a paramount importance. Raspberries are greedy feeders, and they MUST have plenty of moisture, particularly when the berries are swelling, and this isn't always easy to provide in a dry summer. Consequently, every opportunity must be taken to conserve the natural soil moisture.

The best way of doing this is to dig in or rototill in every scrap of compost, leafmould or old rotted manure you can lay your hands on while preparing the site. This material will act as a sponge, absorbing and storing moisture which would otherwise drain away; moreover, manure and well-made compost provide some long-lasting nutrients, and creates a soil texture congenial to the roots.

Don't be stingy with the stuff, then, for your berry bushes are going to be living in the same strip of soil for a long, long time, and you'll never have a better opportunity to fix them up with a comfortable home than right now, before they are planted.

Prepare a strip four feet wide for each row of canes, digging in two bucketfulls of old manure or ripe compost plus two cupfulls of 11-48-0 fertilizer to each running yard of strip. Don't dig the stuff in too deeply, for raspberries are shallow rooters — just chop or mix it into the top eight inches of soil.

When this is done, rake the strip level, tread it, rake it again, then go ahead and set out your plants, spacing them 30 inches apart down the middle of your prepared strip.

Make your planting holes wide enough to take the full spread of the roots without any cramping or bending, and deep enough so the roots will be three inches deeper than they were in the plant nursery, as indicated by the soil marks on the stems. This is an important point — always plant raspberries a little deeper than they were in their last home.

Holding the "stool" of roots in position in the planting hole, cover with soil until the hole is about two-thirds full, then stop to water the plants in. Give each one two quarts of Alginure solution — four tablespoonfuls per gallon — and when this drains away, complete the filling in with loose, dry soil on top. Don't go stomping it down — the water will have done all the firming necessary.

The raspberry plantation shouldn't be allowed to bear any fruit in its first season, as all available energy should go into forming a really good root system, and into pushing up stout canes to carry the following year's crop. To this end, then, cut down all top growth to six-inch stubs immediately after planting.

Poor Spiro Defended

WASHINGTON — When Vice President Spiro Agnew criticized the news media a few years ago for playing up bad news instead of good news, he knew what he was talking about.

A perfect example of the way the press and TV media showed total irresponsibility took place at the Bob Hope golf classic a week ago Saturday when Agnew drove two golf balls into the crowd in succession, bopping three fans in the process.

NBC television, covering the golf classic, trained its cameras on this ignominious event and later put it on its news shows.

The eastern establishment press lords, particularly the Washington Post and the New York Times, published front page photos of Agnew's anguished look after his second drive.

The implication given by both television and the newspapers was that Vice President Agnew was not a very good golf player.

Now it's interesting to note that the NBC-TV cameras reported that incident rather than show all the balls that Agnew drove that did not hit anybody.

A small elite band of men in New York decided among themselves that Agnew hitting a spectator was news, when everyone knows that Agnew not hitting a spectator with a golf ball is news.

The self-apinionated commentators not only discussed the drives Agnew had just made, but also reminded viewers that this was not the first time he had bopped someone with a golf ball. They cited the incident with Doug Sanders, the golf pro whom Agnew had managed to hit in the head a few years back.

Now it is a known fact that on the same Saturday, 897,562 people played golf somewhere in the United States. Not one of them hit a spectator with a golf ball. Did the networks show these people playing golf? Did the newspaper stories concentrate on all the duffers that were playing safe and sane golf that day?

The answer is obviously NO! They chose instead to report on Agnew's golf game. Why? Because it was bad news. The fact that no one else that Saturday had hit anyone with a golf ball was good news, and therefore in the eyes of these self-styled editors it was not news.

These editors, who talk only to each other and watch the same golf matches on television, decided the Agnew story was more important.

How can people get an objective view of golf when all they see on their news programs and in their papers is the violence committed on the course by Vice President Agnew?

What about the children who were watching that day?

Did anyone point out to them that for every spectator Agnew hit there were 100,000 that had never been struck by one of his golf balls?

Nothing could better dramatize the point Spiro Angew tried to make a few years ago about the irresponsibility of the media which choose to show only those parts of his golf game that are hopeless:

It behooves the networks to give Agnew a full hour on a driving range to prove that every ball he hits doesn't necessarily go into the crowd.

Sydney Harris

Thinking Man

As people reach a new stage in life, they tend to shuck off the old, instead of incorporating it into the total personality; but someone who has shut out or repudiated his earlier level of consciousness has missed the whole art of living, which consists in the simultaneous use of every stage, from the wonder of childhood to the judgment of maturity.

How many who are searching for happiness ever stop to consider whether they are worthy of happiness?

The paradox of humanity is this: that all men are created unique, but the only way this uniqueness can be preserved is by treating all men as if they were created equal.

The use we make of our leisure tells more about us than the work we do; and if our work deadens us for creative leisure, then we are slaves, however powerful or affluent.

Anti-semitism may have begun as a religious sentiment, but it was shortly afterwards turned into a political weapon with no relationship to the facts; this can be clearly seen today, in eastern Europe, where it is used as a political tool even though Jews now make up less than 1 per cent of the population of those countries.

Early education must instill an "appetite for learning" or it is utterly useless; as Da Vinci pointed out in his Notebooks four centuries ago: "Just as eating against one's will is injurious to health, so study without a liking for it spoils the memory, and it retains nothing it takes in."

Women seem to fall in love more easily and frequently than men only because a residual sense of sexual shame makes them eager to convince themselves that they have given their hearts before they have surrendered their bodies. (For every man who deludes a woman, a dozen women unconsciously delude themselves.)

Whenever a fanatic insists that he alone has the truth, I recall Tagore's lovely metaphor: "Bigotry tries to keep truth safe in the hand, with a grip that kills it."

Competition brings out both the best and the worst in us; you can tell more about a man's character by playing poker with him for an hour than you can by living next door to him for a year.

The main reason that Englishmen seem "cold" to others is that they were treated coolly by their parents; at least among the upper classes, the English seem to care more for dogs, horses and flowers than children.

Not in one war out of a dozen has the average soldier fought for anything that made sense in terms of his personal welfare.

Jack Benny on Sex

MARILYN BECK

When I visited the NBC rehearsal of Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Jack Benny — But Were Afraid to Ask I never expected Jack and I would end up talking about sex. Somehow it just didn't fit the Benny image.

One of the guests on Jack's March 10 special is Dr. David Reuben, author of the best-selling Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex — But Were Afraid to Ask. Which just naturally led Jack into saying, "I don't know why everyone's so preoccupied about it. Most everything you need is common sense."

It's rather a gas to hear the 77-year-old comic, who's so famous for his prim and proper "W-e-e-l-l!" stage line, say he thought the nude scene between Anne Bancroft and Dustin Hoffman in The Graduate was a classic. "Absolutely sensational!"

Not only does he keep up with today's films, but he's pretty darn hip when it comes to the best-selling sex manuals. His thoughts on The Sensuous Woman: "Awful! Simply a waste of time! I think it's a hoax, secretly written by a man for gullible women."

Actually, the idea of the special was to unveil the man behind that famous myth. From what I could catch at rehearsal, you end up with some awfully funny moments, including Lucille Ball playing a Goldwyn Girl and Jack a lecher in one skit, but at fade-out the real Jack Benny still stays pretty well hidden.

Jack's not the typical star who knows little about his projects until rehearsal time. He takes an active part in the writing, the casting, the final editing. "Usually I can tell at first draft if it's going to be a good show. But this one was different. I didn't feel really confident until Lucy, George Burns, Phil Harris and Dr. Reuben all came into rehearsal raving about their bits."

Jack went into rigorous preparation for the show the day after returning from a 12-day ocean cruise to Acapulco. His wife, Mary, didn't accompany him on the trip, "Because she hates that sort of thing, all that lying around in the sun." About his marriage to Mary Livingston, his one-time professional partner, he says, "We've been together 44 years now, and each year keeps getting better, happier for us." Those who know the Bennys know at least part of the reason for their happiness. He's a very real, very warm, very nice man.

Have ya heard? Tom Fogerty is leaving the Creedence Clearwater Revival to stick around home with his family. The rest of the fellows in the group have voted and decided to retire Tom's number and will be working now as a trio.

Canadian Composers' Victoria Meeting

Bill Thomas

The Canadian League of Composers concluded two days of meetings at the University of Victoria with a concert Saturday and proved beyond doubt that if Canadian content was compulsory in orchestral concerts here, the death of the orchestra would follow.

I heard bits of two other conventions during the same two days. One on marine technology and another on developmental drama. The mariners and the dramatists were alive and healthy and intent on telling the world about it.

The composers, on the other hand, were quite determined to do as little for themselves as possible. It was inevitable with the predominance of age among the composers that they should look back in nostalgia, but outsiders hoped that when they got down to the topic of discussing Canadian music in the future, something would happen. It didn't.

To put it as kindly as possible, they cried. Cried because nobody wanted to hear their stuff, cried because orchestras didn't play their stuff and cried even harder because nobody wanted to record much of their stuff.

At no time, while I was in attendance, did a single composer question the matter of communication. They didn't ask, "Are we offering something people want to hear?" No composer in the house asked if the stuff they were turning out was any good. I suspect it must be pretty terrible. This conclusion is based on the incontrovertible fact that more than 90 compositions were submitted and of these University of Victoria music experts Dr. George Corwin and Les Thimmig could only find 11 worth playing. That is around 10 per cent, and even that material performed was for the most part pretty grim.

The CLC could well look inward and ask what are we producing, and then they would automatically find an answer to why nobody but the CBC will play their stuff.

It is also significant that more than half of the league's membership is on the staff of one university or another. This means they don't have to compose to eat. It also means they get their groceries paid for out of public funds and also get jam on it by Canada Council grants and CBC commissions. This must make the Canadian composers the most coddled group of artists in the country.

They spent their second day of discussion originally planned as a panel on The Next 20 years, crying about publishers and record companies and didn't even accord the topic a grace note. Any member of the public who paid $25 to hear what they had to say should demand his money back or write the consumer affairs branch.

It might be assumed that the younger generation coming along will have something to say to the Canadian listener with its music, but this is by no means certain.

The very people who now are running the trade union of Canadian composers are the ones who are teaching the young composers.

On the mechanical side, the conference was well organized and the music was well performed, but as a stimulating experience it was a bust. It might have been better if the composers had faced a battery of students who blasted them with questions about the relevance of their work and its importance to Canadian cultural development, but it didn't happen that way. Instead they soaked up their crying towels.

It might well be that the answer to their problems lies in cutting off the CBC featherbedding grants and Canada Council money and asking them to survive on their talents alone. It wouldn't work, because half of the composers are academise and the world talent terrifies them anyway.

Composers like John Weinzweig can stand on their own. They are good and their work speaks for itself. Why come 3,000 miles to cry?

The Canadian composers' efforts might well be compared to the Group of Seven relying on paint-by-numbers kits. They will just have to do better.

Harbor Debate Reopens

Victoria's waterfront development will be discussed again at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Charlotte and Albert room of the Empress Hotel.

Two of the panel members will be men whose companies, at present, have a stake in the development of the city's Inner Harbor.

One is J. A. Reid of Vancouver, president of Reid Properties Ltd. the firm which has proposed the $25 million Reid Centre; the other is John McLernon, assistant manager of Marathon Realty, which has proposed a $1 million development to be built between Belleville and the Inner Harbor.

Third man on the panel will be City Planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh.

Movie Shows Riviera

The Mediterranean coast from the French Riviera to the Rock of Gibraltar is the subject of the 90-minute film Discovering the Mediterranean, to be shown at 8:30 p.m. March 3 and 4 at McPherson Playhouse.

Photographed by Horst Steinhilber, the film includes scenes of Cannes and Monte Carlo and the islands of Mallorca and Capri along with the spectacles of a Spanish bullfight and Spanish fishermen hunting octopus.

Cadeques, a picturesque fishing village on the Costa Brava — the "in" place for artists and writers — is one of the places featured in the film. Tickets are available at the Playhouse box office.

'Secret' Rule Shouts Hit House

By BARBARA McLINTOCK

Amid NDP shouts of "Secret government! Secret government!" an opposition motion of non-confidence in Premier Bennett over the issue of openness of the accounts of crown corporations was defeated in the Legislature Monday.

The motion which asked that the $23,000 salary of the premier be reduced by $1 was defeated 33 to 16 with the Liberals and the NDP supporting it.

The cry of "Secrecy!" rose repeatedly from opposition benches during a lively debate on the motion, the basis of which was that the government should make public the books and accounts of B.C. Hydro, the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and the Liquor Control Board.

In moving the motion, Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster) gave figures he had obtained from an unrelated arbitration action which he said showed a Vancouver delivery firm overcharged B.C. Hydro for parcel delivery, charging more than it charged other firms.

When such figures come to light, "How do we know what else is going on?" Barrett asked. "You cannot run a secret community over there ... the taxpayers have a right to know what is going on," he charged the government.

Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan — Malahat) accused the premier of doing the same thing he accused the coalition government of doing some 20 years ago when he was a private member ... withholding information from the public.

In a strong attack against the NDP, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell condemned the opposition party as "being lazy, irresponsible, irrelevant and immaterial."

Campbell accused the NDP MLAs of spreading "ill-based rumor, misinformation, innuendo, and smear." He said they had placed no questions on the order paper about the accounts of the corporations.

The amount of information made available to the public in B.C. "cannot be equalled anywhere," the minister said.

Strachan said the NDP had its questions ready but had hoped it would get answers to them from the premier during the estimates debate. He also charged that often cabinet members did not answer questions put to them on the order paper.

Liberal leader Patrick McGeer supportd Strachan and cited examples of questions members had asked about the corporations to which they had received unsatisfactory answers.

Garde Gardom (L—New Westminster) said that when he sent a letter to Highways Minister Wesley Black requesting information about the number of cars on B.C. ferries, the reply was that such information was "classified."

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said the motion was "not a resolution relating to public accounts or any accounts. It is a motion of straight non-confidence." He said the NDP was asking the House to force the premier to resign.

"The premier is a man of ability and integrity," Peterson said.

Skillings Blasted Over Car Talks

The opposition repeated charges Monday that Trade Minister Waldo Skillings isn't trying hard enough to bring new industry to B.C. and were answered in the Legislature by his predecessor, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Loffmark, who was trade minister until April, 1968, when Skillings took over the portfolio, said the government prior to that date had carried out two feasibility studies on car assembly and fabricating plants.

He was answering renewed criticism of Skillings by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett who said, during the debate on Premier Bennett's office estimates, that the present trade minister should be ordered to at least talk to represenatives of a Japanese car manufacturer about their recent request for fesibility studies.

Barrett complained that after represenatives of the Toyota Motor Sales Co. Ltd. met with him here two weeks ago he had written to Skillings and the premier asking that the government act on the Japanese request for a study on feasibility of establishing a car assembly plant in B.C.

Skillings hasn't bothered to reply, the NDP leader said, and had told reporters, who asked whether the minister would meet Toyota representatives to discuss the matter further, he (Skillings) only talked to "the top echelon."

Loffmark said topics being discussed regularly with foreign car manufacturers include the establishment of a car assembly plant in this province.

He did not disclose what the studies showed.

UVic Challenge Falls One Short

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Disappointed but already talking about next year. The University of Victoria team on the national CTV network's University Challenge program returned home during the weekend after being stopped one short of tying the program's victory record.

They brought back with them the news that their eight wins on the general-knowledge quiz show had won $8,500 to be used for UVic student scholarships in a manner to be decided by the team members, who cannot share in the funds themselves.

And the four young men won the praise of their coach, UVic associate professor of history Alfred Loft: "No words can express how proud I am of the manner in which they conducted themselves.

"Not only were they fine representatives of the University of Victoria, but they were also worthy representatives of the province of B.C."

The four are team captain Robert McDougall, Denis Johnston and Bruce Izard, all of Victoria, and Glen Paruk of Port Alberni.

They were chosen last fall from among 22 applicants and went to Ottawa in November to score four victories, the first one snapping the nine-show string of Montreal's McGill University. They made a second trip in January and won four more times.

Saturday, they tried to tie McGill's program record of nine wins but lost to the University of Winnipeg, 140-115, in a competition that was not decided until the final minute or two.

It is scheduled to be shown on Channel 8 at 5 p.m. next Sunday but reports Monday were that it might be delayed for one week.

A UVic official will attend when the team decides on use of the funds. Only Johnston is in this year's graduating class and the others have already indicated they hope to form another team next year.

Loft said the team arrived in Ottawa to find 10 inches of new snow, followed by rain and then freezing conditions. He said B.C.'s representatives presented people connected with the TV show with daffodils and heather, winning friends if not a University Challenge record.

Land Guards Stillborn?

Barrett Raises 1968 Pledge, Bennett Refers Him to Black

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

Premier Bennett told the Legislature Monday the instructions he gave in 1968 regarding public development of land along B.C. highways have never been countermanded.

But the premier also refused to answer a demand by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett that he state whether the policy had actually been put into effect. Bennett replied Highways Minister Wesley Black would be "glad" to answer when his estimates are debated in the House, in a few days time.

Opposition Wins Day On Policy Approval

Colonist headline April 7, 1968

Barrett read a newspaper report of April 8, 1968, in which Bennett, then acting highways minister in the wake of Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi's resignation from portfolio, announced it would be government policy to acquire lands along highways where development was likely to take place.

At the time, the premier said the government hadn't decided whether these lands would be disposed of later by a system of public bidding or whether the government would retain ownership and lease them to commercial developers.

Barrett told the House Monday the failure of the government to implement this policy has resulted in the loss of millions of dollars of new revenues for construction of schools and hospitals.

"I can dismiss other broken promises by the premier," the NDP leader said, "but not this one. There is a potential here for generating great new revenues from development created by publicly-financed highway projects. And the

Dental Care Plan Urged for Young

OTTAWA (CP)—Only about one-third of the population's dental service requirements are being filled and dental health as a consequence is poor, says a special report to the federal government.

It proposes a national dental program for children as a step toward eventual dental care of the scope now given for medical care under the national medical care insurance program.

Shortage of Dentists

The report was tabled in the Commons Monday by Health Minister John Munro who said the recommendations will be studied.

A variety of ways of correcting the current serious shortage of dentists is put forward in the report, particularly through better training of dental auxiliaries such as dental assistants, dental hygienists, dental technicians and dental technologists.

The report was written by a committee set up in 1968 as a result of recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services. The committee was headed by Chief Justice Dalton Wells of Ontario Supreme Court.

It says the dental profession estimates that only one-third of dental requirements are being met by existing dental manpower. This was a matter of concern since prepaid dental care through government-sponsored children's services "is being contemplated."

In addition, the level of demand by the general public is expected to increase.

To cope, the dentist-population ratio would have to be boosted to 1 for each 1,200 from 1 for each 3,000—"utopian in the short run since it would mean doubling or tripling" dental school output.

Present plans call for a ratio of 1 to 2,500 by 1986. Hence the emphasis on producing more and better dental auxiliaries and redistributing the duties performed by them under dental supervision.

The report says an estimated 55 per cent of Canadians live in regions where they cannot get more than 35 per cent of the required services due to manpower shortages.

South Twisters Kill 82

From AP, UPI

Tornadoes which tore through dozens of towns in the Mississippi and Louisiana deltas killed 82 persons, left hundreds homeless and virtually destroyed the Mississippi community of Inverness, officials reported Monday.

The twisters — weather experts said there were between 50 and 100 of them in the deadliest onslaught in the U.S. south in 30 years — moved through the area late Sunday night, and late Monday volunteers were still uncovering victims beneath the widespread rubble.

Hardest hit was the Sunflower County town of Inverness, population 1,100, where 75 per cent of the residential area was destroyed and 13 persons died.

Civil Defence officials said 22 died in Leflore County, 24 in Sharkey County, 17 in Sunflower County, seven in Yazoo County, five in Humphreys and two in Warren. All are in Mississippi.

In addition five died in Delhi, La., in one of the first funnels to drop out of the band of violent weather which whistled through the area just before dark Sunday.

The American Insurance Association said insured property damage in the two states would exceed $7.5 million.

National guardsmen, convicts from the state prison at Parchman and numerous volunteers were enlisted for the cleanup operation.

Estimates were that winds exceeded 100 miles an hour as the funnels skipped across the countryside.

At the University of Mississippi at Oxford, 40 students were taken to hospital after a tornado hit a trailer park on the edge of the campus. Fifty trailers were destroyed and 50 others damaged — some wrapped around pine trees like pieces of wire.

In North Fayetteville, N.C. a tornado ripped through a business and residential area at the rush hour Monday afternoon, killing at least one person and injuring 30 more.

Cape Fear Valley Hospital reported it treated 18 persons in the emergency room for injuries, admitting four of them. Another 18 were brought to Womack Army Hospital at nearby Ft. Bragg, where four were admitted.

Policeman Cops Out Too Quickly

(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

LOS ANGELES — Former police Sgt. Kenneth Carlsted, 44, injured in a helicopter crash, accepted a $35,000 settlement Monday — just five minutes before a jury verdict, which would have given him $180,000.

When jurors returned with a verdict of $180,000 for Carlsted they were told that there was no need to record it now because of his settlement.

U.S. Blizzard Kills, Cripples

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A full-blown blizzard powered northeastward across the plains and Midwest Monday, causing at least eight deaths, marooning motorists and slowing business, industry and government to a crawl.

Six men died of heart attacks in Omaha after shovelling snow or pushing stalled cars. Another man suffered a fatal heart attack in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Grits' Regime Raked For 'Arrogant Pride'

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield unleashed a scathing attack on the Trudeau government here Monday night, accusing it of arrogance, incompetence and irresponsibility.

The government lacks a conscience, and is "playing games with the country," Stanfield told the annual meeting of the Central Nova Progressive Conservative Association.

The former Nova Scotia premier said the time had come to deliver sharp criticism because the government is "so puffed up with pride and arrogance that it is incapable of either admitting

Labor May Face House Test Today

By DON COLLINS

Today is the day Labor Minister Leslie Peterson could light the fuse under the B.C. labor movement. But if he intends to do so, he isn't tipping his hand in advance.

He declined comment Monday on whether he would move in the Legislature today to have the trucking industry strike-lockout ended under terms of the B.C. Mediation Act.

The 151,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor has served notice it will rally behind the Teamsters' union in such a case, if the Teamsters decide to take a stand against compulsory measures.

Peterson served notice of a motion Friday — the same day the strike-lockout began — which would order resumption of work.

Today is the first day the motion could be debated before the House. However, it can be brought up at any time during the session.

The contract dispute arose over a single point — the union's demand for a clause allowing its members to refuse to handle goods moved from behind a picket line by non-union personnel. It involves 3,500 workers and some 78 trucking and warehouse firms represented by the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association.

The union struck one company Friday and the association retaliated by ordering lockouts against the Teamsters by all its member firms.

The full impact isn't expected to be felt for 10 days to two weeks. The Teamsters have estimated that about 60

Eskimos Offended by Name

TORONTO (CP) — Eskimos are offended by their name, a spokesman for the minority group said Monday.

"From what we can understand, it (Eskimo) is an offensive word and we are seriously considering taking it out of our title," Alan Clarke executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada said in an interview Monday.

Eskimo, according to Clarke and several books on Canadian history, means "one who eats raw flesh" and is derived from the Cree Indian.

"The word Eskimo was never used in the discussions we held with native people from the North at an association conference in Peterborough during the weekend," said Clarke.

Those people called Eskimos — about 13,000 in the northern fringes of Canada, especially the Northwest Territories — want to be called Innuit — their word for themselves.

But even that word raises doubt.

The Oxford Companion to Canadian History and Literature spells the word with one n but A Dictionary of Canadians on Historical Principles spells it Innuit.

At the weekend conference, several people from the North decided that the word Eskimo should be dropped from the association and also organized a new organization — Innuit or Inuit Taparisat of Canada.

Big Brother Is Watching—for Volunteers

DUNCAN—Cowichan branch of Big Brothers of British Columbia is looking for volunteers.

A steering committee formed in January to investigate the area's need for a Big Brother service reported an overwhelming response.

An official said the service provided a stabilizing and helpful influence to fatherless boys in their formative years. The movement provides a preventive service for boys between 8 and 15.

He said the Big Brother philosophy advocated a one man to one boy relationship with volunteers matched with boys on a basis of common interests and mutual acceptance. It provided friendship and personal guidance to boys lacking masculine influence.

At a recent association meeting, Peter Sandercock a local schoolteacher, was elected president. Other officers are treasurer, Fred Lange, an assistant bank manager; secretary, Bill Abran, a boys' counsellor; publicity chairman, Michael Coleman, a lawyer.

Directors include Rev. A. J. Alfred, George Barr, Gerry Hebers, Constable Hank Huibers, John McNaughton, Bob Purgavie and Don Young.

The B.C. movement is supported by provincial and municipal governments, youth counsellors and youth groups.

Boneyard For Cars Turns Up

NANAIMO — A graveyard for stolen cars has been discovered on the bluffs at East Wellington, near the borders of Northfield and Wellington.

Redvers Smith, whose car was stolen when his wife visited him in hospital recently, made the discovery.

Staff Sgt. G. A. Perry said Monday three youths were questioned by police Saturday into the theft of 21 cars in recent months.

Tourism Prompts Shouting Match

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — A former federal travel bureau official criticized Ald. Ted Jenkinson for his "hostile" attitude to tourism at a council committee meeting Monday night which at times developed into a shouting match between the two.

"I have never encountered anybody as hostile to the tourist industry as you," Alan Field, member of the Chamber of Commerce tourist committee and former director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, told Jenkinson.

He made the offer after hearing from the chamber's tourist committee that mall merchants have offered $10,000 towards the operation of the satellite for five months on the basis that the chamber puts up $2,500.

Jenkinson had complained that Field criticized council in a speech to the Lions Club the previous week.

At that meeting Field had said the council was not spending one dollar per capita allotted by the provincial government for use in tourist promotion.

Except for One

Later in the council meeting which at times developed into a shouting match Field said that he had met with "a reasonable degree of objectivity except for one."

Field told Jenkinson that in an argument "if its a matter of volume I think you'll win, if it's a matter of logic I think not."

The tourist committee had gone to council to request that it comply with the terms of the Municipalities Aid Act which directs that one dollar per capita of the provincial grant be spent on tourist promotion.

Council currently spends more than $8,000 on grants to the Chamber of Commerce and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau.

The full amount would be $15,000 if council were to comply with the act.

Aldermen suggested that the committee should go to the business community and Field told them that city council was the first stop on a round of requests for funds from various civic bodies.

Tourist committee chairman Jack Armstrong said the industry is the second largest in B.C. "and we are not treating it this way in Nanaimo — it's at the bottom of the list."

He said that if it weren't for the tourists last summer during a strike at Harmac pulp mill "the town would have folded."

Ald. Gordon MacKay noted there are many other committees in Nanaimo after money from city council and that $100,000 had been spent on promenades and more money on other beautification schemes around the city to attract tourists.

Both chamber president David Hart and Field said the suggestion was good but nothing on which to base the future operation of the tourist bureau.

Oil Tanker Checks 'Futile'

By DON GAIN

A prominent Victoria naval architect Monday dubbed efforts to eliminate oil tanker traffic on the Pacific Coast as "hysterical and futile" and, at the same time, called on the federal transport department to update its facilities for oil pollution control and prevention.

Robert McHaffie of the firm of Robert C. McHaffie Ltd said in an interview that oil tankers operating along the coast are not only inevitable but highly desirable.

He called for the construction of Coast Guard ships to escort giant oil tankers and proposed that Canada welcome the U.S. oil companies' venture of water shipment of Alaska oil as a shot in the arm for B.C. shipyards.

McHaffie said he believes that the great concern for the environmental safety of our coastal waters by local residents and federal officials is a "commendable desire" to preserve for all time the great natural beauty of our coast.

But to try to obtain this end by eliminating commerce is wrong, he added.

It would be possible to safeguard our beaches and allow tankers commerce at the same time, McHaffie said, by introducing mandatory escort services for tankers using our national and adjacent waters.

The federal government should provide specialized escort vessels, he urged, which would serve the double purpose of guiding mammoth tankers safely to and from the proposed refineries through waters extending reasonable distances from Canadian shores.

He saw this escort job as a role for the Canadian Coast Guard in the course of performing other duties.

Several vessels — equipped with the latest communication and navigational aids, with booms, boomboats, oil-skimming equipment and large tanks full of emulsifying chemicals — are all that would be required, he said, to take immediate action should there be an oil spill, "as there most certainly will be."

Present transport department facilities for oil pollution control or prevention are "laughably inadequate," the naval architect said.

And now is the time, he continued, to obtain assistance from oil companies concerned in building and placing these vessels in operation.

The construction and servicing of such escort vessels, McHaffie said, would be a shot in the arm to B.C. shipyards.

He also disputed a recent letter to Oak Bay council from J. C. Rutledge, general director of the aerospace, marine and rail branch of the federal industry, trade and commerce department, who said that U.S. ships could be serviced only in U.S. shipyards.

"Certainly the oil would of necessity be carried in U.S. vessels, but these ships can be serviced and repaired anywhere in the world, and B.C. yards would be in a foremost position to bid for this work," he said.

His statement was backed up by a spokesman of Yarrows Ltd. shipyard, who called Rutledge's letter "a politician's reply.

"U.S. ships are repaired and serviced in Canadian yards," the spokesman told the Colonist. "It's as simple as that. They have to pay duty on repair work when they sail back to the States, but some still feel there is an advantage in having work done in Canadian yards."

"And this is in addition to emergency maintenance and repairs," McHaffie said.

"So let us welcome our neighbors' great commercial venture, insisting only on the right to escort him past our doorstep and, if necessary, render immediate and effective help when spillages occur."

McHaffie has been for years a proponent of the use of large sea-going barges, like the type now being used on the Pacific Coast to transport newsprint, chemicals and lumber, as a means of Canada's re-entry into the maritime world.

Builders Return In Port Hardy

The men, who have been working on the Utah Mine project at this northern Vancouver Island centre, left the job over numerous issues. Most involved safety and medical facilities.

Union officials said complaints had been building up for some time and came to a head with the injury of worker Larry Makurta, who fell 40 feet from the roof of a building under construction Thursday.

The return to work began with the afternoon shift and followed a flight to Port Hardy by 12 union official from Victoria and Vancouver. The officials met with Utah Mine representatives and the tradesmen.

John Schibli of Victoria, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building Trades Council, said as he prepared to leave Port Hardy that the company had agreed to these basic demands:

- Some changes to be made in the first aid staff;
- Improvement of the ambulance service;
- Construction of facilities for a sea plane base;
- Withholding of an order that had been given for the firing of a union shop steward.

Schibli said remaining issues would be the subject of talks Wednesday in Vancouver between officers of the B.C.-Yukon Building Trades Council and Los Angeles-based officials of the Utah mining organization.

A union spokesman said an upshot of the walkout was that numerous tradesmen visiting their families in Victoria and Vancouver didn't return to the job here Monday because of the uncertainty of the situation. They were expected to return today.

The workmen were reported to have been particularly disturbed because of the difficulties that arose when Makurta was injured.

A union official said the man was driven many miles over exceptionally rough road and flown to hospital at Alert Bay before being transferred to Vancouver.

There were also complaints that men hired by the company to administer first aid did not have the experience necessary to deal with accidents that occur on construction projects.

Other Victoria union officials who made the trip here with Schibli were John Gallow of the laborers, Frank Peters of the teamsters and William Isbister of the electricians. All three are business agents.

Decision Still Open on Duncan Teacher

DUNCAN — A three-man B.C. government investigation committee failed to reach a unanimous decision into the alleged injury of a 13-year-old student by his teacher, Cowichan school board was told Monday night.

The teacher, Louis Trapler of Mount Provost junior high school, will remain under suspension. He has been released from his teaching duties since the incident occurred Jan. 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Cook, parents of Joseph Cook, the boy involved, claimed their son suffered injuries to the head and arm.

The next step for the Cowichan school board will be to submit its appeal to the Council of Public Instruction, which will set up a board of reference.

The board of reference, in turn, will report its findings back to the council of public instruction.

Also discussed at a special board meeting Monday were future school building plans. School superintendent Eric Lewis presented the report to the board.

According to Lewis, the board should plan for 20 to 23-room schools to accommodate 500-600 students to be located in population centres within walking distance for the students.

He divided the Cowichan school district into 12 districts or population centres. These centres are Crofton, Somenos, Drinkwater, Duncan, Alexander, Aitkin, Maple Bay, Koksilah, Cowichan Station, Bench, Shawnigan, and Mill Bay.

Royston Could Have Surplus

By RUTH McKELLAR

COURTENAY — A budget to estimate finance changes that would occur if Royston improvement district altered its municipal status shows a surplus of $40,320.

The budget, released this week by a committee handling details of a proposed vote on new status, will be presented to Royston taxpayers before the vote.

The budget shows revenue of $43,578 as given in the auditor's report for Royston improvement district for 1969, as prepared by J. M. Standeven and Co.

Additional revenue which would be received if the area approved district municipality status would be $73,662, for a total revenue of $117,240 figures for the additional revenue section were taken from per capita grant figures of the Comox-Strathcona regional district and the 1969 provincial tax roll.

On the expenditure side the same 1969 auditor's report shows $41,386. Additional expenses for district municipality status was based on audited statements from the village of Cumberland for roads, sidewalks, repairs, maintenance and capital costs and totals $8,060.

Similarily based on Cumberland audited figures, snow removal would cost $2,470. The commiteee said this figure is higher than the cost would likely be, as Cumberland trucks all its snow away after plowing.

After deducting such items as Royston district parcel tax, garbage tolls and street lighting and a water rate increase, a surplus of $40,320 was estimated.

The budget is expected to be discussed at meetings before the vote to inform taxpayers.

Neither the date of the vote or whether the change will be to district or to village status has been decided. A report is expected this week.

Heroin Load Leads to Jail

NANAIMO—A 22-year-old mother of two, was sentenced Monday to 18 months in jail and two years probation after pleading guilty in Nanaimo Provincial Court to possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

Mrs. Carollee Levasseur, 641 Chestnut Street, told the court she is pregnant.

Police said she was apprehended Friday on a B.C. ferry bound from Vancouver to Nanaimo and a search revealed she had concealed 49 caps of heroin in her brassiere.

J. C. Snead Tops Golf With Chip for Eagle

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A 60-yard chip shot for an eagle three proplled J. C. Snead to a one-stroke victory Monday in the $110,000 Tucson open golf tournament.

Snead, a 29-year-old nephew of golfing great Sam Snead, had a final-round 66 for 273 and won by a single stroke over lanky veteran Dale Douglass.

Douglass, in a neck-and-neck fight with the hulking Snead most of the way in the 36-hole finale, closed with a 67 for 274.

Snead, a former professional baseball player who didn't take to golf until the age of 25, broke out of a tie for the top when he holed out the clutch chip shot on the 580-yard 15th hole on the 7305-yard par-72 Tucson National Golf Club course.

It was his first victory in 3½ years on the professional circuit and, in addition to the $22,000 first-place prize, it assured him of spots in the PGA National Championship and the Tournament of Champions.

Douglass, who had missed the cut in three previous starts this year was alone in second and took the $12,500 prize.

Hale Irwin, who had sparkling rounds of 66-67 in the marathon finish, was at 279 and tied for third at that figure with George Archer and Al Mengert. Mengert had a final 68, Archer a 70.

NEXT GAME: Tuesday—All-Stars vs. Vancouver at Kerrisdale.

Time is running out for Vancouver Centennials, now almost certainly doomed to a second-place finish in the Coastal Division of the B.C. Junior Hockey League.

Centennials, who picked up two points Saturday night when they won in Kelowna while Victoria Cougars were being beaten on home ice by Kamloops Rockets, took an 8-2 thumping in Vernon on Sunday.

Essos, pushing hard for second place and still with a chance of winning the Okanagan Division, had a 49-29 shooting edge as they dominated play.

John Price and Ed Johnstone each scored twice and Price assisted on four goals for a six-point performance. Tom Reilly scored both Vancouver goals.

In Sunday's other game, Rockets stayed two points in front of Essos and moved within eight points of the leading Penticton Broncos by dumping Chilliwack Bruins, 3-1, to complete a road trip to the coast.

Kelly Pratt handled all the Kamloops scoring after Norm Poole had given Bruins the lead early in the second period. Bruins were at 1-1 with three minutes and six seconds left.

Barb Berthiaume Sparks Pin Win

Flower power was in evidence at Mayfair Lanes Sunday as the Mayfair Flower Shop team took the team title in the 30th annual Victoria Women's Bowling Association tournament.

Led by Barb Berthiaume, who rolled a 619 series, the winners totalled 2606 scratch and had 335 pins in handicap for a total of 2941, both totals setting records. Red's Motel held the previous records of 2579 scratch and 2819 with handicap in 1968.

Second-place Roto-Rooter Service were 155 pins behind.

It was the first 600 series in Mrs. Berthiaume's bowling career and was the best in the two-day team event. Dot Bennett was second with a 575 series.

Singles and doubles will be bowled Saturday and Sunday, completing the tournament.

Columbus stayed within striking distance of the Pacific Coast Soccer League lead on Sunday but the Vancouver club had its title hopes jolted by a league ruling.

Lost to the club for the balance of the schedule and the first game of the playoffs is playing-coach John Milner, a former English professional.

Milner was suspended for 12 games for the use of foul language followed by the striking of referee Walter Collie. The incidents occurred in a league game against Croatia on Feb. 14.

Even without Milner, Columbus was too much for Westminster Blues, who went down, 0-2, in New Westminster action.

Bruce Wilson opened the scoring 28 minutes into the first half and Gino Vazzoler finished at 10 minutes of the second half.

Result moved Columbus, which has a game in hand, within three points of Victoria United and four points ahead of Eintracht.

Eintracht was upset in Sunday's other game, losing, 0-2, to Paul's Canadians. Metro Gerela got the goals nine minutes apart in the second half.

Gorge Molsons vaulted from third-place tie in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division into a first-place deadlock by blanking Village Green, 4-0, Sunday in Duncan.

Molsons and Cosmopolitan Royals are on top of the league with 21 points, one more than Victoria West but Gorge holds a game in hand over the other two clubs.

Peter Brett scored two goals and Dan Henry and Rick Lamoureux had one goal each in Molson's victory.

In second-division play, London Boxing Club retained its four-point lead, battling to a 3-3 deadlock with second-place Victoria West at Beacon Hill Park.

Third-place Cement Man edged to within two points of Wests with a 3-1 victory over Labatts at Reynolds Road Park and Cowichan Saints shut out University of Victoria Norsmen, 3-0, at Beacon Hill Park.

In third-division matches, Songhees upset second-place Prospect Lake, 2-1, and Oak Bay trounced East Saanich, 8-2.

City Wrestler Wins Gold As Winter Games Conclude

SASKATOON — The second Canada Winter Games ended Sunday, leaving a mountain on the flat prairie as a lasting legacy and showing that western hospitality includes near-perfect weather.

Long-underwear weather of a normal Saskatchewan winter never materialized during the 10-day spectacle — average temperature was 21.4 degrees — which brought together more than 2100 athletes from 10 provinces and two territories to compete in 16 sports.

Officials were still counting tickets but they confidently predicted that attendance would top 150,000 at the Games which cost $1,600,000 to stage. Of the total, $400,000 went to building Mount Blackstrap, 25 miles south of the city.

Besides the 300-foot mountain, which became a Games symbol, a three-storey department store filled with tents and trailers to house athletes was another unique feature.

While older competitors found it difficult to sleep in the village because of the noise, the kids had a ball.

ONTARIO DOMINATES

Ontario athletes, with their blazing red and white uniforms, dominated competition as they did at the first Winter Games in Quebec City in 1967.

But tiny Prince Edward Island got a share of the glory, being named winner of the Centennial Trophy, awarded for the first time to the province which shows the greatest overall improvement from the previous Games.

Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener closed the Games Sunday before a packed house at the 3500-seat Saskatoon Arena. The Games had been opened by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Burnaby-New Westminster, B.C., will be the site of the next national sports competition, the Canada Summer Games in 1973.

HRYB WINS

B.C. athletes won five events on closing day, finished second in two and third in three others to bring the province's second-place total to 24 golds, 15 silver and 25 bronze medals.

Four of the five wins were in wrestling with Taras Hryb of Victoria winning the 178-pound class, Terrence Sharp of New Westminster the heavyweight, and Steve Adams and Stephen Martin, both of Burnaby, the 14 pound and 154-pound class, respectively.

Hryb was particularly impressive, pinning Frank Kalfeisch of Toronto in 51 seconds in the final.

B.C. teams finished third in men's and women's volleyball and table tennis.

SHE'S TOP INDIVIDUAL

Top individual gold medal winner was Wendy Nicholson, 14-year-old gymnast from Toronto. Wendy got three golds by winning on the balance beam, the uneven parallel bars and as best all-round performer.

However, the big winner outside of athletic competition was Tom Evershen of Oakville, Ont., who won the $60,000 first prize in the Lucky Dog Lottery, first legal lottery in Saskatchewan.

In hockey, Ontario's powerful Peterborough Lions won seven straight by lopsided scores to take the gold medal. Alberta took second place, Quebec third and a surprising Nova Scotia crew finished fourth after winning their division.

DUNCAN RINK FOURTH

The Duncan rink skipped by Brenda Harper lost a heart-breaking, 6-4 decision to Saskatchewan in a bid to win a bronze medal in curling for B.C. The Duncan girls finished fourth when their last game was decided by a measurement on the final end.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Nanaimo Experiment

New Role For Nuns

By AGNES FLETT

The experiment started a year ago and will continue for two more years. If it is judged successful, it will be continued, and the nuns expect more such experiments to start in Canada.

Their role is to stay self-supporting, working only enough to maintain shelter, food and clothing. The rest of the time they devote to prayer, meditation, Bible study and community service.

Sister Margaret Rowe, in charge of the experiment, co-ordinates the community service — arranging for cars to pick up the sick or elderly for trips to doctors or just for fun.

One of the problems they must struggle with is overcoming the habit of their vow of silence. In the convents they were only allowed a short time of talking at meals, and now they find it hard to communicate freely.

Sister Joanne said she found it very hard to concentrate on her work with all the noise and talking around her. She said she is still unused to all the "unnecessary talking."

The nuns find their jobs take up a lot of time, but they hope to have more time for community service in the future.

Their home is an old renovated house on Newcastle Avenue, on Nanaimo's waterfront. And they welcome anyone who drops in for help, advice or guidance.

Cowichan Threats To Be Discussed

DUNCAN — A panel will discuss the quality of life in the Cowichan Valley during an open meeting today at 8 p.m. at the Village Green Inn.

"Purpose of the discussion is to examine the advantages of living in the Cowichan area and the problems which threaten the quality of our day-to-day living," said Bob Moss, president of the sponsoring body, the Cowichan branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Moss will moderate the panel which includes Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan, health unit director Dr. P. J. Reynolds, psychiatrist Dr. H. Danes, B.C. Forest Products official Gordon Cameron, St. John's Anglican minister and Duncan Ald. Allan Kerr, Cowichan Indian band member Francis Johnny, Cowichan-Malahat president of Society for Pollution and Environmental Control, Kurt Horn, and Cowichan high school graduate Graham Bruce.

Museum to Erect True Bunkhouses

DUNCAN — This year will see an increase in the educational program of Cowichan Valley Forest Museum says David Williams of Duncan who has been re-elected museum society chairman.

"Plans were announced at the annual meeting Friday for the erection of a group of authentic logging bunkhouses at the museum," said Williams.

The bunkhouses will be used for various displays associated with the forest industry. The largest will provide a classroom for children's groups. Williams indicated that they expected that a large number of children would visit the museum this year.

Although revenue was up 20 per cent and there were 5,000 more visitors last year, Williams said the society had a $1,700 operating deficit. He felt that was due to increased expenses.

Plans have also been announced for construction of a new parking lot and entrance at the highway. Construction is to begin immediately.

Mad Money

The cheques were sent out from the office of MP Tom Barnett (Comox-Alberni) under the federal government's cost-sharing plan.

Drug Trial Ends In Duncan

DUNCAN — A five-day trial involving two Duncan men ended Friday.

John David Weatherhead, 21, and James Edward Donnelly, 34, were originally charged with three counts of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking, possession of the drug and conspiracy to import marijuana into Canada.

Weatherhead pleaded guilty to the first charge on Thursday, the fourth day of the trial. The crown dropped the other two charges against him.

Donnelly pleaded not guilty to the three charges.

Provincial judge H. C. McKay of Nanaimo reserved judgement on Donnelly until March 12. He will sentence Weatherhead the same day.

Pancake Race

SALT SPRING ISLAND — The Ladies' Auxiliary to Branch 92, Royal Canadian Legion, will conduct the 14th annual pancake race from noon and 1 p.m. today at the Centennial Park on Salt Spring Island.

Airspace Rights Far Out

Some people who live west and north of the Patricia Bay airport main runway find it difficult to take seriously the suggestion that they might have the right to stop aircraft from trespassing on air space over their properties.

"It's a little far out, isn't it?" one householder said Saturday as the Colonist conducted an informal survey.

Several said that they had noted with interest a bill introduced in the B.C. Legislature Thursday which provided for landowners to register the title to the air space above their land.

They noted, too, that Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said that people have always owned the air space but the problem has been how to pass on the title if one wanted to sell it.

Peterson also said that if the bill passed it would be possible to buy designated air space in the same way that numbered land lots are now sold.

And further, in an interview outside the Legislature, he said that there were "no upper limits" to air space.

"It had vertical sides and a horizontal top and underneath it on what was meant to represent the ground there was a house. Very interesting," Deakin said.

Far out though the idea might be, he added, it might be worth some serious consideration.

"There's no doubt about the fact that the value of our properties is decreased because aircraft pass over them."

"As a matter of fact I recently saw a TV program which showed two streets of empty homes in Malton, Ont. — emptied because of the constant stream of aircraft over them from Toronto's Malton Airport.

"Although I saw it with my own eyes on television the mayor wrote back to say it just wasn't so," Deakin said.

Mrs. O. W. Mabley, 11328 Chalet Road; Deep Cove: "Well, well, That's very interesting. If you can think of any way that I can get up there and put up a 'No Trespassing' sign, just let me know, will you?"

"It's well worth thinking about. We get used to the sound of the aircraft passing over but when one of the big jets goes over it's terribly noisy," said Mrs. A. E. Smith, 2336 Oakville Ave., Sidney.

"The thought that we might be able to put a stop to it is quite an attractive one," Mrs. Smith added.

"Incidentally, she said, "I have a space reserved for myself away up yonder. Does this mean that when the time comes I can get there without leaving my own property?"

Her Subject Was Acting

Keynote speaker Saturday at Drama in Education conference here was expert in children's drama, so she acted out her main thesis that learning should be engaged in for sheer joy of learning. Demonstrating importance of play-acting in education process, Prof. Agnes Haaga of University of Washington, Seattle, drew frequent laughter and applause as she played animated role before audience, foresaking lectern to move back and forth across speaker's platform, using gestures, facial expressions to point out that "drama is deed done in action" and that in any play situation, "children soon have their own miniplot going . . . they are interested in content."—(Bill Thomas photos)

Tribes Will March

The Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation will organize a walk from Qualicum Beach to Victoria May 16 to raise funds for the North American Indian Brotherhood, the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation, the Indian Homemakers Association and the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians. A Moccasin Miles Walk will also be held in Vancouver and walks in Prince George, Kamloops, Dawson Creek, Williams Lake and Prince Rupert are being contemplated.

Outfalls Can Alter Currents in Strait

Preliminary results of a 17-month current study in the Strait of Georgia indicate that long-term oceanographic studies should be done before outfall locations are decided.

In a paper presented Saturday to the annual convention of Pacific Northwest Oceanographers, in Victoria, Dr. Sus Tabata of Nanaimo Biological Station said there is now a basis for doubting the traditional concept of current flows in the Strait.

This has generally been that currents move in "an anti-clockwise circle around the basin".

Tabata's findings, however, which are based on data collected from three measuring stations located at 10 kilometre intervals between Valdez Island and Point Grey, indicate that currents can vary greatly both over small distances and with depths as well as over time.

Measurements from the three buoys and three different depths supported Tabata's suggestion that currents in the strait are more complex than had hitherto been thought.

As an example of great variations within a short distance, Tabata said that while the current at the mouth of Iona, Vancouver's main outfall, is moving north, about two miles further out, the current is moving to the south.

"When outfall locations are being considered, need for long-term measurements should be obvious," he said.

Tabata's 380,000 pieces of data, which were collected between April, 1969, and September, 1970, have not yet been completely processed.

Most of his work in the Georgia Strait was done aboard the Victoria-based CSS Parizeau.

South Twisters Kill 82

From AP, UPI

The twisters — weather experts said there were between 50 and 100 of them in the deadliest onslaught in the U.S. south in 30 years — moved through the area late Sunday night, and late Monday volunteers were still uncovering victims beneath the widespread rubble.

Hardest hit was the Sunflower County town of Inverness, population 1,100, where 75 per cent of the residential area was destroyed and 13 persons died.

Civil Defence officials said 22 died in Leflore County, 24 in Sharkey County, 17 in Sunflower County, seven in Yazoo County, five in Humphreys and two in Warren. All are in Mississippi.

In addition five died in Delhi, La., in one of the first funnels to drop out of the band of violent weather which whistled through the area just before dark Sunday.

The American Insurance Association said insured property damage in the two states would exceed $7.5 million.

Estimates were that winds exceeded 100 miles an hour as the funnels skipped across the countryside.

At the University of Mississippi at Oxford, 40 students were taken to hospital after a tornado hit a trailer park on the edge of the campus. Fifty trailers were destroyed and 50 others damaged — some wrapped around pine trees like pieces of wire.

In North Fayetteville, N.C. a tornado ripped through a business and residential area at the rush hour Monday afternoon, killing at least one person and injuring 30 more.

Cape Fear Valley Hospital reported it treated 18 persons in the emergency room for injuries, admitting four of them. Another 18 were brought to Womack Army Hospital at nearby Ft. Bragg, where four were admitted.

Policeman Cops Out Too Quickly

(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

LOS ANGELES — Former police Sgt. Kenneth Carlsted, 44, injured in a helicopter crash, accepted a $35,000 settlement Monday — just five minutes before a jury verdict, which would have given him $180,000.

When jurors returned with a verdict of $180,000 for Carlsted they were told that there was no need to record it now because of his settlement.

U.S. Blizzard Kills, Cripples

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A full-blown blizzard powered northeastward across the plains and Midwest Monday, causing at least eight deaths, marooning motorists and slowing business, industry and government to a crawl.

Six men died of heart attacks in Omaha after shovelling snow or pushing stalled cars. Another man suffered a fatal heart attack in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Land Guards Stillborn?

Barrett Raises 1968 Pledge, Bennett Refers Him to Black

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

Premier Bennett told the Legislature Monday the instructions he gave in 1968 regarding public development of land along B.C. highways have never been countermanded.

But the premier also refused to answer a demand by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett that he state whether the policy had actually been put into effect. Bennett replied Highways Minister Wesley Black would be "glad" to answer when his estimates are debated in the House, in a few days time.

Opposition Wins Day On Policy Approval

Colonist headline April 7, 1968

Barrett read a newspaper report of April 8, 1968, in which Bennett, then acting highways minister in the wake of Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi's resignation from portfolio, announced it would be government policy to acquire lands along highways where development was likely to take place.

At the time, the premier said the government hadn't decided whether these lands would be disposed of later by a system of public bidding or whether the government would retain ownership and lease them to commercial developers.

Barrett told the House Monday the failure of the government to implement this policy has resulted in the loss of millions of dollars of new revenues for construction of schools and hospitals.

"I can dismiss other broken promises by the premier," the NDP leader said, "but not this one. There is a potential here for generating great new revenues from development created by publicly-financed highway projects. And the

Dental Service 'Sadly Lacking'

OTTAWA (CP)—Only about one-third of the population's dental service requirements are being filled and dental health as a consequence is poor, says a special report to the federal government.

It proposes a national dental program for children as a step toward eventual dental care of the scope now given for medical care under the national medical care insurance program.

Shortage of Dentists

The report was tabled in the Commons Monday by Health Minister John Munro who said the recommendations will be studied.

A variety of ways of correcting the current serious shortage of dentists is put forward in the report, particularly through better training of dental auxiliaries such as dental assistants, dental hygienists, dental technicians and dental technologists.

The report was written by a committee set up in 1968 as a result of recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services. The committee was headed by Chief Justice Dalton Wells of Ontario Supreme Court.

It says the dental profession estimates that only one-third of dental requirements are being met by existing dental manpower. This was a matter of concern since prepaid dental care through government-sponsored children's services "is being contemplated."

In addition, the level of demand by the general public is expected to increase.

To cope, the dentist-population ratio would have to be boosted to 1 for each 1,200 from 1 for each 3,000—"utopian in the short run since it would mean doubling or tripling" dental school output.

Present plans call for a ratio of 1 to 2,500 by 1986. Hence the emphasis on producing more and better dental auxiliaries and redistributing the duties performed by them under dental supervision.

The report says an estimated 55 per cent of Canadians live in regions where they cannot get more than 35 per cent of the required services due to manpower shortages.

Vietnam's Patton Shot Down

SAIGON (UPI) — Lt.-Gen. Do Cao Tri, one of South Vietnam's most powerful and flamboyant leaders, was killed today when his helicopter was shot down near the Cambodian border, allied command said.

Tri, en route to Cambodia, was commander of South Vietnamese forces in Cambodia and in the 11 provinces around Saigon. Due to his fearlessness, he was known as Saigon's Patton. (See also page 3.)

Grits' Regime Raked For 'Arrogant Pride'

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield unleashed a scathing attack on the Trudeau government here Monday night, accusing it of arrogance, incompetence and irresponsibility.

The government lacks a conscience, and is "playing games with the country," Stanfield told the annual meeting of the Central Nova Progressive Conservative Association.

The former Nova Scotia premier said the time had come to deliver sharp criticism because the government is "so puffed up with pride and arrogance that it is incapable of either admitting

School Bus Driver Breathed Out .25

PENTICTON (CP)—Bus driver Melville John Chappell had 26 children in his school bus at the time he was stopped by police Feb. 15 and charged with impaired driving, an RCMP constable testified in court Monday.

The witness said Chappel, who was remanded for sentence, was found to have a blood-alcohol content of .25 per cent. A reading of .08 per cent is considered sufficient to charge a motorist.

Judge Ross Collver said "this is the worst situation that has ever confronted me under this section of the Criminal Code."

UNITED NATIONS (CP-Reuter) — Egypt informed UN envoy Gunnar Jarring Monday that its offer for a peace agreement with Israel will become invalid if it is not matched by a positive Israeli response.

Peterson Isn't Saying

Labor May Face House Test Today

By DON COLLINS

Today is the day Labor Minister Leslie Peterson could light the fuse under the B.C. labor movement. But if he intends to do so, he isn't tipping his hand in advance.

He declined comment Monday on whether he would move in the Legislature today to have the trucking industry strike-lockout ended under terms of the B.C. Mediation Act.

The 151,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor has served notice it will rally behind the Teamsters' union in such a case, if the Teamsters decide to take a stand against compulsory measures.

Peterson served notice of a motion Friday — the same day the strike-lockout began — which would order resumption of work.

Today is the first day the motion could be debated before the House. However, it can be brought up at any time during the session.

The contract dispute arose over a single point — the union's demand for a clause allowing its members to refuse to handle goods moved from behind a picket line by non-union personnel. It involves 3,500 workers and some 78 trucking and warehouse firms represented by the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association.

The union struck one company Friday and the association retaliated by ordering lockouts against the Teamsters by all its member firms.

The full impact isn't expected to be felt for 10 days to two weeks. The Teamsters have estimated that about 60

Eskimos Offended by Name

"From what we can understand, it (Eskimo) is an offensive word and we are seriously considering taking it out of our title," Alan Clarke, executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, said in an interview Monday.

Eskimo, according to Clarke and several books on Canadian history, means "one who eats raw flesh" and is derived from the Cree Indian.

"The word Eskimo was never used in the discussions we held with native people from the North at an association conference in Peterborough during the weekend," said Clarke.

Those people called Eskimos — about 13,000 in the northern fringes of Canada, especially the Northwest Territories — want to be called Innuit — their word for themselves.

But even that word raises doubt.

The Oxford Companion to Canadian History and Literature spells the word with one n but A Dictionary of Canadians on Historical Principles spells it Innuit.

At the weekend conference, several people from the North decided that the word Eskimo should be dropped from the association and also organized a new organization — Inuit or Inuit Taparisat of Canada.

Architect Urges Updated Pollution Control

Oil Protests 'Hysterical, Futile'

By DON GAIN

A prominent Victoria naval architect Monday dubbed efforts to eliminate oil tanker traffic on the Pacific Coast as "hysterical and futile" and, at the same time, called on the federal transport department to update its facilities for oil pollution control and prevention.

Robert McHaffie of the firm of Robert C. McHaffie Ltd said in an interview that oil tankers operating along the coast are not only inevitable but highly desirable.

He called for the construction of Coast Guard ships to escort giant oil tankers and proposed that Canada welcome the U.S. oil companies' venture in water shipment of Alaska oil as a shot in the arm for B.C. shipyards.

McHaffie said he believes that the great concern for the environmental safety of our coastal waters by local residents and federal officials is a "commendable desire" to preserve for all time the great natural beauty of our coast.

But to try to obtain this end by eliminating commerce is wrong, he added.

It would be possible to safeguard our beaches and allow tankers commerce at the same time, McHaffie said, by introducing mandatory escort services for tankers using our national and adjacent waters.

The federal government should provide specialized escort vessels, he urged, which would serve the double purpose of guiding mammoth tankers safely to and from the proposed refineries through waters extending reasonable distances from Canadian shores.

He saw this escort job as a role for the Canadian Coast Guard in the course of performing other duties.

Several vessels — equipped with the latest communication and navigational aids, with booms, boomboats, oil-skimming equipment and large tanks full of emulsifying chemicals — are all that would be required, he said, to take immediate action should there be an oil spill, "as there most certainly will be."

Present transport department facilities for oil pollution control or prevention are "laughably inadequate," the naval architect said.

And now is the time, he continued, to obtain assistance from oil companies concerned in building and placing these vessels in operation.

"If the oil companies were not interested in supporting such services, then surely their underwriters would be," he said.

The construction and servicing of such escort vessels, McHaffie said, would be a shot in the arm to B.C. shipyards.

He also disputed a recent letter to Oak Bay council from J. C. Rutledge, general director of the aerospace, marine and rail branch of the federal industry, trade and commerce department, who said that U.S. ships could be serviced only in U.S. shipyards.

"Certainly the oil would of necessity be carried in U.S. vessels, but these ships can be serviced and repaired anywhere in the world, and B.C. yards would be in a foremost position to bid for this work," he said.

His statement was backed up by a spokesman of Yarrows Ltd. shipyard, who called Rutledge's letter "a politician's reply.

"U.S. ships are repaired and serviced in Canadian yards," the spokesman told the Colonist. "It's as simple as that. They have to pay duty on repair work when they sail back to the States, but some still feel there is an advantage in having work done in Canadian yards."

"And this is in addition to emergency maintenance and repairs," McHaffie said.

"So let us welcome our neighbors' great commercial venture, insisting only on the right to escort him past our doorstep and, if necessary, render immediate and effective help when spillages occur."

McHaffie has been for years a proponent of the use large sea-going barges.

Arctic Corridor Call

'Pipelines No Curb To Damage'

Use of pipelines is not an acceptable alternative to transportation of crude oil by tankers, a spokesman for a B.C. conservation group said Monday.

Instead a "transportation corridor" through the Arctic should be established, Jim Bohlen, vice-president of the Sierra Club of B.C. told the Colonist from Vancouver.

"It won't do to build a pipeline just anywhere; if oil and other resources must be transported south from the Arctic, it should be done in an area where any type of transport causes the least possible damage to the ecology," Bohlen said.

"The Canadian government is working on a survey of what effects pipelines will have on the ecology; the results of that survey won't be known for at least two years and until then the use of pipelines remains an unacceptable alternative to oil tankers," he said.

A transportation corridor should run from wherever the resources originate to a point were "special Arctic conditions" end, he said.

"Generally, that area is the tree line, but in some cases, it goes south of the tree line," Bohlen said.

If an area could be found where no lasting damage would be inflicted on the tundra, he said, installation of oil and gas pipelines and construction of roads should be restricted to that corridor.

Bohlen said the Sierra Club also urges B.C. residents to voice their protest against the proposed use of tankers to transport oil along the west coast and into Puget Sound, by tearing up their gasoline credit cards.

"We are encouraging people to destroy their credit cards, and send them to the oil companies in some suitable container — like a can of dirty oil," he said.

Meanwhile, members of Saanich and the Island New Democratic Party have protested "in the strongest terms" the shipping of oil from Alaska to Washington by tanker.

In a message to Roger Morton, U.S. Secretary of the Interior, the association said: "We feel that the ecological disaster which would be caused by the sinking of a tanker far exceeds any benefit the oil could bring to the people of the United States."

Restored Bus Pass Welcomed

The director of the Greater Victoria Silver Threads Service said Monday that restoration of Sunday and holiday transit passes — announced Monday — is a good move but senior citizens will have anxious moments until a decision is made on a general bus fare increase.

The director, Mrs. Catherine Horne, said Monday she hoped the pass restoration was not just a temporary measure.

Service Cut

The use of the all-day 50-cent bus pass on Sundays and holidays was discontinued Feb. 13 when B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Chairman Gordon Shrum announced a cut-back on route service to take place in Victoria March 12.

Since then there have been several protests about the bus-pass elimination, some of them made in the provincial Legislature.

Decision Held

He told reporters after a Hydro director's meeting in Vancouver that although the passes apply to all persons, the directors' decision was influenced particularly by representations from old-age pensioners and low-income groups.

He said the directors also decided there will be no increase in transit fares pending a study of the effects of recent service reductions in computing Hydro's transit operating deficit.

Stolen Goods Recovered

Victoria police, who reported Feb. 3 a woman had returned to her home at 2616 Blackwood to find $4,735 worth of furniture and other items missing, said Monday items worth a total of about $3,556 had been recovered.

There were indications the initial evaluation had been high. However, police did not say all items had been found and there was no word on possible charges.

Ratepayers Versus Saanich Council

Win, Loss and Draw In Group's First Fight

It was win, lose and draw for the newly-formed Gordon Head and District Ratepayers' Association, when its members filled Saanich council chamber to overflowing for a public hearing Monday night.

- The association opposed the rezoning of property at 3987 Gordon Head for an 84-unit row housing development. Council turned it down.
- The association opposed the rezoning of property at 2246 McCoy for use as a day care centre. Council approved the application.
- The association opposed the rezoning of the northeast corner of McKenzie and Gordon Head for service station use. Council tabled the application.

A non-controversial application, the first on the list, was passed by council. It will allow the building of a 15-suite condominium for senior citizens at 3236 Seaton by Danish Designers and Builders Ltd.

The 15 suites will be "more like homes," the developer, Kaj Pedersen, told council. Each will have its own fireplace, washer and dryer. Two-bedroom suites will sell for $14,900 and one-bedroom suites for $13,900, he said.

Speaking for the applicant, the Alma Mater Society, student Gus Agostinis said a suitable location had been sought since September. There was no place available on the university campus, he said.

The centre would care for up to 33 children, aged from under three to pre-school age.

Seventeen persons spoke in opposition to the centre, claiming among them that there would be too much traffic, the house was too dilapidated, there wouldn't be sufficient toilet facilities and "all those children would be squalling around on a half-acre of land."

UVic student Derek Thompson, who is working on the project, told the hearing that the premises had been inspected by building, fire and health authorities who had indicated what had to be done to bring the property up to suitable standards for day care use.

Municipal Clerk Gordon Hayward read three letters opposing the rezoning application of seven acres at 3987 Gordon Head for row housing and said there was a petition with 171 signatures, but some had later written to have their names deleted.

Hayward read 15 letters in favor of the application.

He said he planned to enter the design, by Victoria architect Donovan Marshall, in the Canadian Housing Design awards for this year.

A total of 35 persons stood up, one by one, to oppose the scheme. Objections ranged from criticism of "spot zoning," desire to keep Gordon Head an area of single-family dwellings, to increased traffic and, crowding of schools.

Four persons in the chamber spoke in favor of the development.

A motion to turn down the application passed, with Ald. Edith Gunning, Ald. Ed Lum and Ald. Leslie Passmore opposed.

In opposition to the service station rezoning at McKenzie and Gordon Head were three letters and 19 persons in the chamber.

Objectors pointed out that the lot was too small for the type of service station currently being built, that there were too many service stations already, and that the intersection was an awkward one now.

The application was tabled on the motion of Lum.

Breakwater Bid Altered By Sailors

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club advised Oak Bay council Monday night it was withdrawing its application to construct a 600-foot long timber pile breakwater in Cadboro Bay.

In making the announcement, Ian Stewart, the lawyer who has been representing the club, said plans were instead being developed to construct a rock breakwater at reduced height.

Stewart, whose comments were affirmed by Ald. Brian Smith, said that immediately after a Feb. 18 council meeting at which council decided by a narrow margin not to oppose the plan, yacht club executives met and decided to withdraw the application.

Although Stewart met with Mayor Frances Elford about the breakwater last Thursday, she said in an interview Monday afternoon she was unaware of a revised plan.

Ald. Shirley Dowell, who has been accused of a conflict of interest because her husband is a member of the yacht club and because she was herself president of the club's women's auxiliary at least 12 years ago, rose on a point of privilege at the meeting to make her position clear.

She observed it had been suggested she should not vote on the issue because of her connection and said: "I would take this step unhesitantly if I thought I was influenced by past association with the club."

by this former link and that although it would be easiest to abstain from voting, such a step "would be bending to pressure and not accepting my responsibility."

Ald. John Goult, who had voted against the breakwater while Mrs. Dowell had supported it, said he had found her to be "a most forthright and honest individual" and that while he disagreed with her he had "the greatest confidence in her integrity."

Of 117 letters received by council this week concerning the breakwater, 96 were opposed to it. Some of the letters were from persons

She said, however, she did not believe she was influenced requesting their names be removed from a RVYC petition supporting the breakwater.

One of these observed she had signed the petition only after being told "that the breakwater would be under the surface at all times and would not be visible even at low tide."

Several council members also expressed disapproval of Mayor Elford's announced intention to use her powers under the Municipal Act and request council to reconsider the breakwater.

"Regardless of the decision, no one was going to win and everyone was going to lose," said Ald. Alan Hoey. "By bringing this back, Oak Bay council is the loser."

The mayor said she thought she would have been remiss in her duty if she had not asked for reconsideration.

Victoria police and fire department officials remained silent Monday about an intensive investigation into suspected incendiarism which Sunday caused temporary closure of the boarding school section of St. Ann's Academy.

But some idea of the scope of the inquiry was given by Sister Frieda Marie, supervisor of the academy at 835 Humboldt, in a statement praising firemen and policemen for their "absolutely and utterly understanding effort."

It was learned the probe of three fires last week in the boarding school section is involving interviews with all 42 girls in that section plus others in the academy.

There was no indication when the investigation might end and Sister Freida said some of the 42 girls might go to their homes while others "will be given the utmost consideration." The 42 include girls from Hong Kong, Peru and Mexico as well as Canada and the U.S.

The first two fires occurred about 24 hours apart Monday and Tuesday mornings last week. The first saw a mattress and bedding catch fire in a third-floor dormitory section, the second involved a curtain in a doorway next to the room where the initial fire occurred.

Fire department officials praised Gertrude Eichberger, 18, in charge of that part of the dormitory, for quick action in throwing both sets of burning materials out of a window.

In the third fire, shortly after noon Friday, about $100 damage was caused when backdrop curtains were ignited in an auditorium attached to the boarding school section. Firemen put out that blaze and a teacher who found the fire required hospital treatment after suffering a minor heart seizure.

Sister Freida, in praising the investigators, named Fire Chief Eric Simmons, Deputy Chief Carl Coates and Sgt. Peter Voth and constables Dale Melin and Barrie English of the police force for their "devotion" to the job.

She said these men worked much of the weekend at the academy and added: "I think the public should know that this is the kind of men who are in the public service."

An indication of the tension in the area came at about 8:40 a.m. Monday when another fire alarm was sent in from the academy. It turned out that someone mistook smoke from an incinerator for the real thing.

Lightfingers Repents

It's a little late for returning Christmas gifts but when Albert Reynolds opened his front door Friday night, there on the doorstep were the three strings of Christmas lights he gave away, involuntarily, more than two months ago.

And with them was a note. It said:

"Dear Concerned: Sorry we had to borrow your lights but we needed some for Christmas. Next year we might need to use them again and I know you will be pleased to let us have them. Thank You, Yours truly."

"My husband put the lights up on Dec. 18 last year," Mrs. Reynolds said Monday, "and they were stolen the same night. I doubt if he will string them again this year. It's a lot of work. Perhaps, if the person will just come to the door we will loan them to him."

The Reynolds live at 736 Transit, Oak Bay.

College Word Soon

A final decision on the site of a proposed Pacific College, an international school designed to serve Pacific Rim countries, is expected to be made by the end of March.

Bertram Butler, of 513 Transit, chairman of the college site selection committee, said there has been no major progress since options were taken last month on two pieces of property on southern Vancouver Island.
